RAILWAY LABOR DEMANDS PAY BE RESTORED JULY 1

Rejects Managers' Request for Continuation of Prevailing Ten Per Cent Wage Slash.

JOHNSON TRIES TO AVERT AUTO STRIKE

Industry to Consider His Peace Plan Tomorrow — Rail Men Ask for Parley on Same Day.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Railroad labor, in bluntly refusing today to accept a continued wage cut, added a second threat of industrial strife to that of the rapidly growing crisis in the automobile shops.

The brotherhoods told a committee of railroad managers that they "cannot and will not acquiesce" in a proposal for a continuation of the prevailing 10 per cent pay slash until April 30, 1935.

Meanwhile, NRA was informed by the automobile unions that only concessions by the employers could avert the strike now recommended to begin Wednesday.

Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery Administrator, canceled a weekend trip to New York to apply himself to the conciliation of the automobile dispute. The executive committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce will meet Monday to decide what concessions, if any, can be made.

Johnson told President Roosevelt by telephone that he hoped to solve the automobile problem. Mr. Roosevelt, while keeping in close touch with developments in the automobile industrial trouble, is described as leaving all decisions to Johnson.

Railroad Labor Problem.

Railroad labor took up the recovery program as an issue in a sharply-worded rejection of the carriers' request for continuance of the pay cut.

"We are asked," the statement said, "to confirm a program of restricted wage payments and reduced employe purchasing power. In plain language, you ask us to obstruct and retard American economic recovery and to support you in your refusal to contribute anything at all to the national rehabilitation. We cannot and will not acquiesce."

"We most respectfully but definitely reject your proposal," they told the operators, and added that "we insist that basic rates shall be restored on July 1, 1934, in keeping with the terms of the existing agreement."

The managers' committee looked over the union's statement and then told the labor representatives:

"Your rejection of our proposal has come as a surprise and shock to us, especially in view of the request which the President of the United States made upon your association and our committee to preserve the status quo in the railroad situation in the interest of national recovery. Your action precipitates a serious situation and makes imperative a considered statement of our position."

The operators asked for a renewal of the parley on Monday.

Green's View of Situation.

Whether automobile workers will strike next Wednesday was said by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to rest entirely with the manufacturers.

Green, in a formal statement, asserted the cause of the threatened automobile strike was directly traceable to efforts of the manufacturers to compel their workers to join company unions. The workers, he said, believing that the labor provisions of the National Recovery Act gave them the right to organize without interference, refused to accept the company union.

What shape the automobile dispute will take is expected by NRA officials to be revealed in developments outside of the capital in the next few days. For the workers' part, mass meetings in the Michigan automobile centers tomorrow will decide their collective reaction to the proposal by Johnson for a mediation committee in the industry.

The manufacturers at New York will consider Johnson's offer. Their representative in the recent Washington negotiations, W. S. Kundsen of General Motors, left the capital without making any promises to Johnson.

In addition to the potentialities of trouble in the rail industry, the recovery leaders were cognizant of the widespread ramifications possi-

ARMY PILOT KILLED AS PLANE FALLS IN TEST MAIL FLIGHT

Lieut. H. G. Richardson, Former Commercial Flyer, Crashes at Cheyenne—11th Military Fatality in Month.

By the Associated Press.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 17.—Lieut. R. G. Richardson, Reserve Corps pilot recently recalled to active service to fly the air mail, was killed today in the plunge of his plane from 1000 feet. Richardson, on a test flight, was carrying no mail. His death came as orders went out for the resumption Monday of the Army's air mail service.

This was the eleventh fatality among Army flyers since the War Department took over transportation of the mail less than a month ago. Only four of these flyers, however, were engaged in the actual flying of mail. The Army's transportation of the mail has been suspended a week under instructions from President Roosevelt to reorganize the setup in the interests of safety to the flyers.

Richardson, formerly a co-pilot for United Air Lines, was reported by Army officers to be flying a single-motored biplane of the P-38-E type. Lieut. Frank L. Howard and Lieut. Arthur R. Kerwin Jr., crashed to their deaths in the same type of ship March 9 near the edge of Cheyenne. They also were on a test flight.

Richardson's ship crashed three miles from the airport and about a mile southwest of the Francis E. Warren Military Reservation. Soldiers from the post there ran to the plane but were prevented by flames from reaching the body, which was found in the forward cockpit. The plane burst into flames immediately on striking the ground and was reduced to a metal skeleton.

Mrs. H. D. Alexander, who saw the plane fall, said the flyer was about 1000 feet in the air when she saw the ship flying with its tail down, go into a spin. The pilot, she said, seemed to be struggling to right the craft when suddenly, after he had apparently succeeded, the ship dived straight down and smashed, nose first.

The weather here, following snow flurries and a drop in temperature overnight, had cleared away and the mercury was rising at the time of the crash.

Lieut. Richardson had been called into active service only last Thursday to augment the staff of Army airmail pilots stationed at Cheyenne. A former employe of the United Air Lines at the Cheyenne airport, he had been working in a filling station here since he was recently laid off by the commercial company. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Dorothy Richardson, who lives here.

Army Flyer Tells of Saving Life With Parachute in Crash.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—Second Lieut. Paul D. Bunker of the Thirteenth Detached Squadron of Fort Crockett, Galveston, Tex., who made a successful parachute leap although he landed in a snake-infested swamp west of New Orleans yesterday when his Army plane crashed, today was cared for in a remote St. John the Baptist settlement as he awaited transportation back to his base.

He said over long-distance telephone that he had made a good landing in the swamp and suffered only slightly from exposure in wandering for three hours before being picked up by trappers in canoes. His plane was wrecked and mired in the swamp. Bunker had made a duty flight to Pensacola, Fla., and was returning to Galveston when motor trouble forced him down.

ARMY TO RESUME MAIL FLYING AT MIDNIGHT TONIGHT

Service Suspended Last Sunday Will Be Resumed From Coast to Coast on Eight Routes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Army planes will resume flying the mails at 12:01 a. m. Monday over eight routes covering the country from coast to coast. Mail carrying by army planes was stopped last Sunday after President Roosevelt complained of the large number of fatalities among army pilots.

The routes on which service will be resumed follow:

New York to Chicago, Chicago to San Francisco, Boston to New York, Chicago to Dallas, Salt Lake City to San Diego, Salt Lake City to Seattle, Cheyenne to Denver, and New York to Atlanta and Jacksonville.

The War Department previously had said nine routes would be flown, but that from Chicago to St. Paul was omitted in the final list made up.

Army Mail Planes Fitted for Night and Blind Flying.

CHICAGO, March 17.—When the Army resumes flying the air mail it will pursue a "safety first policy," Major-General Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the Army Air Corps, said today. "Planes have all been equipped for night and blind flying and carry radios. Our pilots are well trained and familiar with the territory they are to cover."

ONE-DAY EXTENSION ON AUTOMOBILE LICENSES

Arrests Will Not Be Made Until 7 a. m. Tuesday, Instead of Tomorrow.

Arrests for failure to obtain 1934 automobile licenses will not begin until 7 a. m. Tuesday, instead of tomorrow, the deadline announced earlier.

Chief of Police McCarthy, Prosecuting Atttorney Rosecan and Prosecuting Attorney Anderson of St. Louis County agreed on the new arrangement.

The State Automobile License Bureau, at 1701 Chestnut street and the office of License Collector Chapman at the City Hall were crowded yesterday with applicants for licenses, and both remained open beyond the usual closing hour to handle the rush.

CHICAGO MAN TO PAY TAX OF $1,593,633 ON INCOME

Makes First Payment of $398,408, Larger Than Any Corporation in the District.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 17.—An unnamed Chicagoan is scheduled to pay Uncle Sam an income tax this year of $1,593,633.96, indicating he made from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 in 1933.

This man made an income tax payment of $398,408.49 for the first quarter. His was the largest individual return to come to the local office of the collector of internal revenue, and although not officially announced, it was reported the biggest on record since 1929.

The individual's return exceeded even the largest return from a corporation in this area, which was a quarterly payment of $353,000.

Miss Elizabeth B. Eckert, chief clerk, said the number of returns filed in Chicago this year is far ahead of last year, and the average return is larger.

Suicide Victim Is Ex-Ziegfeld Girl.

NEW YORK, March 17.—The body of a woman, which had remained at the morgue unclaimed for more than a week, was identified today as that of Mrs. Gertrude Williams Coverdale, once a Ziegfeld Follies show girl and wife of Robert Coverdale, a broker. Mrs. Coverdale, committed suicide March 9 in a furnished room.

ADMITS SHOOTING GIRL THEN WRITING EXTORTION NOTES

Herbert Rinaldi Says Shot Fired in Alley Accidentally Hit Mary Jane Fulbright, 13.

HER INJURY FEB. 20 WAS UNEXPLAINED

Ballistic Tests Give Clew—Youth Also Wounded Man Who Caught Him Stealing Auto."

Herbert Rinaldi, 18-year-old student, held at Clayton for shooting and wounding a man who tried to catch him stealing his automobile, admitted to St. Louis County authorities yesterday that three weeks previously, on Feb. 20, he accidentally shot Mary Jane Fulbright, 13-year-old University City junior high school student and subsequently wrote extortion letters to her mother.

The youth declared that he fired a shot from another stolen car in an alley between Chamberlain and Bartmer avenues in order to determine whether anyone was in a nearby house he planned to rob.

"Just as I fired the shot a girl hurried across the east end of the alley," he stated, adding that he "got scared" and drove away, finally abandoning the car which he had picked up a few hours earlier.

Reads of Shooting.

Rinaldi said he read in the newspaper the next day about the girl being shot in the arm, suffering a flesh wound, as she passed a garage near her home at 6726A Bartmer avenue.

"Then I knew I had hit her," he stated, continuing that he conceived the idea of demanding $2000 from the girl's mother, Mrs. Mildred Fulbright, a teacher at De Mun School in Clayton. He added that he thought "people would then think somebody was harming her and forget about me."

Rinaldi said that he mailed his first letter, but delivered one in person several nights later, thrusting it under a neighbor's door. It contained instructions to insert an advertisement in a newspaper, he said, which woul lead to payment of the money. He added that he never answered the advertisement.

Wrote Letter With Bullet.

The second letter, he asserted, was written with a .38-caliber bullet which he said he found in a car he had stolen, together with a loaded revolver which he said he sold.

In his first letter, the youth stated, without salutation:

"Do you feel bad about your daughter's accident? It was an accident. I instructed it not to be done. Your daughter was to be picked up and held for $2000.

"Of course, you don't want your children to be harmed again. Possibly killed. There are many ways in which any member of your family might be harmed. Next time she won't like to be killed or maimed for life.

"If you tip off the police there will be no rest on our part until one of your family pays with life. Money to be in small bills, ones, five, and $10. Not marked.

"If you are willing put ad in Post paper personal column 'John please come home, Jack. Signed S. V. P.'

"You will get further instructions. You are being watched close. O."

Had No Accomplices.

Rinaldi, who said that he had no accomplices, wrot his second and final letter several days afterwards.

University City police, who had been informed by the girl's mother as soon as she received the first letter, said that it was almost illegible, but managed to make out directions to put the money in a wastebasket and "throw it out of the window," without specifying date or time.

Rinaldi described the weapon which he fired as Mary Jane Fulbright crossed the alley as "a baby hammerless .22-caliber revolver."

The investigation which led to his confession, witnessed by several deputy sheriffs, was brought about when ballistics tests indicated the bullet which slightly wounded Ervin Klingert, 21-year-old landscape gardner, who tried to save his car from being stolen on March 11, was fired from the same weapon which wounded the schoolgirl.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—Even internal revenue workers got a surprise today. They found the return of a San Francisco business man showing net taxable income of $1245 and a check for the same amount accompanying it. Actually the man owed only $49.80.

INSULL, FREED BY GREECE, SAILS AGAIN ON FREIGHTER, BOUND FOR ABYSSINIA

ROOSEVELT BADLY ADVISED, SAYS RICKENBACKER

Should "Purge Official Family of Traitorous Elements," He Declares at Senate Hearing.

DENIES INTENT TO ATTACK PRESIDENT

Urges Restoration of Air Mail Contracts Pending "Fair Hearing" of Former Holders.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—A demand by Edward V. Rickenbacker, famous war ace, that President Roosevelt "purge his official family of traitorous members" who advised him to cancel the air mail contracts threw the Senate Postoffice Committee into an uproar today.

Chairman McKellar charged Rickenbacker with making a "political speech" and "attacking the President."

Senator Logan (Dem.), Kentucky, took the flyer's side and Senator Barbour (Rep.), New Jersey, asked Rickenbacker to continue.

After his exchange with McKellar, the flyer bowed and started for the door. At once every spectator in the room arose and greeted him with handclapping. Senators Logan and Barbour joined in.

Before leaving Rickenbacker said to McKellar: "I am not attacking the President. It is my confidence in him that I do not want destroyed."

Denounces Cancellation.

Rickenbacker's statements were extemporaneous after he had read a prepared statement denouncing the cancellation of air mail contracts as "unfair and un-American" and after cross-examination, arising from the witness chair, he declared cancellation had "caused doubt in the minds of millions of Americans." He continued:

"It is the doubt in the minds of millions whether all the President has so ably accomplished, such as the NRA, CWA, gold content and other things, has been proved or has had time to be proved, or whether they are as big a mistake as the cancellation of the air mail contracts; whether tomorrow that also may be questionable."

It was at this point that McKellar broke in.

Rickenbacker a moment before had praised the "great accomplishments" of the President, attributing them in part to "the divine spirit."

For Aviation Commission.

Rickenbacker is vice-president of North American Aviation, Inc., parent company of Eastern Air Transport, Western Air Express and Trancontinental & Western Air, Inc., for which Lindbergh is technical adviser. These three companies held mail agreements prior to the cancellation of all domestic awards on Feb. 19 because of the Postoffice Department's decision, since disputed, that the contracts were awarded through fraud.

Rickenbacker agreed with Col. C. A. Lindbergh and Clarence D. Chamberlin, who testified yesterday that a Federal Aviation Commission should be named to take charge of the industry at once and that the proposed bill was "destructive to industry."

Bill to Be Changed.

Committee members made it clear they planned revision of the bill, even Chairman McKellar, its co-author, agreeing that the restrictions imposed against bidding on new contracts by the old companies must be modified.

McCarren (Dem.), Nevada, member of the air mail investigating committee, is at work on a substitute measure providing for an aviation commission.

Rickenbacker approved the principles of the bill by Representative Kelly (Rep.), Pennsylvania, which provides a rate of two mills a pound mile for air mail with the Postoffice Department allotting mail to carriers just as train mail now is allotted, without bidding. It was approved in principle by the House Postoffice Committee but set aside

8 HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS CAUSED BY SNOW STORM

25 Traffic Mishaps Up to Midnight — Temperature Drops 39 Degrees in 8 Hours.

Eight persons were injured in automobile accidents caused by slippery streets and blinded windshields brought on by the snowstorm last night. Police were called out on more than 25 traffic accidents up to midnight.

The storm came as the result of a sudden cold wave which brought with it a rapid drop in temperature. Between 1 and 9 p. m. the temperature dropped 39 degrees, from 71 to 32. The wind, coming at a velocity of 32 miles per hour, changed suddenly from the Southwest to the Northwest early in the afternoon.

Five persons were injured, two of them seriously, when an automobile driven by Irvin Kathriner ran into the rear of a stalled truck on Lindbergh boulevard, two blocks south of Olive Street road. Kathriner and his mother, Mrs. Lena Kathriner, who was in the car with him, suffered cuts of the face.

Robert Fleming, 2201 Collins avenue, driver of the truck, and his wife, both suffered skull and internal injuries. They were taken to County Hospital and later removed to City Hospital. Miss Genevieve Alexander, 9303 Midland avenue, Overland, who was in the cab of the truck with them, suffered minor injuries. John Shelley, 4575 Adelaide avenue, owner of the truck, was attempting to push it at the time of the accident, but was not injured.

Miss Alma Brown, 36, 1819 Dolman street, suffered a skull injury and a fracture of the right leg when struck by an automobile while attempting to board an eastbound street car on St. Charles road at Ferguson road. The driver of the car, who said he was Harry Bennet, 22, motion picture operator, 6329 Windom avenue, Overland, said she stepped into the path of his car from behind another machine. JACKSON COUNTY AUDITOR ACCUSED OF GIRL'S MURDER

Miss Hulda Leubman Said Harold B. Gates Shot Her in Quarrel in Their Apartment.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 17.—Harold B. Gates, 49 years old, Jackson County auditor, was charged with first degree murder here tonight shortly after Miss Hula Leubhan, 25, died from bullet wounds.

Miss Leubhan, with whom police said Gates had shared an apartment, was shot in an alleged quarrel with Gates in the apartment last Tuesday night. Police said she told them she had quarreled with Gates' about his drinking.

A few minutes before her death tonight, John V. Hill, Assistant Prosecutor, obtained from her a statement naming Gates as her slayer. Previously she had refused to make a complaint against him.

Gates was committed to jail without bond pending a preliminary hearing March 24. Police said when Gates was arrested after the shooting he was too intoxicated to talk.

Gates had been separated from his wife two years, officers said. He has one son and three grandchildren.

MAN FATALLY HURT WHEN RUN OVER BY STREET CAR

Albert Biggs Struck in Front of 6610 Oakland; Suffers Skull and Leg Fractures.

Albert Biggs, an assembler employed at the Fisher Body Corporation, was killed last night when he was hit by a Forest Park street car in front of 6610 Oakland avenue. He suffered a skull fracture and a fracture of the right leg and died shortly after being taken to City Hospital.

Biggs, 27 years old, lived at 1538A North Sixteenth street. He was identified by a union membership card and a letter in his pocket.

ONLY PASSENGER ON TRAMP VESSEL; WIFE DECIDES TO WAIT IN FRANCE

74-Year-Old Fugitive Sets Out Anew When Government Approves Clearance Papers After Having Said He Would Be Turned Over to U. S.

SHIP'S CAPTAIN TO REPORT BY RADIO

Chicago Utility Man in Virtual Control of Chartered Boat — Didn't Know of Return to Athens Till 1700-Ton Craft Reached Port.

(Copyright, 1934.)

ATHENS, March 18. (Sunday.)—Samuel Insull, deported officially as an undesirable alien but with legal permission to sail as a free man, steamed out of Piraeus (the port of Athens) at 1:30 a. m. today as the only passenger aboard his chartered Greek freighter, The Maiotis.

Mrs. Insull, at the last moment, changed her mind about sailing with her fugitive husband and remained in Athens.

Papers of clearance for Insull's vessel, The Maiotis, were issued, with the destination marked "Port Said, Egypt, to await orders from the charterer" (Insull). The harbormaster signed the ship's log and told Insull he could leave at 1 a. m. Sunday.

It was reliably learned that Insull is heading for Ethiopia (Abyssinia), African hinterland which has no extradition treaty with the United States.

Mrs. Insull's Plans.

Mrs. Insull intends to go to France early next week to remain until Insull has "finally settled somewhere." She and Mme. Zehra Coyomdjoglou, Athens friend of the Insulls, spent several hours with him aboard the Maiotis and came ashore just before Capt. John Moussouris gave the order to cast off.

Capt. Moussouris, after questioning by harbor and police officials as to his part in aiding Insull to leave Greece secretly last Wednesday, was ordered to report his vessel's position by radio. Armed guards on the ship protecting Insull came ashore as the Maiotis sailed.

The ship's clearance papers were stamped at 1 a. m. Insull's temporary passport had been stamped by the harbor master at dusk yesterday, following the arrival of his chartered 1700 ton craft from Crete, whence the Maiotis had been recalled by the government.

Insull did not leave the cabin of the ship's captain during the six hours the vessel was in port.

May Go to Iraq.

Insull's eventual destination may be Iraq, the Arabian State made famous by the late King Feisal and Col. T. E. Lawrence. Some basis for this was found in the fact that the husband of Mme. Coyomdjoglou is a Bagdad date merchant. Bagdad is the capital of Iraq, which lies between Syria and the Persian Gulf, eastern boundary of Arabia.

Insull said he was sorry he put the Greek Government in an awkward position by leaving secretly, but expressed fear that if he left Greece by land, he might have been arrested and turned over to American authorities. He said he left his Athens home with an Englishman early Wednesday, slipped out of Athens, boarded the Maiotis at Piraeus, and stayed abed till the ship left port.

DECLINES TO CALL ELECTION ON UNION AT LACLEDE STEEL

St. Louis Regional Board Finds Complaint of Local 54 Contains "Unwarranted Statements."

ADVISES REHIRING WORKERS DROPPED

Suggests Recall, When Production Warrants It, of Strikers as Well as Those Laid Off.

In a statement of facts and findings on the labor situation at the Laclede Steel Co.'s Alton plant, the St. Louis Regional Labor Board yesterday recommended that the company recall, as soon as production warrants, the men laid off in the last five months of last year and the strikers, who walked out last Dec. 18.

The board found that the complaint filed against the company by Local 54 of the Amalgamated Iron, Steel & Tin Workers International Union contained "unwarranted statements, as a result of the confusion existing at the time," and that there was no evidence that a "substantial number" of employes was represented in the dispute. Therefore, the board declined to call an election on whether the men want representation under a union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor or under the employes' representation plan, which the findings explain is not technically speaking a "company union," but may be considered as such.

On the question of representation of workers the board said: "This board calls the company's attention to the fact that any group has the unquestioned right to have such representation as it may choose to represent it in collective bargaining, and that collective bargaining means an honest and sincere desire and effort to reach conclusions, if not entirely satisfactory to either, at least conclusions that can be accepted by both."

"Unwarranted Statements."

The "unwarranted statements" pointed out by the board dealt with the number of workers dismissed for union affiliation and the number on strike. The complaint on file states that, after the union was organized last Aug. 13, 143 workers were dismissed because of their membership in it. Evidence, the board said, showed that the union took in but 26 members during August, and that only 35 men were laid off for all cause from Aug. 13 to Aug. 30.

Another point disputed by the board involved the union claim that 70 per cent of the 360 men employed Dec. 17 walked out next day. The board states the union had only 56 paid up members on that date, and that the facts were that 79 men went on strike without the sanction of the international union.

Union leaders, who testified they were dismissed after becoming active in the organization, were E. G. Leighty, president of Local 54, who worked for the Laclede Steel Co. for 15 years; T. K. Brawley, financial secretary, eight years with the company; H. L. Harmon, first president of the union, with the company four years, and J. W. Soden, active union member, eight years in company service.

Employes' Statement.

The company, which was represented at the hearing, introduced a statement purporting to bear the signatures of 336 employes favoring the employes' representation plan over an outside union. The union, in turn, claims 278 members, of whom but 56 paid the initiation fee. The plant employs 700 men in busy times.

In the course of the strike, which was terminated Feb. 13, when both sides agreed to a review by the Labor Board, there were several clashes between pickets and workers and three persons were wounded by bullets.

Munro Roberts, union attorney, said he planned to ask the National Labor Board at Washington to conduct the election, which the Regional Labor Board held would not be justified. It is Roberts' contention that the 278 men carried on the union rolls constitute a "substantial number."

DUST STORMS, SNOW, SLEET

Blustery Winds in Four States; Fall in Temperature.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 17.—Snow and sleet mingled with dust storms gave the Southwest a blustery St. Patrick's day. The air was dust laden in the Texas Panhandle, Western Oklahoma and portions of Kansas and Missouri.

Snow fell in Kansas, Missouri and Northern Oklahoma. There were wintry winds.

At Smith Center, Kan., dust stopped business. The temperature dropped to 10 degrees above zero. The storm also hit Independence, Kan. The temperature dropped 40 degrees in Kansas City, Mo., in six hours. Snow covered the ground. Dust and sand from the Texas Panhandle reached Dallas and Fort Worth. Freezing temperatures were predicted for all of Texas, except the Rio Grande Valley.

Col. Lindbergh Testifying in Airmail Inquiry

when the administration bill was presented. Kelly said he would press his bill as a substitute for the administration measunre.

Declaring American commercial aviation the greatest in the world, Rickenbacker said it had been "dealt a terrific blow" by the cancellation and could not recover for years. He added: "The industry is dropping $1,000,000 a month now, which it can ill afford to lose."

Disagrees With Gen. Mitchell.

Declaring himself not "an expert on military aviation," the man who brought down 26 enemy planes, more than any other American flyer in the World War, also praised the country's military air service.

He said leadership in army and navy flying was "in favor of the United States." When Barbour informed him Gen. William B. Mitchell, retired, took an opposite view, Rickenbacker said: "I don't believe the General is up to date on his aeronautics."

Barbour asked if the proposed bill would not mean that the old companies would "be hog tied" in forcing to choose "between abandoning their American rights to bring suits or their rights to bid on new contracts," and Rickenbacker replied: "Yes, and that is not Americanism."

"I suggest that there should be a tribunal of men of unquestionable integrity, non-political, to determine if there was fraud or collusion in those contracts, and if guilty, I would have the strongest punishment meted out to all, including myself," he added.

Wants Contracts Restored.

Urging that an aviation commission be set up at once, Rickenbacker said: "The contracts should be returned to their original holders and there is no time for delay. The industry is disappearing like a sand dune on the Sahara Desert. Cancellation deprived the country of coast-to-coast 15-hour passenger and airmail service which would have been started within the next two months by Transcontinental & Western Air."

He said 41 planes of the type he flew across the country in 13 hours had been ordered for the service. Declaring this plane made 90 per cent of the trip without a human pilot touching the controls, Rickenbacker termed the plane the industry's answer to charges it had not developed aviation. The plane had an automatic pilot. He said England, Japan, Germany, Switzerland and other countries wanted to buy planes of this type.

Urges Pioneers' Rights.

Calling for the pound-mile rate of pay as provided in the Kelly bill, Rickenbacker said this would eliminate all necessity for Federal financial aid to the industry and enable new lines to start and operate profitably.

Rickenbacker said it would be a "serious mistake" if the present lines were permanently denied preemptive rights "on the routes they have pioneered at such great expense."

On the bill's proposed limitation of salaries of aviation company officials to not more than $17,500 a year, Rickenbacker said there were now only two executives in his company getting more than that, and only two other officials in the T. & W. A. getting more pay than the average pilot.

McKellar did not cross-examine Rickenbacker, but instead put on the stand W. A. Letson, president of the United States Airways. This line was part of a group putting in the lowest bid on the central transcontinental mail route. It was held by former Postmaster-General Brown not to be qualified and the contract went to T. & W. A., with which Rickenbacker is associated.

Letson said: "If Brown had wanted to punish us for something, he could not have done it better than by giving us that contract and forcing us to carry it out to the letter or forfeit our bonds. We could not have carried it out. I got a square deal on that angle."

The last witness was J. D. Condon, president of Pittsburgh Airways, who was associated with Letson in bidding for a Trans-Continental line against Transcontinental and Western Air. He approved turning regulations of aeronautics over to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The hearing was adjourned to Monday with the statement by McKellar that it would be concluded at noon that day.

LIQUOR BY DRINK IN KENTUCKY NOW DESPITE DRY LAW

Anyone Over 21 May Write Own Prescription Under New Statute.

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 17.—While Kentucky will not vote until November, 1935 on the repeal of its State prohibition law, the sale of liquor by the drink or package is permitted under a law signed today by Gov. Ruby Laffoon. The State prohibition law excepts medicinal liquors. The new act removes the tax of 50 cents a pint on medicinal whisky and allows the sale, under permit, of "any liquor containing any per cent of alcohol which is used as a curative, alleviative or palliative for bodily disorders or bodily pain, or as a tonic or stimulant for nervous or mental fatigue, or other necessities of the human body."

The permits for sale by the glass and in unbroken packages are yet to be printed, but whisky went on sale in several hotels in Louisville and other cities in the State today at 30 to 40 cents a drink, as the proprietors got permits by wire.

Under the new law physicians may prescribe without limit for bona fide patients and any person more than 21 years of age may write his own prescription for not more than a quart each seven days or a pint each four days. However, the applicant must write on the prescription that "I am not addicted to the habit of drink and have not within six months prior hereto, been convicted of drunkenness."

FOR FREE CHOICE OF MOVIES

President's Mother Asks for Parents' Aid in Getting Better Pictures

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Parents of the nation were urged today by Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, to co-operate with the Motion Picture Research Council in its campaign for better movies.

Mrs. Roosevelt, honorary vice-president of the council, said: "The council is seeking to give local communities the right to select the films they shall see, through the abolishment of block-booking. When this trade practice is changed, local exhibitors may select programs of high type from the entire output of the motion picture industry, instead of being forced to buy large blocks containing only a few good pictures, together with many others which are bad or indifferent. This will also permit the selection of special programs for children."

ICKES FOR 'POLITICAL HOLIDAY' TO PUSH RECOVERY PROGRAM

Secretary Says If Plan Fails, It Will Be Due to Failure of Business to Support It.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 17.—Secretary of Interior Ickes tonight urged a "political holiday," and said that, if the recovery program failed, it would be due to failure of business men to support it.

"Give the administration a fair trial to develop its policies," Ickes said in an address before University of Chicago alumni, "you have to have it for the next three years. Isn't it sound logic to support the administration even if you do not believe in all it does?"

"Business is inherently selfish," Ickes asserted. "It is concerned with profits and it does not have a social outlook.

"But we are not going back to the old order. We must adopt the kind of order which the President is trying to establish or God knows what will result. If we don't pull out of the woods on the road we are traveling, we may find ourselves mired in a morass."

Ickes also came to the defense of the "brain trust," saying "it is absurd to deride the Government for calling in the best brains for advice."

BOSS PENDERGAST DEFENDED BY FORMER SENATOR REED

"Entitled to Thanks of Kansas City," He Says, Deriding Youth Movement.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 17.—Defending the Democratic city administration and Boss T. J. Pendergast, former United States Senator James A. Reed made his first speech of the campaign for election of city officials here tonight. In a characteristic address he flayed the Youth Movement and Fusionists as another "alleged reform" effort.

"A great cry is being raised that this administration was put into office and has been controlled by a boss," Reed said. "I have lived in this city nearly 50 years. I have heard this cry of gangs and boss and North End ghost votes raised during the entire 50 years. I have seen alleged reform movements come and go and without exception they have never given this city a good administration.

"If Tom Pendergast is a city boss and has dictated government with the achievements to its credit which I have detailed, then he is entitled to the thanks of the people of Kansas City. Among the leaders and candidates of this Youth Movement I know of no one who justly can be classed as a public benefactor."

Peru and Chile Sign Treaties.

By the Associated Press.

LIMA, Peru, March 17.—Treaties expected to end half a century of dispute between Peru and Chile were signed tonight in the Foreign Office. One was the Peruvian-Chilean trade treaty which the Peruvian Cabinet passed on today and another was a special treaty relating to fulfillment of various clauses in a pact signed at Lima in 1929. The texts of the treaties were not made public.

MUSSOLINI SIGNS THREE PACTS WITH AUSTRIA, HUNGARY

Italy, Two Other Countries Agree to Consult One Another in Action Affecting All.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, March 17.—Italy, Austria and Hungary today signed three consultative pacts here. One agreement was political, the other two commercial.

In the first pact, each of signatories agreed to consult the others before taking any decisions on matters of interest to any or all of them. An official communique said the object of the other agreements was to aid in the development of economic exchangs among the three countries.

It also was learned that one of the commercial protocols was written in an effort to assure the economic independence of Austria, but diplomatic circles assumed that all three agreements, in effect, bind Austria to confer with Italy before making any move connected with her political independence, such as a union with Nazi Germany.

The pasts invite the collaboration of all other European nations in a program for peace and commercial co-operation.

Premier Benito Mussolini, Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria, and Premier Julius Gomboes of Hungary signed the agreements in the office of Mussolini in the Venezia palace late in the afternoon.

The two visiting statesmen arrived about 4:30 p. m., accompanied by their staffs. A final discussion of the agreements was held and then the Premiers signed with a gold pen. The ceremony was somewhat delayed because Dollfuss flew by plane to Naples in the morning for a view of that city.

Dollfuss, in an interview after the signing, said that the agreements were distinguished by their frankness, containing "no hidden menaces" of any kind and "literally avoid any antagonism toward other states."

The political accord will be carried out in conformity with existing treaties. The new pact says "the three governments will proceed to a common consultation every time any one of them consider it opportune."

One of the commercial pacts carries preferential duties for goods exchanged by the three countries and the experts left behind by Dollfus and Goemboes will work out the complete list. The commercial agreements have for their principal announced object the development of economic relations between Italy, Austria and Hungary on the basis of the outcome of the Stresa Conference last year and the Danubian memorandum presented by Italy last September.

Provisions stipulate that the governments will endeavor to decide before May 15 on a plan for helping agriculture in Hungary. It was also agreed that transit through the Adriatic ports would be stimulated as much as possible. This was in line with the plans for increased reciprocal trade.

A permanent commission of experts was provided for, and these experts will constantly work on economic matters affecting the three countries.

FRENCH COMMUNIST MAYOR GETS 5 YEARS ON WHALE DEAL

Sentenced for Misuse of Funds Also in Attempt to Promote Big Riviera Resort.

By the Associated Press.

AIX-EN-PROVENCE, France, March 17.—Esprit Pioch, Communist Mayor of Saintes Maries de La Mer, a fishing village of 598, was sentenced today to five years' imprisonment for misappropriating public funds.

The prosecution charged he and the local board spent 30,000,000 francs (now about $1,950,000) in Federal grants for buildings, on a sumptuous casino, in an attempt to make the community a Riviera resort.

The Pioch trouble started mostly on account of whales. The prosecution contended he paid bounties for 496 fish-killing whales, when 50 would be a record order, in trying to strengthen himself politically, while the receipts for the whales were much bigger than amounts actually paid out.

Seven associates of the Mayor received suspended sentences of one to five years. Nine others were acquitted.

Insull Freed by Greece, Sails Again on Freighter

the smoothest tricks of his career today. In control of a vessel, master of his destinies much as were ancient mariners who sailed out of the same port in Homeric times, he can dicker by wireless with authorities wherever he sails until he finds a place where he can be assured of safety from the American Government.

The Maiotis took on a large supply of fuel and provisions here, and it was assumed it could replenish her stocks without risking Insull's capture at any number of small ports on the Mediterranean.

Several Obstacles Ahead.

Insull said before sailing that he expected to land at Djibouti, a small, colorful port on the Gulf of Aden, in French Somaliland, entry to the barren sandy wastes and fertile valleys of Northern Africa. It is the regular port for Abyssinia, connecting with a railroad for that kingdom.

Only a few obstacles are in Insull's path. It was pointed out here that the lack of a French visa (he is without authenticated travel documents) might prevent him from landing at Djibouti. Too, there is a possibility of arrest if he tries to run the gauntlet of the Suez Canal. Djibouti is just the other side of the canal.

The Greek Government had said Friday it would turn Insull over to the United States, after ordering the vessel on which he fled returned to Piraeus. Today, however, with the ship in harbor, the Government took the attitude that only technical regulations had been overlooked in Insull's hasty departure.

"Insull is very cheerful and he sends you greetings," the Captain told reporters only an hour after Insull reportedly had suffered a new heart attack as the result of a shock upon seeing Greece again.

He had not been told that the Maiotis was returning and had assumed he was miles away from the land that sheltered him for nearly a year and a half against American extradition attempts.

Surprised at Return.

His return to Greece tonight was without his knowledge. He embarked secretly Wednesday aboard the Maiotis. He had expected then to head for the Red Sea.

Insull realized he had been returned only when he went on deck of the little craft to tell sailors, who were scrubbing the decks, not to allow his cabin to get damp.

The sight of this classic land appeared to have caused a seizure but he quickly recovered when his wife and two lawyers boarded the vessel and assured him the Greek Government would not hand him over to United States authorities.

He was told he could again start his trip tonight without going ashore.

A Breach of Gratitude.

Insull's secret departure Wednesday was said by authorities to have been a breach of gratitude for hospitality given him here and of regulations requiring the registration of aliens on departure. Also, it was said, the Maiotis, as a freighter, cannot carry passengers.

With the return, however, these laws were apparently satisfied, and the Government issued its order for his expulsion—one of many since his residence permit first expired in December.

While the Maiotis was approaching Greece, rumors thrived.

One newspaper said King Carol of Rumania had issued a decree granting Insull permission to live for five years in Galati, in Eastern Rumania.

In Bucharest, however, an official said Insull would not be welcomed in Rumania. Reports yesterday said the fugitive had been granted a Rumanian visa.

(The American State Department had no information on the Rumanian rumor, but it was said in Washington that under an American-Rumanian extradition treaty American officials would immediately seek his arrest there).

Mrs. Insull this afternoon was quoted as saying her husband would commit suicide if delivered to American authorities.

Mme. Coumoujoglou, wife of a Bagdad date merchant and a friend of Mrs. Insull, was charged today with making false statements to authorities. She was credited with having assisted in making arrangements for the escape.

She and Mrs. Insull were questioned for hours by police after Insull's flight was learned. Yesterday the owner of the Maiotis was questioned four hours, during which he told officers Mme. Coumoujoglou had made representations to him on behalf of Insull, indicating that his traveling papers were in order and that he was simply carrying out a Government ultimatum that he leave Greece by midnight of last Thursday.

Several morning newspapers, meanwhile, attacked the Government, claiming that Insull's actions would result only in increased pressure by the United States on Greece.

Insull slipped aboard the Greek freighter Maiotis Wednesday night disguised as a young man. His hair and mustache were dyed black. His clothes were those usually worn by a person much younger. His air was jaunty.

This was disclosed tonight by the captain of the port and a lawyer.

The fugitive was described as being prepared to sail the seven seas until he finds a refuge safe from American authorities—a place, that is, which has no extradition treaty with the United States.

U. S. Will Seek Insull No Matter Where He Goes.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The United States is prepared to take immediate action whenever Samuel Insull moves into the jurisdiction of some other nation.

No official attempts have been made to obtain custody of Insull since failure of two attempts to have him extradited. Regardless of where Insull goes from Greece, State Department officials feel they can arrange his return to the United States.

No definite action will be taken, it was said, until Insull actually lands somewhere outside Greek jurisdiction.

Martin Insull in Jail Hospital Awaiting U. S. Officers.

TORONTO, March 17. — In the ward room at the Don Jail Hospital, Martin J. Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate under order of extradition, today awaited the arrival of American authorities to return him to Illinois for trial on charges of fraud and embezzlement.

His prolonged fight against extradition lost, the white-haired prisoner was in jail for the third time since his arrest in Barrie late in the autumn of 1932.

"Insull is in the hospital, but is in excellent health," a jail attendant said. "All prisoners over 60 years old are moved into the hospital. However, he has no special privileges."

FIVE DEATHS IN PITTSBURGH ATTRIBUTED TO PSITTICOSIS

Those of Two Women Directly Ascribed to Parrot Fever; Cause Changed in Three Others.

PITTSBURGH, March 17.—Two persons have died here from psittacosis, otherwise known as parrot fever. Three other deaths also have been attributed to the same cause.

Psittacosis deaths reported to the Bureau of Vital Statistics were those of Miss Nora Conroy and Felix Wiseman. Katherine and Sophie Diemer, sisters, and Marie Shaughnessy also were believed to have died from the malady, but their death certificates read "pneumonia." Their attending physicians, however, said tonight they had "corrected" their diagnosis to psittacosis.

Meanwhile, city authorities were appealing to owners of parrots and similar birds to join the fight to curb the epidemic, believed to have been brought to Pittsburgh by a shipment of birds from Inglewood, Cal.

JOHNSON RECITES A POEM AT ULSTER IRISHMEN'S DINNER

Blue Eagle Chief Given a Hawthorn Walking Stick to Use on "Chiselers."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—The president of the Ulster Irishmen in New York awarded a medal to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson at a dinner here tonight. Johnson was three hours late in arriving from Washington for the affair in his and St. Patrick's honor.

The Irish-American diners cheered three times for "America's leading citizen of Ulster-Irish descent," and then heard John F. Hill, president of the Ulstermen, say "General, here's the medal."

The General said "thanks," and recited his favorite poem:

"Fill me a cup with 'dew of Killarney,' Purer than chastity, essence of fire;
Ogling a laugh at ye, beaded with blarney;
Breath of the peat-smoke, and blood of desire.
Fill me a cup, 'til I drink to St. Patrick;
Drink to the harp strings, the songs that beguile;
Drink to our emblem, the mystical shamrock,
Up with ye. Down it. The Emerald Isle."

The Irish gave him a hawthorn walking stick to use at his discretion on Blue Eagle "chiselers."

The Johnson family emigrated from Ulster more than a century ago.

SOVIET RESCUE GROUPS OFF TO SAVE 89 MAROONED ON ICE

Prof. George Yushakoff, Leader of Expedition, and Two Pilots Leave Seattle.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 17.—Prof. George Yushakoff, reported in command of a great Soviet expedition to rescue 89 persons marooned on icepacks off the Kamchatka coast, left here today on the steamship Alaska, with two Russian pilots who will attempt a rescue from the American side of the Bering Sea.

The Russians said they intended to go to Seward by boat, thence to Fairbanks by train, and to Nome by airplane.

T. A. Davies, head of the Russian Committee of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, said Yushakoff explained he was in charge of the Russian expedition, which includes two ice breakers and 17 planes, and also the expedition of two planes which will take off from Teller or Nome as soon as he and his companions, F. A. Levanzvsky and M. T. Sletneff, reach the North.

Davies said the Soviets named Yushakoff head of the expedition because he has spent four years in the Arctic on scientific missions. Yushakoff told Davies the Russians had extensive stores of gasoline and food at Anadyr.

SECOND DILLINGER PAL SENTENCED TO DIE FOR MURDER

Conviction of Charles Makley by Ohio Jury Follows That of Pierpont for Killing Sheriff.

NATIONAL GUARD WATCHES LIMA JAIL

Russell Clark, Third of Gangsters Accused in Murder Last October, Goes to Trial Monday.

By the Associated Press.

LIMA, O., March 17.—A jury today brought in a verdict of guilty against Charles Makley, the second member of the John Dillinger gang to be convicted of the murder of Sheriff Jess Sarber within two weeks.

Harry Pierpont was convicted a week ago as the trigger man in the killing of Sarber last October, when the gang freed John Dillinger from the same Allen County jail.

The jury today reported its findings, guilty without recommendation of mercy, obligating Judge E. E. Everett to impose death in the electric chair on Makley.

A third Dillinger gangster will face another jury Monday on the same charge—"Sleepy" Russell Clark. The State says he was with Makley and Pierpont when Dillinger was released by his gang. Sentencing of Pierpont and Makley was delayed until after Clark has been tried.

Gen. Harold M. Bush of the Ohio National Guard, who has directed the guard for the prison since the desperadoes were brought here for trial, said the conviction of Makley naturally added to the apprehension that the elusive Dillinger would try to release his gang members.

Gen. Bush said he considered the search for Dillinger near Port Huron, Mich., significant, adding that Port Huron was on the route he expected the jail-breaker to take on his way to Lima. Gen. Bush pointed out that Indiana roads are presumably blocked to members of the gang and that he expected any visit to the jail here by the gangsters would originate in some other place. Dillinger recently forced his way out of the Crown Point (Ind) jail with a wooden pistol.

Makley, on conviction, sat quietly by his counsel, restricted by handcuffs and leg chains. Two sisters, Mrs. Florence Makley Maus and Mrs. Mildred Makley Barthelmey of Eldorado, Kan., were much affected by the verdict. They had not seen their brother for 17 years before coming to Lima. They sobbed quietly and held his handcuffed hands.

"Don't worry," Makley told them. "Everything will be all right."

The jury took two ballots. The first was unanimous for a vote of guilty, but disagreed on whether mercy should be extended. After being locked up for the night the verdict of guilty without mercy was returned.

Sheriff Sarber, sitting in his shirt sleeves, his gun in his desk, was reading the paper in his office on the evening of last Oct. 12 when three men called to free Dillinger. Mrs. Sarber was sitting across from him, working a cross-word puzzle. Wilbur Sharp, a deputy, was playing with a dog.

The gunmen walked in, shot the Sheriff, beat him over the head, broke into the jail, locked Mrs. Sarber and Sharp in the bull pen and then walked out with Dillinger. Pierpont, Makley, Clark and Dillinger were arrested in Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 25.

TWO CHILDREN BEATEN TO DEATH; TWO INJURED

Mother Makes Discovery on Return From Store; Hammer Used; Husband Sought.

NEW YORK, March 16.—The wife of John McHale, 31-year-old Bronx CWA worker, returned home tonight to find their 4-year-old daughter, Helen, dead in her crib and their other three children, all girls, unconscious in beds nearby.

Police, summoned by her screams, took the three children to a hospital where one, Agnes, 18 months old, died a few hours later. The children had been beaten with a carpenters hammer. They immediately began a door-to-door search for McHale in the neighborhood.

McHale left the house early in the evening. He had quarreled with his wife, Margaret, after attending a St. Patrick's day dance. Mrs. McHale soon afterwards went to a store to get some milk for the children. She discovered the attack on her return.

Mrs. McHale told police that her husband had been treated for alcoholic psychosis about two months ago.

MRS. ROOSEVELT BACK FROM 6000-MILE TRIP

Met at Station by President on Their Twenty-ninth Wedding Anniversary.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Returning today from more than 6000 miles of flying, auto and train travel, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was met at the station by President Roosevelt. Today was their twenty-ninth wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Roosevelt stepped into the White House car and was whirled away to a two-day family celebration.

An anniversary dinner was on tonight's program with the President's mother, Mr James Roosevelt of Hyde Park, N. Y., and his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Delano as guests. Tomorrow's luncheon is to be an affair for President and Mrs. Roosevelt and also their son, John, who will belatedly celebrate his eighteenth birthday anniversary, which was on March 13.

The President's mother already was at the White House, and John is expected from Groton School tomorrow. Their daughter, Anna Dall, and her two children, "Sistie" and "Buzzie," in residence at the White House, complete the family party.

Mrs. Roosevelt, whose pathway all the way to Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and back again was strewn with flowers, returned to find the floral shower continuing as wedding anniversary gifts.

Anna Eleanor Roosevelt was a bride who cherished the most significant tokens of her marriage on down through the years. On a slender chain about her neck, under whatever blouse or dress she happens to be wearing, she has worn for more than 29 years her husband's engagement gift, a pendant bearing the Roosevelt family crest that belonged to both of them, and their intertwined initials.

And daily since her wedding day, even with evening gowns, she has worn the now old-fashioned chatelaine watch that was "gift of the groom."

HOUSE RESTAURANT RUSHED BY NEGROES

Students Resent Dismissal of Waiter for Serving One of Their Race.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Thirty Negroes, Howard University students, tried for an hour today to obtain admittance to the House restaurant. One struck at a peacemaker of his own race and was arrested.

Aroused by the discharge yesterday of Harold Covington, Howard student, as part-time waiter in the public dining room, for serving a reporter of the Afro-American, Negro newspaper, the students swept down on the eating place. Capitol policemen armed with nightsticks were on guard but were under orders from Sergeant-at-Arms Kenneth Romney that there be no fighting.

The students approached one of the restaurant doors in flying-wedge formation. They were met by restaurant manager, P. H. Johnson, with a policeman on either side of him.

"Hold on there," Johnson said, "I told you yesterday you couldn't come in here."

Members of the House, capitol employes and newspaper men by this time filled every available inch of the passageway not already occupied by police and the students.

Bracing themselves against the steady push of the police, who brandished their sticks, without striking, the Negroes finally were shunted to a side entrance, where they made a last stand by attempting to jam the big revolving glass door.

Later the students marched in single file back and forth in front of the House restaurant. The demonstration ended when Covington attempted to strike Harry Parker, Negro messenger of the Ways and Means Committee, who urged the Negroes to disband peaceably. Police arrested Covington, who gave bond.

THREE MEN GET 8-YEAR TERMS FOR STOLEN BOND DEAL

Ex-President and Attorney of San Antonio, Tex., Bank and Wood River Bookmaker Sentenced.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 17.—Z. D. Bonner, former president of the Commercial National Bank here, and John H. Cunningham, former attorney for the bank, today were sentenced to eight years in Federal prison and fined $10,000 in United States District Court by Judge R. J. McMillan on charges growing out of the theft of Government bonds in New York and Chicago. The charges on which they were found guilty late yesterday were embezzlement, misapplication of bank's funds and making false entries in the bank's books.

June B. Morrow, found guilty of aiding Bonner, received a like sentence and fine.

It was charged the defendants purchased more than $50,000 of stolen bonds.

Harry N. Royster, Tulsa, Ok., who pleaded nol contendere and was the Government's chief witness, was sentenced to serve three years and pay a fine of $5000.

On instructions of the Court the jury returned verdicts of not guilty against Jimmie Diaze, alias Kimmie Degrassi, and Sol Stern. Diaze, however, must face charges in Chicago where he is under indictment in connection with the theft of bonds.

Attorneys for the defense said they would expedite appeals.

Morrow, a Wood River bookmaker, was arrested last Sept. 5 at the Fairmount Jockey Club by Texas Rangers, St. Louis detectives and Illinois State Highway patrolmen, following a two weeks' search for him, in and around St. Louis. He was hustled to Texas by airline the same day, and later, released on bond.

MRS. CHARLOTTE LEIGHTON DIES AT 67 IN NEW YORK

She Was Native of St. Louis and Widow of the Engineer and Shipbuilder.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Mrs. Charlotte Kayser Leighton, widow of George Bridge Leighton, engineer and shipbuilder, died today after a long illness. She was 67 years old.

Mrs. Leighton was born in St. Louis, the daughter of Henry Kayser, a prominent engineer, who came to the United States from Germany in 1849 and later was associated with Gen. Robert E. Lee.

She was married at St. Louis in 1893 after Mr. Leighton had left Los Angeles, where he had been president of the Los Angeles Terminal Railroad. He subsequently participated in the merger of the American Steel Foundries and was a director in that company. During the World War he was president of the Lone Star Shipbuilding Co. The Leightons lived in Boston for many years.

Mrs. Leighton is survived by three sons, George Eliot, Henry Kayser and John Langdon Leighton, and two sisters, Mrs. Daniel Catlin and Mrs. Ephron Catlin of St. Louis.

TRAIN KILLS BOY; BROTHER LIES FLAT, IS NOT HURT

Two Waiting for Crew Which Threw Them Food Each Day at Greenup, Ky.

By the Associated Press.

GREENUP, Ky., March 17.—Albert Stapleton, 11 years old, is dead, killed by a train while waiting for food members of its crew tossed to him each day as they sped past his home.

Albert and his brother George, 12, were playing while waiting for their favorite train. A slow freight came by and they held the brushy ends of worn-out brooms on the rails so the wheels would pass over them. So interested were the boys that they failed to see the other train approaching until the whistle of the freight shrieked. George dropped to the roadbed between the rails. Albert didn't. He was killed instantly. George was uninjured. Albert's mother showed the Coroner the wrapping from a Christmas package. It bore the words: "From Engineer T. J. Wesley." Wesley was at the throttle of the train which killed Albert.

PUT HER $325,000 IN TRUST, NOW CAN'T SPEND ANY OF IT

Daughter-in-Law of Poet Browning Denied Use by Court on Changing Mode of Life.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Mrs. Fannie Coddington Browning, daughter-in-law of Robert Browning, the poet, was forbidden to spend the principal of her own fortune of $325,000, in a Supreme Court decision handed down today in Mineola. It is in an irrevocable trust fund, which she herself created, the court decided.

She established the fund on Feb. 7, 1931, but, since then, the Court action disclosed, she has changed her mode of living.

Mrs. Browning, who is 77 years old and makes her home in London, began an action here last year against the trustees to get control of the principal. The trustees demanded instruction from the Court.

Justice Henry G. Wenzel said that recently, on meeting Miss Dorothy Ivatt, "a radiographer," Mrs. Browning had dismissed her companion of 20 years, Miss Louise Vincent, a plumber's daughter, and had engaged Miss Ivatt in her stead. The reason for Miss Vincent's dismissal was that Miss Ivatt's social position forbade her living with a plumber's daughter.

The court declared it was not aware a plumber's daughter was of lower caste than a "radiographer." Of Mrs. Browning, the Judge decided, "She is dominated by the will and personality of another." Mrs. Browning claimed a trustee had not told her the trust deed was irrevocable.

FIRE CAPTAIN GLEASON'S BODY IS DISINTERRED

Cause of Death in 1932 Being Investigated at Request of Daughter.

The body of Fire Captain William Gleason, who died in 1932, was disinterred by representatives of Coroner Furlong's office yesterday as part of an investigation of the cause of death.

Dr. William J. Doyle, who examined the body and removed portions of the vital organs for chemical examination, reported to the Coroner that he found indications of chronic heart disease and nephritis.

Coroner Furlong said that Dr. Michael Somogyi, head of the chemistry laboratory at Jewish Hospital, had withdrawn from the case and that he would name another chemist to examine the vital organs.

The body was exhumed at the request of a daughter of Captain Gleason by his first wife, who has been at odds with her father's second wife since the funeral. The daughter, Mrs. Katherine Riley, and two brothers, William and Philip Gleason, have filed suit to contest their father's will, under which a small estate was left to the widow.

Woman, Injured in Fall, Dies.

Mrs. Mary Sherwood, 82 years old, 5953 Cates avenue, died yesterday at Deaconess Hospital from a hip injury suffered Feb. 12, when she fell down stairs at her home. She lived at the Cates avenue address with her husband, Thomas, and a son, Arthur, manager of the Morton Salt Co.

EX-POLICEMAN SKOW PAROLED IN SHOOTING OF BOY

Order Issued by Circuit Judge Mulloy Over Protest of Assistant County Prosecutor Wolfe.

William Skow, former Brentwood policeman who shot two youths because they failed to stop at his order, was paroled yesterday from serving the six-month jail sentence which a Clayton jury assessed against him last year for the second shooting. In the first case he was fined $100. His wife paid the fine.

Circuit Judge Jerry Mulloy, who issued the parole over the protest of Associate Prosecuting Attorney John J. Wolfe, told the Post-Dispatch' "I have nothing to say," when questioned about the parole order.

Wolfe said the judge informed him yesterday morning that he was going to parole Skow. "I told him," the prosecutor said, "that the Prosecuting Attorney's office opposed granting a parole from the bench to a man who had been convicted of a felony by a jury and the judge replied, 'Well, I'm going to parole him anyway.'"

Convicted Last May 16.

Skow was convicted of assault last May 16 for shooting Levi Graham, 18-year-old Negro of Webster Groves, in the back when Graham failed to stop. The youth, who recovered, said he did not hear Skow order him to halt. Skow was released on $1000 appeal bond, but failed to perfect the appeal and it was dismissed recently by the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

On Oct. 24, 1926, Skow, then a deputy constable, shot and seriously wounded Austin Kaercher, Washington University student, in the back while pursuing through Brentwood an automobile in which Kaercher was a passenger. He was fined $100 on June 4, 1927, and later ousted from the force of George Roth, then constable of Central Township. His wife paid the fine Oct. 28, 1927.

$10,000 Verdict for Kaercher.

On July 17, 1931, Skow was appointed a motorcycle policeman in Brentwood and on Aug. 14, 1932, shot Graham. He was "indefinitely suspended" from the force but a week later was reinstated. Then when he was indicted for shooting Graham, he was suspended again and was again reinstated Oct. 11, 1932, eight days after a jury had returned a $10,000 verdict in favor of Kaercher, arising out of the shooting.

Kaercher, who testified that as a result of the wound, he was forced to live in Tucson, Ariz., because of a lung ailment, sued Roth on his bond and it was against Roth and the bonding company that the verdict was returned.

After the jury found Skow guilty of felonious wounding in the Graham shooting on May 16, Judge Mulloy passed sentence May 27 and then released Skow on bond.

NEGRO SHOOTS ANOTHER, SELF IN POLICY GAME HOLDUP

He Is Wounded When Arm Is Knocked Down by Player After He Lines Up 20.

A Negro who attempted to hold up players in a policy game at 2719 Stoddard street, last night, shot himself in the left thigh after wounding one of the players. Others overpowered him and he was arrested. He said he was Joseph Alexander, 1119A North Twenty-second street.

Concealing his face with a handkerchief, Alexander forced the 20 Negroes to line up against a wall. One of them moved toward him and he fired a shot into the floor and another into the crowd, wounding Richard Armstrong, 3843 Windsor place, in the right hand.

As several others rushed him, he fired again, but his arm was knocked down, the bullet entering his thigh.

OFFICIAL CUTS THROAT OVER STAVISKY CASE

Emile Blanchard, Alleged Accomplice, Is Fourth to Attempt Suicide.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 17.—Emile Blanchard, a suspended official in the Ministry of Agriculture, accused of complicity in the $40,000,000 Stavisky swindle, attempted suicide by cutting his throat today. His is the fourth attempted suicide in the Stavisky scandal.

Blanchard was found by troops on the rifle range at Fontainebleau. In a hospital he was later notified by a magistrate that he was charged with swindling and complicity in swindling in connection with his affiliations with Serge Stavisky, the founder of the Bayonne pawnshop, who killed himself at Chamonix when police tried to arrest him. It was charged unofficially that Stavisky was killed to keep him from testifying. Stavisky was under police charges in 1926 which were never pressed and in the meantime was allowed to operate the Bayonne pawnshop. He issued fraudulent bonds of the pawnshop for $40,000,000 in excess of the legal limit.

Blanchard was suspended when it was revealed he was paid to serve on two directorates of companies organized by Stavisky. He had twice before tried to kill himself.

Those who have attempted suicide are Mlle. Yvonne Taris, a witness; Raymond Huber, a lawyer; Henri Hurlaux, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney of the Court of Appeals.

The post of chief of Paris police was filled tonight for the second time within a month, the Cabinet appointing Roger Langeron to succeed Bonnefoy Sibour, who took charge of the police Feb. 6 at the time Jean Chiappe was removed. By his own request, Sibour will go back to his old job as prefect of the Department of the Seine et Oise.

FRANCE REJECTS LATEST GERMAN ARMS PROPOSALS

Demands as Condition for Cut in Forces Guarantees of Security, Chiefly From England.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 17.—France tonight rejected the latest German proposals for disarmament and made it clear, in a note to Great Britain, that she refused to disarm in the face of "German rearmament."

The French communication, which was unanimously approved by the Cabinet and will be presented in London Monday, demanded as a condition for a reduction in French forces guarantees of security, chiefly from England.

That Germany was ready to "contract to the farthest conceivable limit and in no case make an appeal for force," was set forth in the German disarmament message to France. It was published here tonight.

This note emphasized that Germany could no longer accept the armaments level fixed in the post-war Versailles treaty and declared that Great Britain and Italy had recognized this point.

French reaction to Chancellor Hitler's memorandum brought forth the immediate contention here that there had been no change whatever in the German arms attitude and that no progress had been made in months of negotiations.

German Plea for Bigger Army.

The German plea for an army bigger than that sanctioned by the Versailles pact and corresponding equipment was rejected by French statesmen, who took the position that its acceptance by France would be an official acknowledgment that the Treaty of Versailles was no longer in force.

Officials declared that, while Germany accepted "in principle" a project for arms control and supervision, she left the manner and methods of such a practice open for future discussion, whereas France desired the point settled immediately.

The German contention that Nazi storm troopers are not soldiers and should not be counted as such met strong opposition in Government quarters, where is was contended that semi-official armed forces must be counted as regular soldiers in any disarmament agreement.

The French further contend that the disarmament problem must be settled in the League of Nations and cannot be settled by agreement among individual countries.

French Note to Britain.

The French note to Britain—a reply to a recent British communication—invited the London government to furnish adequate guarantees as a prerequisite to an arms convention.

The German message said Berlin was willing to accept British and Italian proposals as a basis for further negotiations and said discussions appeared sufficiently advanced to lead to one of two solutions:

First, a short-length agreement, say of five years, in which strongly armed powers would agree to keep their armaments at the present level, or,

Second, a long term accord in which the powers would accept a reduction of the present arms level.

The memorandum, which was mild in tone, made no specific suggestions regarding the amount of armament Germany wants.

Regarding the international control plan, the note stated that Germany was willing to accept the project on a basis of "entire parity with all countries."

Once an agreement is reached on the number of effectives and war materials, the German note added, "control would regulate itself," leaving only "the technical method of applying the control, which should encounter no difficulty and should be left for later discussion."

League Circles at Geneva Find German Note "Encouraging."

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, March 17.—League of Nations circles found "very encouraging" today Germany's assurances, given France in an arms note, that she would stand by the Locarno post-war pact.

The point was considered the fundamental tenet in the Reich's communication, which also proposed a non-aggression treaty with France with no thought of weakening the Locarno agreement, by which Great Britain and Italy stand sponsors for peace along the Rhine.

Germany's vague phrase that she would consult with other powers concerning her future relations with the League gave less satisfaction, however, in League quarters. The impression grew that, if Germany signed a disarmament convention, she would seek to force certain conditions as the price of her return to the League.

An affirmation was made in the note that the Hitler Government sought only juridical and technical changes in the Locarno pact, whose functioning closely is linked with the League Council.

UNABLE TO IDENTIFY TWO SUSPECTS IN BANK ROBBERY

Employes of Atchison (Kan.) Depository Fail to Say St. Louis Men Had Part in Holdup.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 17.—Employes of the Exchange National Bank at Atchison, Kan., were unable to identify two suspects in the holdup last Monday when the men were brought before them in the police showup room here today. The men are Lawrence Callanan and Joseph Degnan, both of St. Louis.

Charged in warrants with participation in the $21,500 robbery of the bank at Atchison, Callahan, a former convict, and Degnan were arrested here Thursday night and turned over to State highway police to be taken to St. Joseph. They denied they were acquainted or had any part in the holdup. Callanan, an unemployed chauffeur, was arrested at his home, 6512 Stratford avenue, University City. Degnan, 26-year-old bricklayer, was taken into custody at his home, 6239 Gambleton place.

Four men robbed the bank and fled in an automobile after wounding Chief of Police Linville and a bank employe.

PRINCIPIA'S ART DIRECTOR OPENS EXHIBIT OF HIS WORK

Rudolph Tandler Display at Y. M. H. A. Includes Mural Called "Aspiring Man."

Paintings by Rudolph Tandler, art director of The Principia, are on exhibition today at the Y. M. H. A., Union boulevard and Enright avenue, where they will remain for a month.

In the exhibition are 21 examples of the recent work of the artist who came to St. Louis about two years ago from the art colony at Woodstock, N. Y. There are landscapes, portraits, still lifes, and one study in abstraction.

Outstanding in the exhibition is a large symbolic study for a mural which the artist calls "Aspiring Man." Through the figures of a many-handed personification of lust, and of a rising figure typifying the human race is depicted striving of man toward the perfection of his nature.

ROOSEVELT IS FOR FEDERAL LOANS TO PRIVATE INDUSTRY

Favors 5-Year Credit Direct or Through Banks That Would Guarantee 20 Pct. of It.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—A plan, approved by President Roosevelt, to extend long-term Government credit to private industry was submitted to congressional leaders today with word that on Monday President Roosevelt would formally recommend its enactment.

Regional banks would be set up in each Federal Reserve District, capitalized by the Government at $140,000,000, to make loans to industry directly or through banks, with the latter guaranteeing 20 per cent of them.

Gov. Black of the Federal Reserve Board submitted the plan in tentative form today to Chairmen Fletcher and Steagall of the Senate and House banking committees.

Fletcher said Black was confident $300,000,000 could be "pumped into industry" almost immediately under the plan. It could be put into operation, he added, as soon as Congress gave the word. Fletcher told newspaper men that Black predicted the proposal would start many new industries which are only awaiting a supply of credit and would give "a lot of new employment."

The original capital for the banks would be furnished by the Treasury, Fletcher said, out of the profits from gold devaluation. The banks would have authority, however, to issue debentures to obtain additional capital.

It was to await the submission of this plan, that the Senate committee earlier in the day held up action on the private credit plan submitted by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Fletcher announced the RFC and Federal Reserve proposals would be considered Wednesday and hearings probably would be held on the plans for loans to industry.

The Senate committee also held up action on the RFC plan to finance foreign trade, but approved the remainder of the corporation's recommendations for extending its power in other directions, including authority to compromise claims to speed the reorganization of railroads.

Despite a two-hour session with Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the committee decided to make two bills out of the omnibus measure submitted by the RFC Thursday, approving the non-controversial items in one, and leaving the others for future consideration in another.

Jones contended there was no conflict between his plan and that of the Reserve Board for loans to industry, and that it was only a clarification of the present power of the RFC.

SAUSAGE MAKER DENIES UNSANITARY PRACTICES

Frank Kauffmann Has Filed Suit to Prevent License Being Revoked.

Frank Kauffmann, sausage manufacturer at 719 North Cardinal avenue, yesterday denied that conditions in his plant were unsanitary, or that he had ever admitted using sodium sulphate in his products.

Kauffmann has a suit pending in which he seeks to enjoin the Board of Public Service from enforcing its ruling revoking his license to make sausage. The board ordered his license revoked Friday after John S. Koen, food inspector for the Health Department, testified that Kauffmann's plant was unsanitary and that he had used the sodium sulphate in preparing sausage.

The substance is a chemical which gives stale meat a fresh appearance. Kaufmann said it could be used also as a preservative.

COURT SUSTAINS DEMURRER TO SUIT FOR ALLEGED ATTACK

Says Reported Molesting of Woman Was Not in Line of Collector's Work.

A demurrer in favor of the Household Finance Corporation, with offices in the Ambassador Building, in the $10,000 damage suit of Mrs. George J. Rohrmoser of Festus, Mo., was sustained Friday by Circuit Judge Williams.

The demurrer was filed after plaintiff's evidence had been submitted to a jury. Following the court's action, her counsel's motion for a non-suit, was granted.

Mrs. Rohrmoser alleged that a man employed by the corporation attacked her two years ago when he called at her home, then at 5611 Enright avenue, to collect a bill for the firm. She said he asked her who was paying her bills, telling her he knew plenty of men who would be willing to pay them for her, and then he grabbed her and tore her dress.

Judge Williams ruled that the employe was not acting within the field of his work when he committee the alleged assault. The employe had been named as a co-defendant in the action, but Mrs. Rohrmoser dismissed the case as to him because he was not served with summons before the trial, although she identified him in court.

MAYS SAW NO NEED TO INSURE OFFICE BUILDING

Strength of Continental Life Structure Makes Fire Policies Useless, He Says.

The type of contruction and strength of the home office building of the Continental Life Insurance Co. at 3615 Olive street makes both fire and tornado insurance a useless expenditure, Ed Mays, president of the company, testified yesterday in Circuit Judge Ryan's Court. He is defending the suit of State Insurance Commissioner O'Malley to dissolve the company on grounds of mismanagement and insolvency.

Not only did the directors vote to carry no insurance on the building, valued by Mays at $2,176,000, but the contents, likewise, are without insurance, the president stated.

Fire and tornado insurance, he explained, would cost $10,000 for a three-year premium for 80 per cent coverage on the building. Mays described the fireproof construction and stated that hose lines, capable of reaching any room were provided on each floor.

Further, he said, engineers declared the structure was capable of resisting any tornado recorded by a weather bureau anywhere.

Charging discrimination by the State Insurance Department in its valuation of the company's bonds, Theodore Rassieur, defense counsel, attempted unsuccessfully to introduce in evidence, annual reports of two other insurance companies in which bonds were appraised according to values made by a convention of State insurance commissioners.

Powell B. McHaney and Albert Ridge, attorneys for the Insurance Department, objected on the ground that Missouri statutes provided that in determining insolvency of a company, the market value must be placed on bonds in default as to principal and interest.

They contended the comparison with Continental Life unfounded since solvency of the other companies was not questioned and that other companies were entitled to the use of convention values on the assumption that they were meeting current obligations and would remain in business until economic conditions improved and bond prices rose.

McHaney questioned Ralph Howard, assistant secretary of the company as to an $850,000 mortgage held by the Continental Life on the Melbourne Hotel, Grand and Lindell boulevards, contending the company improperly credited itself with a $40,000 bonus.

Howard said the company purchased the $850,000 mortgage maturing in 1942 for $810,000, crediting its bonus account with $40,000. McHaney claims the company took credit for the bonus before it was realized, insisting that the mortgage was worth only the price paid. The mortgage, Howard testified, has been reduced to $685,000 by principal payments.

The defense is expected to finish with the last of its witnesses Monday. Yesterday was the thirty-eighth day of the trial.

Rebuttal witnesses for the Insurance Department will include Commissioner O'Malley.

NRA AND NEW DEAL "GREAT ADVENTURES"

Editor of Brooklyn Eagle Replies to Hearst's Complaint on Government Activities.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Cleveland Rodgers, editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, challenged critics of "Government interference in business" in an address tonight and described the NRA and "New Deal" as "our greatest adventures in mutual co-operation for the common good."

"When a person who has been seriously ill becomes irritable," he said, "we know he is beginning to get well. Business was sick a year ago. It was not complaining of Government interference then. It was crying for help.

"Business is getting better today but to suggest that any helpful power or authority of Government should remain unused, while 10,000,000 people are unemployed and are in distress, is like an echo from the last national campaign when Mr. Hoover was trying to justify a policy of do-nothingism that brought us to the brink of disaster."

Rodgers spoke on a radio hookup in reply to an address one week ago by William Randolph Hearst, newspaper publisher, who said NRA and Government interference "are perhaps actually retarding recovery."

Challenge to Hearst.

As a "challenge" to the Hearst statements, Rodgers said:

"What business has been sunk by the NRA? What industry or business has been retarded? Nothing but a generalization was offered. . . .

"Mr. Hearst made a vigorous attack on the whole idea of Government interference in business . . . but not once did he plunge into the icy waters of basic economics."

Industry reached "the bottom of the ditch after the financial collapse of 1929," Rodgers said, "by trying to make labor pay for the mistakes of management and government. When business fell off, wages were slashed to reduce overhead. . . . In this way we achieved the ironic feat of turning a period of overproduction into one of mass destitution.

"Surely American industry and business have learned by this time that labor is needed not merely to produce goods but also to consume them. . . .

"American business genius . . . has mastered the intricate problems of production. But it has not mastered the problem of selling all it can produce.

Need of Old Yankee Custom.

"The NRA and other measures initiated by President Roosevelt represent the first serious effort we have made to bring production and consumption into balance. But it is necessary not only to increase buying power at home—we must expand our markets abroad. . . .

"We cannot hope to sell more abroad unless we revive the good old Yankee custom of swapping. We must exchange more American goods for European goods. . . . This solution of our problem is rejected by Mr. Hearst even more emphatically than he deprecates the effort to increase purchasing power at home by increasing wages. . . .

"Secretary Wallace has recently told us what a 'buy American' policy, carried to its logical conclusion, would mean . . . the permanent abandonment of from 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 acres of farm land and perhaps the licensing of farms. This would be Government interference with a vengeance. . . .

Employe and Employer.

"NRA has a dual task. One is to hasten recovery; the other is to create a sound foundation for a new economic life. . . . Most employers are doing what they can. Many may be financially unable to add to production costs at this time. But failure to co-operate out of resentment over Government interference is another matter."

Referring to concern over labor control under NRA codes, Rodgers said "President Roosevelt and the law itself should make it clear that organized labor is not to be given the power of life or death over industry and business. This is implied but it should be put into plain words that every employer and every union organizer can understand."

SUIT OVER KOTANY ESTATE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Mrs. Ruth Gregg Farrar, Niece of Economist's Wife, Brought Action Against Other Heirs.

The suit of Mrs. Ruth Gregg Farrar of Price road, St. Louis County, against other heirs of Dr. Ludwig Kotany, to enforce an agreement alleged to have been made in 1913 between him and his wife regarding distribution of their property after their death, has been settled out of court, it became known yesterday with dismissal of the suit in Circuit Judge Ryan's court.

Dr. Kotany, an economist and former treasurer of Washington University, died in 1930, leaving $132,000 in specific bequests and the residue, then estimated at $243,000, in equal shares of Mrs. Farrar, his wife's niece, and to another niece, Mrs. Orian E. Smith of Los Angeles.

The agreement between Dr. Kotany and his wife, according to Mrs. Farrar's suit, provided that Mrs. Kotany was to leave all her property—worth about $150,000—to him, and that in return he would leave that amount to Mrs. Farrar and Mrs. Smith.

Mrs. Kotany died in 1919, leaving her estate to her husband. His intention, in making the nieces residuary heirs, was to carry out his part of the agreement, the petition states, but the value of the estate depreciated so greatly since his death that there was only enough to pay the specific bequests. Mrs. Farrar's petition asked that her share of her aunt's estate be turned over to her.

TALKING PICTURES TIRING, MARY PICKFORD ASSERTS

"Like Lip Rouge on the Venus de Milo," Movie Actress Says.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Mary Pickford said today that talking pictures are tiring and are like "lip rouge on the Venus de Milo."

"There is too much talking in the films today," she told the association of foreign press correspondents at a luncheon given in her honor. "We lost the world market when we began to speak. I shall weep bitterly if Charlie Chaplin speaks in his next film, for I shall know that means the death of silent pictures."

Miss Pickford said she voiced a humble opinion "because I love the industry." Her subject was "the Future of Motion Pictures."

"We leave nothing for the spectator to do," she continued. "He should have an integral part. I hope my next film will be understandable without one spoken word. Speech should be used only to highlight the dramatic moments."

Strike leaders ordered several members of the union to remain at the plant for 24 hours to watch batches of chemicals in process of manufacture, to prevent possible explosions.

TWO IN HAGER EXTORTION PLOT BROUGHT TO ST. LOUIS

Filipinos Arrested in New Orleans Are Turned Over to U. S. Marshal Fahey.

Manuel C. Lopez and Andrew Haime, arrested in New Orleans last week on charges of attempted extortion against Louis A. Hager Jr., son-in-law of the late August A. Busch, were brought here yesterday in the custody of deputy marshals and turned over to United States Marshal Fahey.

They were lodged in City Jail, where George Cubano, implicated by them in the extortion plot, was returned yesterday in default of $25,000 bond fixed for him by United States Commissioner Burke. Lopez and Haime were unable to raise $5000 bond set for them in New Orleans last week.

Lopez and Haime have confessed their part in the extortion plot and of sending letters to Hager demanding $5000 to dissuade a supposed gang from kidnaping Hager's 3-year-old son, Louis A. Hager III, for $100,000 ransom. Lopez formerly was employed as chauffeur by Hager. All three are native Filipinos.

EQUALIZATION BOARD'S TAX POWER IS UPHELD

U. S. Court of Appeals Rules It Has Right to Raise Railroad Assessment.

The State Board of Equalization has authority, under the Constitution, to increase tax assessment valuations, particularly those of railroads, the United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday in a test case brought by the Kansas City Southern Railroad.

In 1932 the board increased valuations of railroads 10 per cent over those established by the State Tax Commission. The Kansas City Southern, whose valuation was increased from $6,917,997 to $7,529,203, obtained an injunction from Federal Judge Reeves in Kansas City, prohibiting the State from collecting the extra tax.

In its decision, the Court of Appeals reversed Judge Reeves, and remanded the case for trial on the other issues presented by the railroad, which had asked the Court to determine a reasonable valuation of its property.

The appellate court did not pass on many of the points raised in the litigation, observing that its decision was based solely on the right of the Board of Equalization to increase taxes, although the original power to fix assessments lies with the State Tax Commission.

The Governor, State Auditor, Secretary of State, State Treasurer and Attorney-General comprise the Board of Equalization.

Actor Accused of Nonsupport.

LOS ANGELES, March 17.—Charles Morton, actor, was arrested today on a warrant charging failure to provide for his former wife, Lya Lys, dancer, and their two-year-old daughter, Joyce. Their Mexican marriage was annulled in April, 1932.

ble in an automobile strike. A Government agency within the last few days has compiled, for the information of the industry and the administration, data on the close interrelation of automobile industry to other basic industries.

Steel, one of the greatest of the nation's industries, is vitally dependent on the welfare of automobile manufacturing, 17.1 of all steel production going to the motor car factories.

The list shows that 80.4 per cent of rubber production goes into the automobile trade, 53 per cent of the upholstery leather production and 43 per cent of plate glass, with a dozen other industries concerned in varying degrees.

The 60,000 to 70,000 persons American Federation of Labor men estimate would be involved in an automobile strike—if one comes—would be only a portion of the number of workers involved directly and indirectly in the industry itself. Exclusive of Ford Co. employes, estimates of the number of automobile factory workers range around 186,000.

President Green's Statement of Labor's Side of Auto Controversy.

Green's statement follows:

"The question as to whether a strike in the automobile industry involving more than 100,000 workers, shall or shall not occur on Wednesday morning, March 21, rests with the automobile manufacturers. Their decision will decide the question.

"The cause of the strike is directly traceable to the attempt of the automobile manufacturers to impose company unions upon their workers and to force them to accept them.

"The attempt to force the company unions upon automobile workers followed the enactment of the National Recovery Act.

"The workers, believing that Section 7-A conferred upon them the right to organize without interference, restraint or coercion and to be represented in negotiations with employers by representatives of their own choosing, refused to accept the company union presented by the employers to them with a demand that they vote to accept it at an election fixed by the employers.

"They believed that Section 7-A of the National Recovery Act conferred upon them freedom of choice in self-organization and that it meant just what it said, that they were free in the fullest sense of that term, to establish their own union.

"The automobile workers ask first that they be permitted to vote in a secret ballot upon the selection of representatives of their own choosing and upon the question of what form of organization shall be the agency through which they shall negotiate with their employers and, second, that automobile workers who have been discharged, dismissed and discriminated against because they became a member of a trade union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor shall be returned to their employment.

"It is difficult to understand now the automobile manufacturers can defend themselves at the bar of public opinion if they refuse to concede these requests of their employes.

"The American Federation of Labor, conscious of its responsibility, is exercising every effort possible to prevent a strike and to bring about a settlement of the controversy existing between automobile manufacturers and their employes upon a fair and just basis.

"We shall do all we can to avert the strike because we do not wish to see the President's recovery program hindered or halted by an industrial disturbance of such far-reaching proportnons.

"The American Federation of Labor will await with increasing interest the decision of the Automobile Chamber of Commerce, a self-constituted organization of automobile manufacturers, as to whether or not there shall be peace or industrial strife and struggle in the automobile industry."

"Pay-Cut Justification Gone," Declare Union Railway Men.

The railway union chiefs say that on March 5 President Roosevelt asserted the immediate task of industry was to re-employ more people at once and that "reductions in hours coupled with a decrease in weekly wages will do no good for it amounts only to a forced contribution to unemployment relief by the classes less able to bear it."

"In response to what we then considered an unjustified demand by railway managements," the statement adds, "we consented in January, 1932, to this 10 per cent reduction from the earnings of the men and women we represent.

"What shadow of justification there was for this deduction at the low point of the depression has now disappeared and rising railway traffic, increasing gross and net revenues, together with rising prices, at once require and permit the restoration of basic rates of pay.

Payment to Bondholders.

"Your request would in effect continue this deduction in the interest of strengthening the position of the railway bondholders.

"But the lean years of the depression found interest payments to these bondholders steadily increasing, rising in the worst years of the slump to the highest levels ever attained.

"The record shows an increase in interest payments from $511,000,000 in 1929 to $533,000,000 in 1933 while compensation of employes dropped from $2,941,000,000 in 1929 to $1,404,000,000 in 1933.

"The figures of decreased compensation only indicate the terrific privations forced upon these railway employes; men earning as low as $5 or $6 per week are among those being asked to continue their sacrifices for their pitiful wages to permit improved conditions for the railroad bondholders.

"The managements here are asking us to agree with them in a policy which contradicts and must to a very large extent nullify the National Industrial Recovery program.

"We are asked to confirm a program of restricted wage payments and of reduced employe purchasing power.

"In plain language you ask us to obstruct and retard American economic recovery and to support you in your refusal to contribute anything at all to the national rehabilitation. We can not and will not acquiesce.

"Therefore, we most respectfully but definitely reject your proposal for a 15 per cent reduction in basic rates of pay and decline to agree to your proposal for an extension of the existing 10 per cent wage deduction agreement for a period of 10 months beyond its present expiration date, June 30, 1934.

"We insist that basic rates shall be restored on July 1, 1934, in keeping with the terms of the existing agreement."

Says A. F. of L. Is Trying to Force Auto Workers to Join.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, March 17.—John L. Lovett, president of the Michigan Manufacturers' Association and spokesman for the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, said in an address broadcast tonight that the American Federation of Labor was using the threatened auto strike and the Wagner bill barring company unions to force workers to join the federation unions.

"It is our contention that the majority of the employes prefer to operate through their own chosen representatives rather than affiliate with the American Federation of Labor," he said. "It is not necessary for the employes under this voluntary system to pay heavy dues to support outside labor union officials."

Ford V·8 Design Means Fine Car Performance

It takes eight cylinders to give you eight-cylinder performance. If it's less than an eight in cylinders, it's less than an eight in speed, power, smoothness and motoring enjoyment. The Ford V-type eight-cylinder engine has certain definite engineering advantages that increase this margin of superiority.

The real quality of an automobile is invisible—is hidden beneath the hood. But performance cannot be concealed—it is a definite, demonstrable fact. The Ford V-8 tells its own story of performance in traffic, on hills—on every road. A half-hour behind the wheel will tell you more about its power, safety and comfort than can be put into any written words. It is not too much to say that you will find it one of the most satisfying cars you have ever driven.

There is an additional feature of the Ford V-8 that is of importance to motorists. And that is economy. Millions of miles of use have proved to hundreds of thousands of Ford V-8 owners that this is the most economical Ford car ever built. It wouldn't be a Ford if it wasn't an economical car to drive.

ILLINOIS UNION CASE UNDER ADVISEMENT

Motion to Dismiss Progressives' Injunction Suit Against U. M. W. Is Argued.

Federal Judge Wham of East St. Louis took under advisement yesterday a motion to dismiss an injunction suit filed by the Progressive Miners asking that the Peabody Coal Co. and the United Mine Workers be prevented from depriving them of their right to collective bargaining through representatives of their own choosing.

After hearing an argument based entirely on the dismissal motion, without touching on the contentions of the petition, Judge Wham gave counsel 10 days to submit briefs.

The application of the Progressives for an injunction refers to the situation in Saline County, where two Peabody mines are manned by United Mine Workers under contracts in effect before the establishment of the NRA.

Attorneys for the coal company and the United Mine Workers argued yesterday that an application for such an injunction should be initiated by the Attorney-General, following the same general procedure in vogue in anti-trust law cases.

Attorneys for the Progressives replied that the Attorney-General is not a judicial officer and that it is a fundamental right of citizens to bring such disputes before a court of justice. The right of collective bargaining, they continued, was established in the National Recovery Act, asserting "it is absurd to have it stated in the law and then to say the Attorney-General should determine whether the right exists."

TRAIN PASSENGERS INCREASE

Georgia Orders Permanent Base of 2 Cents a Mile.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 17.—The experimental low fares have brought increased passenger business running in some cases over 100 per cent, the Georgia Public Service Commission said today in ordering railroad passenger coach and Pullman rates in Georgia reduced to a permanent base of 2 cents a mile. The railroads are now operating on day coach rates of 1½ cents a mile and Pullman charges of 2 to 3 cents, which expire May 31.

Since the experimental cuts went into effect Dec. 1, 1933, on major Southern lines, there has been a progressive increase not only in volume of traffic, but in actual revenue, over figures for the corresponding months a year ago. The figures covered the whole systems, with no allocation to states.

ST. LOUIS AIR MAIL PROTEST TO FARLEY

C. of C. Charges "Virtual Elimination" of City From New Schedules.

Protesting against the "virtual elimination" of St. Louis from the new air mail schedules announced in Washington, Thomas N. Dysart, president of the Chamber of Commerce, in a telegram to Postmaster-General Farley yesterday requested that St. Louis be provided service equal to that planned for competing territories.

Copies of the telegram were sent to United States Senator Bennett C. Clark and Congressmen John J. Cochran and James R. Claiborne.

"After all that this city has done in pioneering air mail and aviation in general, we consider this failure to provide service equal to our strongest competitors decidedly unfair and sincerely believe we are entitled to more consideration and better schedules," Dysart stated in the telegram. "St. Louis and this territory has always supported the air mail liberally, but present schedules are not conducive to the continuation of this support.

"We earnestly urge your immediate reconsideration to the end that this unjustifiable discrimination may be promptly removed. The air mail plays a very important part in our commercial and banking operations today, and as the gateway city to the West and Southwest we believe we are entitled to the same consideration and the same fast service given competing territories.

"The night schedule to New York is eliminated entirely, our only outlet being via Chicago, the plane leaving St. Louis at 5:10 a. m., arriving Chicago at 7 a. m., where mail must be held until 11:30 a. m. for delivery to Newark at 7:30 p. m., meaning following morning delivery. This is no better than train service. The same applies to mail from New York, the plane leaving Newark at noon and arriving at Chicago at 6 p. m. for following morning delivery St. Louis. This places Chicago at a 24-hour advantage over St. Louis. We consider this serious discrimination against St. Louis and this trade territory in view of three schedules daily New York to Chicago. Likewise there is no direct air mail from St. Louis to the Pacific Coast over the Southwestern route, while Chicago has three schedules daily.

"The central transcontinental route via St. Louis is admittedly the shortest route and weather conditions generally speaking are better. No other route of equal length can be laid out in a direct line to serve a territory of equal economic importance, equal business volume or equal number of inhabitants. Under the former army schedule, St. Louis had direct overnight service. We most sincerely believe at least one schedule over Northern route should be transferred to direct line from New York to St. Louis and through the Southwest to the Pacific Coast. Our only western connection now is by train via Omaha or Chicago, whereas a much faster schedule could undoubtedly be worked out over the southwestern route."

Mrs. Dall Writes a Book.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—When the traditional White House Easter-egg rolling is held next month, it will have been newly-perpetuated in a book by the President's daughter, Mrs. Anna Dall. "Scamper, the Bunny Who Went to the White House," is the name of the book, and Babs and Dave, the children in it, lead lives very similar to Sistie and Buzzie, Mrs. Dall's two children. Many of the illustrations are actual White House interiors, done by Marjorie Flack.

NATIONAL PARK PLAN FOR LAKE OF OZARKS

Proposal by Missouri State Board to Embrace 248,000 Acres.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 17.—A plan to transform the Lake of the Ozarks area into a huge National Park was approved here today by the Missouri State Planning Board.

The proposed park would embrace 248,000 acres, including the Gravois Creek section and Niangua Valley to Hahatonka and up the lake to U. S. Highway No. 65 bridge at Warsaw. Shore line extending from two to five miles would be included in the project.

R. W. Sevide, chairman of the committee, was optimistic that the plan would meet the approval of the Submarginal Land Acquisition Committee of the Surplus Relief Corporation in Washington. He said the lake area was ideally situated to serve the people of the Middlewest.

A letter outlining the project and signed by the commission members was directed to the committee on submarginal lands, the President's committee for the preservation of wild life, and the National Forest Administration.

It stated the Lake of the Ozarks area offered exceptional advantages "for extensive public recreation, for reforestation, for the withdrawal of a certain amount of submarginal lands from agricultural uses, and for the resting areas for wild migratory birds."

HARRY M. PFLAGER TOPS PERSONALTY TAX ASSESSMENTS

Return of Former Steel Company Officer Is Announced as $55,570 by Assessor Coale.

The local personal property assessments on which 1934 taxes will be based were made public by Assessor Coale late yesterday, showing the individuals, estates and corporations with the largest assessments.

At the top of the list of large personal property taxpayers this year is Harry M. Pflager, 19 Kingsbury place, former officer of the Commonwealth Steel Corporation, which a few years ago was taken over by the General Steel Castings Corporation. Pflager's return was $55,570.

The leader for the three prior years was Peter J. Pauly, 3645 Botanical avenue, president of the Pauly Jail Building Co. Pauly was fourth this year with a return of $51,220. His return last year was $68,250.

Second on the personal property list this year was Edward Mallinckrodt, 16 Westmoreland place, chairman of the board of the Mallinckrodt Chemical Works, with a return of $55,070. Mallinckrodt also was second last year with a total of $60,720.

Higbee Estate at Top.

The largest estate was that of the late Fannie H. Higbee, on which a return of $461,480 was made. The Higbee estate also headed the list last year with a return of $489,550.

First on the list of corporations was the Laclede Gas Light Co., the only public utility assessed wholly in St. Louis. The company made a personal property return totaling $2,296,100. It also led last year with a return of $2,352,300.

The City Board of Equalization will begin a four weeks' session tomorrow and will hear any complaints on the assessments as fixed by the Assessor. The board has the power to increase or decrease both personal property and real estate assessments.

The real estate assessments have not yet been made public by Coale. He said recently that there would be a delay this year because he has attempted to revise the assessment of every piece of real estate property in St. Louis in line with present economic conditions. The total assessment of both real and personal property last year, as reported to the State Tax Commission, was $1,011,091,490, including $912,613,970 on real estate and $98,477,520 on personal property. Coale thinks that the 1934 real estate assessments will be about $20,000,000 less than last year and personal property about the same as it was in 1933.

Tax Rate Past Year $2.74.

The assessments for 1934 taxes are based on the value of the property as of June 1, 1933. The tax rate last year was $2.74 for each $100 or real and personal assessed valuation. Comptroller Nolte has said that an increase of 41 cents might be necessary in this year's rate to provide funds for to meet bond obligations, but Mayor Dickman and President Neun of the Board of Aldermen, Nolte's two colleagues on the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, are opposed to any increase and Dickmann is trying to find some other sources of revenue to meet the bond obligations.

The 1934 taxes are due next September and will become delinquent after Dec. 31.

There were 16 individual personal property returns exceeding $25,000 this year, as compared with 14 last year. The returns for these 16 individuals totaled $649,490 or an average of $40,590 for each. Last year the 14 individual returns over $25,000 totaled $574,890 or an average of $41,063.

Only seven estates had returns of $100,000 this year as compared with eight last year.

As was the case last year, there are two corporations with returns exceeding $1,000,000. There are 16 corporations this year with personal property returns between $100,000 and $1,000,000 as compared with 12 last year.

In addition to Pflager and Mallinckrodt, the following individuals made personal property returns for 1934 in excess of $25,000 each :

BLIND FOR 15 YEARS, NOW CAN DISTINGUISH COLORS

Successful Operation on Wisconsin Youth Whose Sight Was Destroyed by Tiny Pebble.

By the Associated Press.

GREEN BAY, Wis., March 17.—Clarence Hansen, 27, of Mattoon, totally blind for the last 15 years, has been enabled to distinguish light from darkness, and the contrast of colors. While he probably will never be able to see perfectly, he has an excellent chance of developing sufficiently acute sight to perform his farm work, his physician says.

When Hansen was a small boy, a minute pebble ladged in the lens of his left eye and worked itself in firmly until a fringe of matter deposited about the edge of the stone and doubled its size. The sight of the eye was lost. The other, sympathetically affected, became blind also. In the recent operation the pebble was removed and the pupil was dilated to its normal size and a plastic operation was performed on the other eye.

WOMAN GIVEN LIFE FOR KILLING PHYSICIAN

Convicted at Reading, Pa., for Shooting Dr. Paul R. Hess in Front of Office.

By the Associated Press.

READING, Pa., March 17.—Miss Frances Sepse, 27-year-old former stenographer, today was convicted of murder in the first degree by a jury which recommended life imprisonment as the penalty, for the killing of Dr. Paul R. Hess.

Miss Sepse shot Dr. Hess after he alighted from his automobile in front of his office on the night of Jan. 8. Dr. Hess had treated both Miss Sepse and her mother.

Sentence was not imposed, pending the filing of an appeal for a new trial. Defense counsel was granted four days to file the motion.

Counsel for the Commonwealth did not ask for the death penalty. Defense counsel asked the jury to acquit Miss Sepse on the ground that she was insane when she shot the physician. Miss Sepse did not testify, although urged to do so by her counsel.

A statement was admitted in evidence purporting to have been dictated by her, in which she admitted the shooting and said she shot him because she believed she "could take his sins on herself." She never publicly explained this statement.

DECLINES TO CUT FINE FOR HENRY J. OLDANI

Federal Judge Faris Disregards Plea That "Bootlegger King" Is Broke.

Henry J. Oldani, once known as the "King of St. Louis Bootleggers," who is serving two years in prison for evading taxes on a 1929 income of $392,213, is broke and cannot pay a fine, his attorney told Federal Judge Faris yesterday.

Judge Faris, however, declined to reduce Oldani's $10,000 fine to $2000, an amount which the attorney said Oldani's mother might be able to raise.

Unless Oldani is able to make some arrangement with the Government about the fine, he will be required to serve his full term, while otherwise he would be eligible for parole after serving one-third of it. If the Government were satisfied that the erstwhile bootleg king was actually without resources, it could permit him to take a pauper's oath and serve an extra 30 days to satisfy the fine.

Industrial Activities Gained In Most Countries In 1933, Says National Conference Board

Revival in World Trade Since Last April but "Some Measure of Stability in Foreign Exchange Markets" Is Considered Necessary.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The revival that occurred in world industrial activity in the summer of 1932 was continued at an accelerated rate in 1933, according to a report on world economic conditions made public today by the National Industrial Conference Board.

The report asserts that the greatest increase in industrial production from 1932 to 1933 occurred in those countries which had suffered the greatest declines from 1929 to 1932. The physical volume of industrial production in the United States, which declined 46 per cent from 1929 to 1932, recovered 20 per cent from 1932 to 1933. The corresponding figures for Germany are 39 per cent and 12 per cent; for France 31 per cent and 12 per cent; for Sweden 21 per cent and 3 per cent, and for Great Britain 17 per cent and 3 per cent.

"In most countries," the report continues, "the recovery continued practically without interruption throughout 1933. In France the volume of production declined somewhat in the last half of the year owing to domestic political and budgetary difficulties. In the United States, industrial activity increased 72 per cent from March to July and then declined 26 per cent from July to September.

"In most countries wholesale prices either moved upward or remained stable during 1933. Price deflation of the preceding three years has been definitely stopped. This is true of most gold standard countries as well as those that have depreciated their currencies. Prices of internationally traded commodities increased rapidly from March to August, 1933, owing largely to the rush of producers and wholesalers to replenish or increase their inventories in the expectation of increased consumption. In most cases, however, consumption was disappointing, and after the peak of activity was passed in July, prices of international staples declined."

"The value of world trade," the report proceeds, "reached the low point in April, 1933. Since that time a revival has taken place. In April, 1933, the value of world trade in terms of gold was only 32.5 per cent of the 1929 average. By the end of the year the value of world trade had increased to about 37 per cent of the 1929 average.

"Trade figures for the individual countries throw no light on the effect of currency depreciation on the movement of international trade. Currency depreciation, drastic restrictions on foreign exchange transactions, and import quotas enabled most of the debtor countries in 1932 to reduce their imports and improve their balance of merchandise trade, but in 1933 the efficacy of these methods was no longer apparent.

"Revival of world trade cannot take place until some measure of stability is introduced in foreign exchange markets and most of the existing restrictions on the international movement of funds and goods are removed. The problem of currency stabilization and removal of foreign exchange restrictions is essentially a problem of foreign indebtedness, long-term and short-term.

"Great Britain, having successfully overcome its internal financial difficulties, has again entered the field of international finance. The United States is still almost entirely concerned with the extraordinary number of domestic problems raised by the complicated and far-reaching reconstruction and recovery program of the Administration. The third largest creditor country, France, is at the present moment engaged in defending the stability of its own currency. As long as these three countries do not find it possible to settle whatever differences may separate them in regard to monetary policy, there can be no hope of international action designed to stabilize foreign exchanges and remove the obstacles to world trade.

"Considerable progress was made in 1933 in the field of public finance. In a large number of countries, the budgets of the national governments have been balanced. The outstanding exceptions are the United States, Japan, Germany and Italy. In all important financial markets there is an abundance of idle funds. The short-term rates of interest are extremely low. Long-term capital markets, however, are still stagnant."

FATHER SHUTS FOLDING BED; SMOTHERS BABY

Infant Daughter of Walter Markwardt Killed in Accident in Wellston.

Failing to see his 2-months-old daughter sleeping in a folding bed, Walter Markwardt, auto mechanic, 6331 Audrey avenue, Wellston, folded the bed yesterday morning and the baby was smothered to death.

Markwardt entered the bedroom after breakfast to dress to go to work and folded the bed as he passed it. The baby, Estelle Frances, made no outcry and was not missed until Markwardt found that his wife had not taken her to the kitchen while she prepared breakfast, as usual, but had left her in the bedroom.

The baby was shut up in the bed for about 15 minutes. A physician, who arrived at the house a few minutes after the bed had been opened, pronounced her dead. Attempts at artificial respiration had failed. The Markwardts have two other children, Walter Jr., 5 years old, and Mary Jeanne, 4.

NEW TAXI STRIKE AGAINST NEW YORK COMPANY UNIONS

Leaders Show No Objection to 4000 or So Independent-Owned Cabs in City.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Fighting company unions the Taxi Drivers' Union of Greater New York called its second general strike within a month today. There are about 5000 union members.

The strike was to go into effect at noon. During the early afternoon there were plenty of cabs on the streets. The union then started its picket lines into action. Peaceful picketing was the order of Samuel Orner, president of the drivers' union.

Orner predicted most of the company-owned cabs would be locked in garages tonight, leaving only the 4000 or so independent-owned cabs on the streets.

The strike is not directed at independent owners and drivers. They will be given stickers for identification.

His leadership was attacked by Irving Robbins, president of the Drivers' Brotherhood of New York, Parmalee Co. Chapter. This is the union organized by the cab-owning companies.

"Just let them try to get the cabs off the street when the men are starving. That's our challenge," Robbins said.

Orner declared the action today resulted from the blacklisting of members of his union after an accord was reached in the first strike for recognition three weeks ago.

Mediator Bernard S. Deutsch, president of the Board of Aldermen, announced his opposition to a company union plan. He said the city would be willing to supervise a vote of the drivers as to union preference, and urged the fleet-owning companies to avoid discrimination.

Theosophist to Give Lectures.

Fritz Kunz, theosophical leader, author and former principal of a Buddhist college in Ceylon, will give a series of lectures for one week, beginning next Sunday, at quarters of the Theosophical Society of St. Louis, 5108 Waterman avenue.

FOUR NEGROES IN A STOLEN AUTO INJURED IN CRASH

Machine Runs Into Illinois Terminal Car—Had Been Taken From Man's Home.

Four Negroes riding in a stolen automobile were injured when the automobile crashed into an Illinois Terminal System car at Cass and Hadley avenues at 12:45 a. m. yesterday.

They were taken to City Hospital No. 2 and booked by police as follows: Jesse Robinson, 4056 Cook avenue, fractured leg and scalp wounds; Joseph Dunlap, 2801 Gamble street, fractured nose; Norman Payne, 2801 Gamble street, skull injury, and Mary Payne, 3214 Hickory street, fractures of the right arm and left wrist.

The automobile was reported stolen Friday afternon by John Mason from in front of his home, 3168 Easton avenue. The Negroes had been drinking, according to hospital physicians.

Ford Car Deliveries Gain 65 Per Cent for Ten Days in March

Demand Growing at Greatest Rate Known Here, Branch Manager Reports.

Demand for automobiles is increasing at the greatest rate in the history of the St. Louis Ford branch, according to M. N. Johnson, manager, whose dealers in this area showed a 65 per cent increase in deliveries to customers in the first 10 days in March over any 10-day period in 1933.

"Reports from Wayne County, Michigan, in which Detroit lies, indicate that Ford V-8 cars tripled the sales of their nearest competitor," continued Johnson. "In February, 2208 Ford V-8's were sold in the home of the automobile industry, according to official registration figures of the State.

"Wayne County figures are considered significant because they are believed to reflect the automotive buying trend for the entire United States.

"In the metropolitan St. Louis area, on the basis of our present rate of sales in the first two months and 10 days of this year, Ford dealers will sell three times more Ford products than have ever been sold in one year in this territory since the V-8 Ford was first introduced.

"The fact that the demand for new automobiles is steadily increasing, practically assures Ford dealers here of passing any March sales in their history."

Wiemeyer Declares Auto Mechanic Must Be Service Specialist

The operation of the employment service for mechanics by the F. S. Wiemeyer Co. has brought out the fact that there is a lack of men trained for the specialized service operation in demand today.

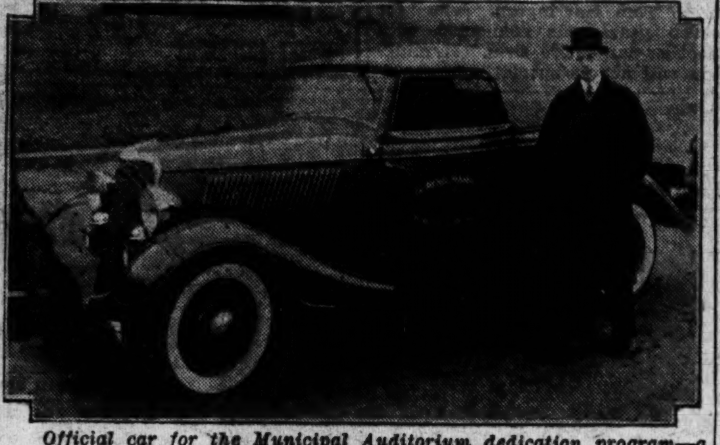
It has been impossible to fill certain jobs because of the many applicants few are qualified in special operations such as motor tune-up, electrical work, carburetor work, wheel aligning and modern brake work.

"If there are any men really qualified in this work we believe they can find employment," F. S. Wiemeyer says. "In the event men looking for work are not qualified they should make an effort to acquire this experience, because the operations on modern automobiles are highly specialized and men must be trained if they are going to properly service these cars."

City Auto Licenses Can Be Gotten Today

Due to the congestion and number of motorists who have been unable to get their city licenses, the Midwest Auto League, 3954 Washington avenue, will remain open all day today until 6 p. m. for the convenience of automobile owners.

Official Car for Auditorium Exhibit



Official car for the Municipal Auditorium dedication program—a 1934 Ford V-8 cabriolet. James Darst, manager of the new Auditorium, was photographed with the Ford when he came out to inspect it. A large fleet of Ford V-8's will be operated by St. Louis Ford dealers as courtesy cars, to carry visitors back and forth from the St. Louis on Parade Exposition, April 14-28.

'Human Ford' Coming For New Auditorium Dedication Exposition

In addition to the "human Ford" and "steel mule" made up of Ford parts, the exhibit of the Ford Motor Co. at "St. Louis on Parade," the city-sponsored exposition feature of the dedication of the Municipal Auditorium, April 14 to 28, will include a tunnel for demonstrating safety glass, a glass motor showing the mechanical operation of every part of a Ford power plant, a Ford car suspended in the air by a Ford wheel and numerous other features, according to M. N. Johnson, local Ford Co. manager.

The display will occupy 15,000 square feet of space at the southern end of the exhibiiton hall, by far the largest space taken by any of the more than 70 exhibitors to date, according to William H. Eiseman, managing director of the trade and merchandising show.

Other features of the exhibit, which is being constructed in Detroit for the Ford display at the Century of Progress Exposition and will be sent to Chicago immediately after the conclusion of the dedicattory exposition here, will include a cutaway pleasure car chassis; a cutaway full floating truck axle; twisted parts showing the fatigue strength of axles, wheels, radius rods and the like; a Ford body supporting a Ford car; improvements in crank and cam shafts since the old Model "T"; a complete display of all parts that go into a reconditioned motor; demonstration how steel used in Ford cars withstand heat, and a device showing four-wheel free action.

Dodge's engine comes by part of its greater serviceability this year as a result of larger engine bearing areas.

Cool Weather Good Time to Start New Tires, Kemmerer Says

Many motorists are buying tires earlier than usual this year, according to Goodyear dealers.

"There are a number of factors that enter into the general improvement of the tire business," says George Kemmerer, St. Louis manager of Goodyear Service, Inc.

"A main reason, perhaps, is that prices of all commodities are on the upswing, and there is no doubt but retail tire prices will climb by spring.

"Crude rubber and raw cotton are higher and wages are being increased in the factories. There is every indication that prices will continue to advance and motorists appreciate that they can effect real savings by making their tire purchases now.

"The tire factories are working heavier schedules than usual for this time of the year to meet the demand.

"Another reason that more tires are being bought is that the public is beginning to realize the importance of using new tires in the winter. A new tire gives maximum anti-skid protection on wet or icy streets, and at the same time gives longer wear when broken in at the lower temperatures of the winter season.

"Experience has proved that tires first put in service during the winter show little appreciable wear by spring and are almost as good as new tires for service in the hot summer months. All things considered, the present is a logical time to invest tire dollars to assure the greatest return for the amount expended."

Buick's transmission is the all-silent type. Even the reverse gears are helically cut to assure noiseless operation.

JOINS EXECUTIVES OF MILTON OIL CO.

E. J. SIMON,

WHOSE appointment as manager of the commercial department of the Milton Oil Co., is announced by C. M. E. Reeves, vice-president of the Milton Oil Co. of St. Louis. Simon was formerly connected with a large local oil concern. He succeeds A. A. Hodge, who has been promoted to division sales manager of the Milton Oil Co. Hodge will continue his contacts with St. Louis commercial accounts. The change, Reeves said, was necessitated by growth of business for this relatively new department. The Milton Oil Co. is the distributer of Dixcel scientifically lubricated gasoline and petroleum products.

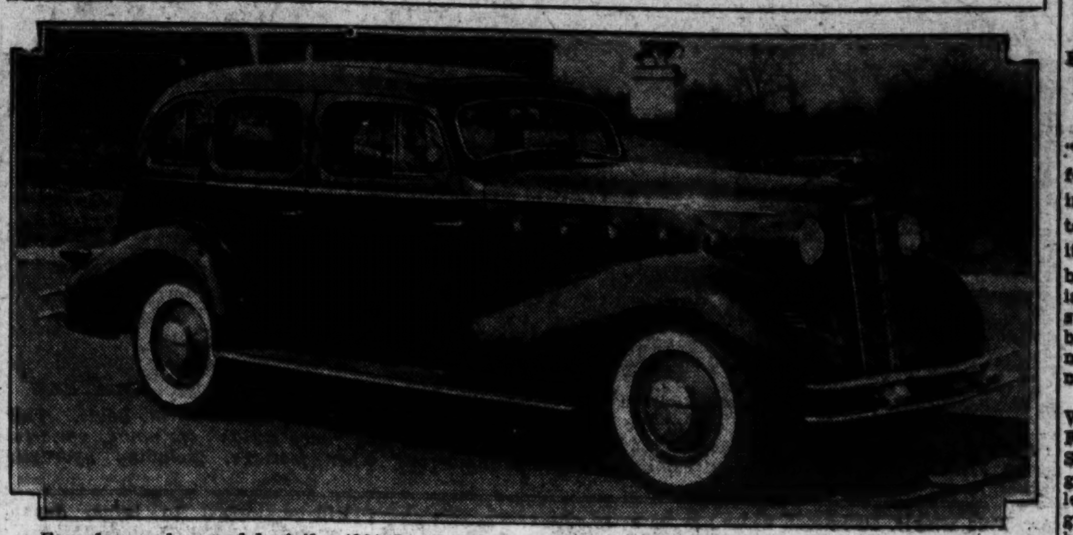
New Ford Commercial Cars and Trucks Seen at Special Display Here

Thousands of truck and motor fleet owners visited the special invitational display of commercial cars and trucks Saturday at the Ford branch, 4100 Forest Park boulevard.

The invitational display will be continued tomorrow. On Tuesday it will be thrown open to the public. At that time anyone interested in motor trucks and lowered costs of operating them may visit this display.

M. N. Johnson, St. Louis manager for the Ford Motor Co., under whose direction the display is being staged, has just returned from a trip through Illinois and Missouri where he told his dealer organization of the program worked out by the Ford company to assist truck owners to carry on their transportation business at greatly reduced costs during the coming years.

How the New La Salle Cars Look



Four-door sedan model of the 1934 La Salle eight which is being shown for the first time in St Louis. Its streamline design is unique, and has attracted favorable comment throughout the country.

New La Salle Car, Wholly Different From the 1933 Line

The 1934 Models Now Displayed Here Have Bodies by Fleetwood.

The first new La Salle car of the first 1934 production is now on the salesroom floor of the Oliver Cadillac Co., 4100 Laclede avenue. This is the first showing in St. Louis of the new 1934 La Salle, as during the Auto Show in January only enough completed La Salle cars were available for the National shows in Chicago and New York and these dates conflicted with St. Louis Auto Show. Due to this fact the Cadillac factory shipped No. 1 complete La Salle car to St. Louis.

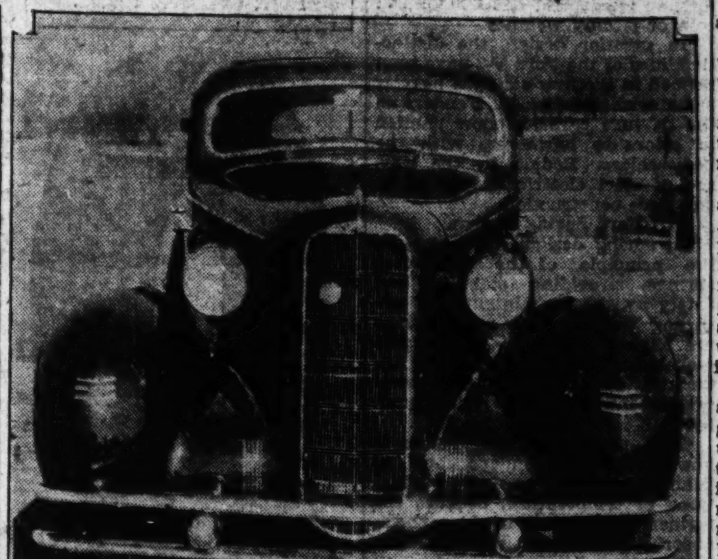
It was the center of attraction at the National shows and represents a new design. It is new in practically every respect from the previous La Salle car, having a straight eight engine with new standards of power and performance and all bodies by Fleetwood only. Heretofore Fleetwood bodies were used principally on special Cadillac 8, 12 and 16 chassis. So their use on La Salle distinguishes the car from anything in its price class.

Other new features of the car are down-draft dual carburetion, thermal control of cooling circulation, "knee-action" front wheels, center-point steering, hydraulic brakes, and small wide air balloon tires.

The La Salle car is entirely built in the Cadillac factory by the same departments and personnel as the Caddilacs.

The upholstery used is a beautiful imported heather mixture.

The car delivers for less than $1800 complete in St. Louis, the Cadillac Motor Co. being the only builder today of high grade, high priced cars that also build a smaller edition of its finest and highest priced cars for the medium priced field. Since the La Salle was placed on the floor Saturday morning, Guy Oliver reports, nine orders were actually signed for various models, the Wacker-Helderle Undertaking Co. being the first to place an order.



Front view of the 1934 La Salle eight, which has "knee action" independent front springing and numerous engine and body refinements, as well as something new in streamlining.

Continental, which still has one of the most distinctive front spring arrangements even in these days of independent springing, has adopted a modification that is an absolute safeguard against front wheel wander or tramp.

Tire and Battery Dealers Will Meet Tomorrow Night

The next regular meeting of the Greater St. Louis Tire and Battery Dealers' Association will be held at the Melbourne Hotel at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Pressure is being applied by the association to NRA authorities to hasten adoption of the retail tire and battery dealers' code.

L. C. Haworth, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for the St. Louis district, will speak on "He Can Take it! or What Have you?"

Skelly Guarantees Milage With Its New Aromax Gasoline

Proper Mixture With Air for Economy and Power Said to Be Insured by "Tailor-Made" Method.

A new Skelly Aromax gasoline, "tailor-made" on a new principle for greater mileage, is just being introduced in the St. Louis territory. Using this gasoline, it is said, it is not necessary to change carburetor adjustments as the gasoline is made on a scientific plan to insure the proper mixture of air for best acceleration and economy. Aromax is being introduced also on a money back mileage guarantee.

"In test car runs," according to W. F. Schierholz, president of the Fuel Oil Co., 4470 Duncan avenue, Skelly distributer, "the Skelly engineers confirmed the opinion of leading oil technologists that one gallon of gasoline, with good carburetor adjustment, combines most efficiently with 7600 gallons of air.

"Skelly research men, having the advantage of making up special gasolines for different communities, then tailor-made Skelly Aromax for this correct air-mix. Tests proved the economy of this tailor-made method. So Skelly decided to introduce the air-mix gasoline on a money back basis.

"Previously Skelly offered guaranteed quick starting with Skelly Aromax gasoline, and guaranteed perfect lubrication with its tailor-made Tagolene motor oils. The newspaper advertising of these products has resulted in such large sales increases that Skelly again is using newspaper space to announce its new gasoline mileage guarantee."

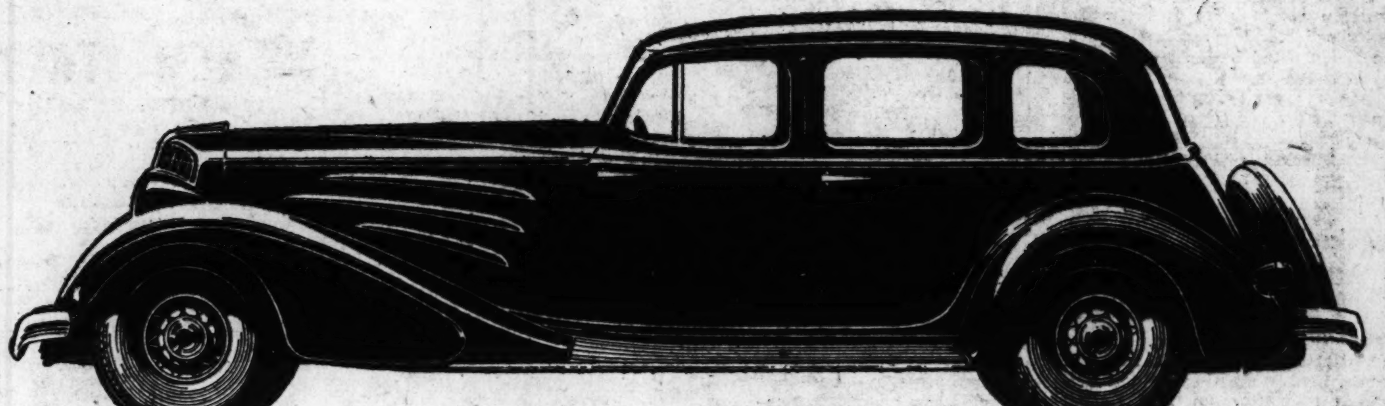
"Skelly first gave both high test and high anti-knock value in one gasoline. Skelly was the first to tailor-make gasoline, and the first to guarantee easier starting. Now it is the first to guarantee gasoline mileage on the basis of returning a motorist's money if any other gasoline gives greater mileage when mileage is compared under fair conditions and good carburetor adjustment."

Triangle Auto Co. Moves Into Larger Building on Gravois

The Triangle Auto Co., dealer in Dodge and Plymouth cars, formerly at 5621 Gravois avenue, has moved to a larger building at 3100 Gravois avenue.

This building contains over 14,000 square feet. It has been newly decorated and refurnished with a large sales room as well as a complete line of parts and service to take care of Dodge and Plymouth cars.

The concern is owned by Al Jenn and Homer Dyson, who have been in the automobile business for a number of years and are well known on the South Side. They also have established a used car lot at 3151 Gravois.



Come On You Competitors—

The new 1934 Auburn cars are here—and the public is coming to see, drive and buy them—

You other car dealers might as well find out right now what Auburn has.

You must compete against the new Auburn because buyers are going to compare your car with Auburn.

You saw the thousands of people who gathered around and admired the new Auburn cars at the Auto Shows.

You are impressed by the fact that Auburn does not use Knee Action.

You have heard that Auburn cars have a roadability—a smoothness—a steadiness and a riding comfort, combined with a safety and ease of handling, surpassing any and all other 1934 cars.

You have longed to verify reports that Auburn (builder of World's Champion Stock Cars) has for 1934 eclipsed all its previous standards for speed and performance.

Well, here's your opportunity to find out.

We invite you. Bring your retail salesmen, too.

Because your prospective customers are finding out.

So come and get behind the wheel, and see how Auburn accelerates ahead of other cars.

See how Auburn "takes the work out" of driving.

Drive into a curve at 60, 70 or more miles an hour and see how Auburn clings to the road; does not side-sway or lean.

Both in advertising, and by word of mouth, you have asked the public to believe many extremely broad and emphatic claims for the riding qualities of the car you are selling.

And you have driven your car and demonstrated it over rough roads, on turns, etc.

Now we challenge you—

Drive a 1934 Auburn and go over the same route. You will be amazed at the difference, in the way the Auburn handles, and the superior way it performs.

Auburn gives you smooth, comfortable riding ease without "baby buggy" bouncing up and down.

Auburn gives you a steady, secure sense of control and safety at all times.

There is a firmness about Auburn's performance on the road—but no stiffness!

There is a rigidity in Auburn's frame that gives assurance of strength and durability—without hard riding!

We hope you accept this invitation—but whether you do or not, the public is going to find out that every word of this advertisement is true.

AUBURN $695 AND UP

And car buyers are going to learn more about the new Auburn—

They are going to be amazed at the economy of Auburn's operation.

And they are going to get the greatest thrill they have ever had in any motor car when they operate Auburn's improved Dual-Ratio—which gives the driver the choice of two different rear axle gear ratios. This proven improvement alone is sufficient to place Auburn far ahead, as the most advanced car on the market.

Car buyers are also going to find out that Auburn offers matchless body comforts, wider seats—more leg room and head room.

And—but come and see for yourself Auburn's many, many improvements and betterments.

Some of the Improvements That Are Responsible for Auburn's Great Value:

New Unit Welded Steel Construction Bodies, quiet, safe, enduring ... New Controlled Ventilating System with exclusive advantages ... Dual-Ratio with shift lever on steering wheel ... X-plus-A Box Section Frame providing rigid protection against torsional twists ... Hydraulic Brakes ... New Type Double-acting Shock Absorbers ... Ride Stabilizer that prevents side-sway or body roll ... Power Booster for brakes ... Needle Bearing Universal Joints that require lubrication only once in two years of average driving ... Metal Spring Covers ... Insulated Bodies ... 8½ cubic feet of baggage space behind rear seat ... Rainproof Cowl Ventilator ... Combination Ignition and Steering Gear Lock ... Automatic Heat Control.

6 Cylinder Models (119" Wheelbase) $695 to $945; 8 Cylinder Models (126" Wheelbase) $945 to $1225; Salon 12 Models $1395 to $1545. All prices at the factory, subject to change without notice. Equipment other than standard, extra.

Ford V-8 Tested to Prove Economy as Well as Speed

Firmness of Car in Rounding Corners at Speed Especially Impresses Driver.

A test of the new 1934 Ford V-8 recalls many memories, and one in particular to Herbert D. Wilson, automobile editor of the Chicago American. Writing of his experience with one of the new Ford models, he says:

"In the fall of 1919, I was in the oil fields near Beggs, Ok. At that time many of the roads were little more than trails cut through the countryside by heavy wagons carrying pipe. They were irregular and with no grading. There were frequent holes from one to two feet deep. In a rain, these trails became seas of mud.

"There the name Ford was synonymous with dependability, and there were hourly opportunities for proof.

"One trip I can remember quite well, from a nearby town back to the field, was made in absolute darkness in a Model T Ford from which the headlamps had been stolen. So difficult was it to see, that one of the men walked ahead of the car with a five-gallon tin can, the bright surface of which could just be seen indicating the center of the road. Suddenly the man disappeared.

"We presently found where he had gone, because the whole car fell into a six-foot deep ditch dug for a pipe line. No one was hurt. Fortunately, nearby were some telegraph poles lying on the ground ready to be put up.

Out of the Hole and Away.

"Placing the end of one of these beneath the car and using another as a fulcrum, we levered the car out of the hole and started on.

"This is only one personal experience among thousands of stories in which the Ford 'went through.' The reason I mention this episode is that it brings to mind the similarity between the old Model T and the new 1934 Ford.

"Dependability, stamina and economical operations are attributes that may be applied to both old and new models. But here the comparison stops, for style, speed, comfort and economy are outstandingly present in the new 1934 models.

1934 Ford Has 92 H. P.

"I drove the new 1934 Ford 82 miles an hour with ease, and felt that it could have done 90 or better. Much of this added speed is due to the new down-draft carburetor and dual manifold which provides 12 per cent more power than was produced last year.

"The manifold is an over-and under type. That is, each manifold feeds the two center cylinders of one bank and the two end cylinders of the other. In other words, each manifold feeds a four-cylinder engine. The manifold is combined with the valve chamber cover as heretofore.

"The V-eight cylinder engine develops 92 horsepower at 3300 r. p. m. having a bore and stroke of 31-16 by 3¾, with a compression ratio of 6.33 to 1.

"Strange as it may seem, this powerful, high speed motor is actually more economical than the old Model T. The new carburetion system and other engine refinements not only give better gasoline mileage, but also save on oil consumption and insure smooth operation at all speeds.

"Particularly is this true in high speed driving, and as high as 20 miles per gallon can be achieved while traveling consistently at 45 miles per hour.

Security on the Curves.

"On the open road, I was particularly interested in bringing the car into the curves at 60 miles an hour and higher to note the firmness of the ride. There certainly was no feeling of insecurity. It was a stable feeling without rigidity—a solid ride without being stiff.

"Perhaps this is the reason why Fords have been such favorites of stock car racing drivers on the small dirt tracks. The ability to hold the road at high speeds and negotiate turns requires unusual balance and roadability.

"The increase in top speed has, therefore, been achieved without the sacrifice of safety, and permits driving at comparatively high speeds without increased risk and with less engine strain."

Attractive Interiors.

"The engine in the new models will run twice as long as heretofore before valve grinding is necessary, because of the adoption of high tungsten chrome exhaust valve seat inserts and chrome nickel alloy exhaust valves.

"The interior of the new car is especially attractive, for here comfort, foot room and seat width have been particularly stressed. New style, deeply cushioned individual front seats are used in the Tudor. Both seats tilt forward and the driver's seat is adjustable. Both instrument board and instrument panel have a grained mahogany finish on the de luxe jobs, which blends harmoniously with the rich seat coverings and interior trim.

"All body styles have safety glass windshields, while the de luxe bodies have safety glass throughout.

New Type Ventilation.

"Looming large in the 1934 improvements is the new Ford ventilation system, which is built into the body and which permits clear vision, prevents drafts and provides the desired amount of fresh air in any weather. I think this ventilation system is one of the most efficient systems that I have yet seen.

"The whole operation is extremely simple. When ventilation is desired, the window glass is raised to the top. Then the handle is given an additional half turn. At the start of the half turn the window glass begins to slide back horizontally, forming a narrow slot between the edge of the window and the frame.

"Through this slot air is drawn out by the forward motion of the car. This simple, fool-proof ventilation system maintains a draft-free circulation of air and prevents fogging windshield and windows in cold or stormy weather.

"In exterior design, the distinctive lines of the Ford V-8 have been refined in the new car by a heavier radiator shell and grill. Fenders on the de luxe cars are now painted in colors to harmonize with the body colors. Bodies, by the way, are of steel electrically welded in one-piece construction.

Ford Spring Design.

"In spring design, Ford employs the principle of the transverse springs, providing stability and safety with a minimum of unsprung weight. The rear springs are slightly softer in the current models, and improved Houdaille automatic shock absorbers have greatly increased the riding quality.

"The shock absorber action is now practically independent of changes in viscosity due to variations in temperature, because the former valve action in these shock absorbers have been replaced by a new method of control.

"It is no exaggeration to say that the new 1934 Ford will take you anywhere you want to go and as fast as you dare drive. It will take you 'there and back again' with speed to spare in safety and comfort."

Chrysler Production Increases as Factory Facilities Are Enlarged

Chrysler production reached its highest point since the introduction of the Airflow line on Feb. 28, when 232 cars left the assembly line.

This peak should be exceeded daily from now on, as additional manufacturing facilities have been obtained through the leasing of extensive space in a near-by plant.

The Chrysler Sales Corporation entered March with the largest bank of dealer orders in its history, 13,541 for delivery as soon as possible.

Retail deliveries of Chrysler and Plymouth cars by Chrysler dealers showed an increase in the week ending March 3 over the previous week. Compared to the corresponding week of 1933, there was an increase of 83.5 per cent and over the corresponding week of 1932 of 77.9 per cent. This was the sixth consecutive week in which retail deliveries increased.

The Chrysler Sales Corporation is distributing to its dealers a perfect scale model of the frame used in the Airflow cars. This frame is the first of its type. Chassis and body frame are of unit construction, forming a steel box inside of which the passenger rides, instead of on the frame as in other cars.

The model frame is complete in every detail. It measures 17½ inches in length, 6¼ inches wide and 5 inches high. It is constructed of square bar crimping wire, welded at all joints. So perfectly have the strains and stresses been calculated by the Chrysler engineers in the Airflow frame design that this little model, whose members are about ⅛-inch in diameter, will support the weight of a 200-pound man without sagging or bending.

Plymouth Reports Record February For Retail Selling

Retail delivery of 17,340 Plymouth cars made last month the best February in the history of the Plymouth Motor Corporation, H. G. Moock, general sales manager, announces. This record volume exceeded by 129.7 per cent last February, when 7549 cars were delivered at retail.

February shipments of 34,709 units set a new all-time February record for Plymouth, an increase of 273.6 per cent over the same month of 1933, Mr. Moock reported. Shipments in January and February totaled 52,042 as compared with 18,012 in the same two months of last year, a 1934 gain of 188.9 per cent.

Graham Reports On Business After Tour of 36 States

Completing a business tour of 36 states, which followed a visit to Europe and the Scandinavian countries, Robert C. Graham, executive vice-president of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation and chairman of the export committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, reports that he believes the economic improvement evidenced in the United States is of a "permanent, well-planned nature."

"The biggest factor in the improvement seen so far is that it is going to be permanent," said Graham, who on his lengthy tour obtained a cross-section of conditions in the United States and Europe as they affect the social and economic structure of the American people.

"In the automobile business there is a fine feeling about the reconstruction work done so far. The dealer code is working, and everyone I contacted believes it to be a great thing for the industry. I believe everybody is back of the President in his magnificent program, and I believe the majority of the people clearly understand what progress has been made so far."

Truck Operators Attend Meeting Held By Reo Distributer

The Steiner-Fahrenkrog Motor Co., distributer of Reo cars and trucks, held a meeting Friday evening at its salesroom, 3301 Locust street, which was attended by 75 truck operators and their service managers.

The purpose was to explain the selling of the right truck for the right job. D. E. Cowdrey, special truck representative from the Reo factory, discussed how to purchase a truck. A number of points were brought out for the benefit of truck purchasers as well as truck operators.

Fred Morgan, also a Reo factory representative, spoke as did Col. Fahrenkrog and Harry Steiner.

New Willys 77 Cars Being Shipped Abroad in Increasing Number

Willys-Overland will ships its new Willys 77 cars to almost every country of the world.

Besides Australia, New Zealand, and South America, the Willys cars will be shipped to India, Japan, Dutch East Indies, China, Afghanistan, the Philippine Islands, Finland, Mesopotamia and South Africa. Twenty per cent of the present production schedule will be shipped abroad, although it is already indicated that the quantity will not fill the demand.

R. J. Archer, vice-president, says that there has been a decisive improvement in many foreign countries, and that sales are increasing because af exchange favorable to export of American products.

In both overseas and domestic markets the company's distributors are featuring low cost, the economy stream-lining of the new Willys 77.

Hupmobile's aerodynamic bodies put this make into the class of cars having front seats capable of carrying three passengers in comfort.

Proving It Has Pulling Power

'Warming-Up Period' for Pontiac Reduced by Device on Engine

A cold weather feature of the 1934 Pontiac is a new type of quick-heating intake riser which reduces the "warm-up period" by half and so minimizes the need of using the choke.

"This development is as simple as it is important," says B. H. Anibal, vice-president in charge of engineering. The intake riser, which heats the fuel mixture with exhaust gases while conducting it from the carburetor to the cylinders, always has been made of cast iron.

"There was no particular reason for using cast iron. It was just used. We changed the material to sheet steel only 1-16 of an inch thick. Naturally a tube of this material heats through much more quickly than do those of thick cast iron. It's like the difference between a cast iron skillet and one made of thin steel or aluminum.

"As a result of this change, owners of 1934 Pontiacs find that they can push in the choke very quickly after the motor has started, with consequent improvement in performance and fuel economy."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17. — The bond market crept up to new highs since 1931 this week, while other financial markets held almost stationary.

Bonds were aided by further piling up of excess reserves of Federal Reserve member banks, and by sound money expressions from Washington, including the President's stand against greenbacks and Secretary Morgenthau's statement opposing silver legislation.

Silver metal and stocks of nonferrous metal producing companies were momentarily reactionary, giving a somewhat heavy cast to the stock market and the more sensitive staples on Thursday.

Stocks and principal commodities, in the main, however, ended the week with negligible changes from last Saturday.

The labor controversy in the automobile industry, with a possibility of a tieup at the season of heavy production, inspired a cautious attitude toward the security market generally in the final sessions of the week, and even bonds slipped back a trifle from the week's best levels.

Market analysts, however, pointed out that this is frequently a season of caution in the securities markets, for the spring business upturn usually reaches a peak in late March or April. With the various abnormal forces working at this time, analysts of business trends now find the outlook a bit perplexing, although the continued piling up of investment funds is widely described as potentially favorable.

Bonds were more active, with a turnover in the Stock Exchange of $91,079,000 par value, against $75,625,000 in the previous week. The price index of 60 corporate issues, ending the week at 85.5, showed a net gain of .9 of a point, the best in five weeks. The index closed .3 of a point under the week's best level, registered on Thursday.

Gain in Excess Reserves.

A further gain in excess reserve system member banks pushed the total to a new high above $1,400,000,000. Short term money rates remained abnormally low. Plans to set up a system to intermediate credit banks to make capital loans to industry, or to extend the loaning powers of the RFC, attracted considerable attention, as investment funds remained timid, and refinancing of capital expenditures through the securities markets continued at a standstill.

The stock market was quiet, but experienced moments of firmness, the price index of 90 issues registering a new high for 1934 early in the week. Thereafter, however, there was some drift downward, and closing at 84.9, the index showed a net loss for the week of .6 of one point.

Bar silver at New York ended the week ½ cent an ounce lower. Wheat futures at Chicago, however, were virtually unchanged from last Saturday, and cotton at New York off only 15 to 40 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges retained their comparative stability. Sterling was a little firmer, and some of the far Easterns sagged with silver.

Late Sell Off at Week End.

Stocks sagged toward the close of a dull market Saturday and finished with an average net loss of just a point. Activity increased a bit on the downturn after a very dull first hour and transactions for the session amounted to 725,500 shares.

The larger declines occurred among the industrial issues, several of which yielded one to two points or so. Alcohols tried a rally that brought some fair-sized gains until enthusiasm waned: Schenley made a new high on the early move. Wright Aeronautical had a splurge of more than five points before subsiding, though other aircrafts were inclined to ease. Homestake Mining climbed 10 points to a record high, then halved its gain.

Until the late sell-off many stocks scarcely moved. Later, pressure against Case and American Can disclosed some scarcity of nearby bids for these two leaders, and offerings increased throughout the list. U. S. Steel, General Motors, Allied Chemical, Chrysler, Johns-Manville and U. S. Smelting yielded around 1 to 2 points. Rails were fairly steady and utilities made generally slight concessions.

The labor situation in the automobile plants was still a matter of primary interest.

U. S. Governments Hold Rise.

United States Government bonds maintained their rise; otherwise the investment market was slightly irregular. In commodities, silver House bills as scheduled for Mon- House bill as scheduled for Monday, wheat was somewhat unsettled at the finish, canceling earlier gains. Cotton at New York was off a trifle.

Foreign exchanges were very quiet. French francs closed the week with no net change and sterling was off only ⅛-cent from last Saturday. Some gold imports that are still trickling in is metal that was bought several weeks ago and held back for shipment to this country.

Final foreign exchange rates found the British unit up ⅛ of a cent at $5.09¼. French francs were unchanged at 6.58 cents. Dutch guilders and Swiss francs also held to their previous levels at 67.32 cents and 32.29 cents, respectively. Belgian belgas firmed .01 of a cent at 23.32 cents and Canadian dollars were up 1-16 of a cent at 99.93¾ cents.

CORPORATION STATEMENTS

NEW YORK, March 17.—Alaska Juneau Gold Mining Co. reports profit of $1,497,253 for 1933 after depreciation, Federal taxes and other charges, but before depletion. This was equivalent to $1 a share on the capital stock and compares with $820,370, or 57 cents a share, in 1932. The company last year recovered 150,966 fine ounces of gold from 2,466,832 tons of ore, against 151,578 ounces from 2,414,469 tons the year before. Reporting a new policy in regard to purchase and sale of its stock in the open market, the company said that last July it sold at a substantial profit all shares owned for speculative purposes, and in the future would buy its own stock only for retirement. In accordance with this policy, 8300 shares have already been bought, President P. R. Bradley said.

Houston Natural Gas Corporation had net profit of $123,107 in 1933, equal after preferred dividends to 58 cents a share on the common and Class "A" stocks. This compares with $168,984, or 89 cents a share, on the combined junior issues in 1932.

Pittsburgh Screw & Bolt Corp. reports 1933 net loss of $143,700 against loss of $799,680 in 1932.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Raw sugar was unchanged today, although late yesterday there was a sale of 10,000 bags of Puerto Rican to a local refiner due the end of this month at 3.08, a decline of 2 points from the previous sale and a new low record price for the year. In addition, 32,000 bags of Cuban sold to an operator for April shipment at 3.42. Duty frees in nearby positions were still available today at 3.08, but refiners showed no further interest.

There was small trade in futures and after selling off 2 points on most positions under liquidation and commission-house selling on the easier spot market, prices rallied on covering and Cuban buying, with the market closing net unchanged. Sales were 4100 tons. Uncertainty over developments. May after selling at 1.53 rallied to 1.55, while December reacted from 1.70 to 1.72, with final prices at the best of the session.

Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.50 for fine granulated, with only a moderate withdrawal demand reported.

COTTON MARKET NARROW IN WEEK-END TRADING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—An opening advance in cotton was followed by declines under scattering liquidation in a comparatively narrow market Saturday. May deliveries after selling up to 12.20 at the start, eased off to 12.10 and closed at 12.13, with the general market closing steady at net losses of 1 to 3 points.

Opening prices were 6 to 7 points higher in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables. There was covering and trade buying and also some demand from Liverpool houses, but it was supplied at the initial prices and the market worked gradually lower during the balance of the morning.

Some selling was reported through brokers with continental connections, and there was a little selling by the South.

March sold off 12.05 and October to 12.35, making net declines of 1 to 5 points. Closing quotations were a shade up from the lowest.

The possibility that the house might take action on the Bankhead bill over the close of the market, probably led to evening-up of scattering accounts.

Washington reports estimating the acreage to be rented under contracts in this year's acreage adjustment program, at 15,152,653 acres, was about in line with previous figures.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 150,099 bales against 106,546 last year.

ZINC PRICE UNCHANGED WHILE LEAD HOLDS FIRM

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., March 17.—Smelters purchased 4830 tons of zinc concentrates in the Joplin district this week, while production fell to about half of normal, or to 3500 tons. Zinc price was unchanged at $30, while lead held firm at $40 to $42.50 a ton.

Unless weather conditions interfere, next week's production of zinc is expected to exceed 7000 tons, or about normal.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Copper consumers were moderately active buyers of metal this week at the unchanged basis of 8 cents for electrolytic as a result of increased movement of products from brass and wire mills. Purchases extended into the second quarter. Although some disappointment was expressed in the trade over adjournment of copper code hearings at Washington, with the administration suggesting a revised form for consideration next week, it had little market influence. Unofficial statistics for February reflected a substantial decrease in North and South American refined stocks.

Although tin prices advanced about ¾ cent per pound, buyers withdrew and the market reacted later in the week. Sales of metal for the period were small. In the meantime, tin plate mill operations were said to continue at around 80 per cent of capacity.

Lead smelters reported a fair volume of business at unchanged prices. Buying from various consuming trades was said to reflect business improvement in different industries. Part of the demand was said to be in expectation of seasonal improvement in the paint industry. Demand was still centered principally on prompt requirements.

Zinc remained dull with a few more sellers said to be meeting recent slight concessions available elsewhere for prompt metal. Limited demand was reported.

Antimony advanced further on additional gains in the hinese and London markets. Little or no business developed at the higher levels.

While the national average of steel production experienced a slight recession in the past week as a result of lessened demand from the automotive industry and miscellaneous consumers, Eastern plants were increasing production owing to expanding railroad releases. The labor situation in the Detroit area was being watched for possible further effect on steel demand. Finished prices weer unchanged, but scrap weakened. Pig iron shipments varied in different districts, with prices steady.

SOME NEW HIGHS FOR YEAR IN BOND LIST

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Minor irregularities marked today's brief session of the bond market, but most U. S. Government securities and various corporation issues managed to edge into new high territory for the past year or longer.

Trading was quiet throughout and transfers totaled only $7,892,000, par value, against $8,333,000 last Saturday. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds eased one-tenth of a point at 85.5. On the week this average was up nine-tenths of a point.

The strike situation in the automobile industry continued to be somewhat of an unsettling factor.

While traders and investors were a little nervous, there was little urgent selling apparent. At the same time quiet buying was reported on the mild reactions.

The persistent strength of Federal loans was impressive. Although the turnover in this department was not large, nine of the Treasuries and Liberty 3½s established new 1934 tops.

Among the higher rails, utilities and industrials were some issues of Alleghany Corp., Central Pacific, Consolidated Gas, Great Northern, Hudson & Manhattan, International Telephone, Laclede Gas, Loew's, Louisville & Nashville, Montana Power, National Dairy, National Steel, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, Utah Light, Western Pacific and Western Union.

Moderate losers included loans of United Drug, U. S. Rubber, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, Postal, Telegraph, Interborough Rapid Transit, Goodrich, Goodyear, Dodge Bros., Denver & Rio Grande, Chicago & Western Indiana, Chicago & Northwestern, American Sugar Refining and American Rolling Mill.

Weakness of the Germans was the feature of the foreign section. This group was affected by the gloomy forebodings expressed by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, over Germany's financial situation. The Government's 7s and 5½s dropped 4½ to 3½ points, respectively and other Reich issues were off 1 to 2 or more. Other foreign loans were inclined to ease.

SLIGHTLY IRREGULAR CLOSE ON THE CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—The curb market dipped at the finish today to give final quotations a slightly irregular appearance. Early dealings were steady and dull but volume increased moderately on the late selling.

Narrowly mixed price changes embraced utilities and oils. Metals favored a slightly lower level. Hiram Walker lost a point but other alcohols were virtually without change, in neglected dealings.

Transfers approximated 168,000 shares compared with 137,000 for last Saturday.

NARROW RANGE, HIGHER CLOSE TO WHEAT TRADE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANT'S EXCHANGE, March 17.—Lower trends in securities and cotton markets affected wheat prices in week-end trading. May wheat closed ⅛c higher, which was low point of day. There was crop estimates and weather reports from Southwest.

Liverpool closed ⅛d lower after a rise of similar amount at outset.

Winnipeg closed ¼@⅜c lower.

May wheat opened at 85⅞, up ⅜c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 30,000 bushels, compared with 32,200 last week and 91,500 last year, included 8 cars local and 12 through. Corn receipts, which were 55,500 bushels, compared with 54,000 last week and 63,000 last year, included 31 cars local and 6 through. Oats receipts, which were 12,000 bushels, compared with 8000 last week and 10,000 last year, included 5 cars local and 1 through. Hay receipts were 6 cars local and 1 through.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was steady. Hard wheat was nominally steady. There was little soft wheat on sale and the demand was just fair. The grain was taken on outside order account. No tonnage wheat was in larger supply than usual and was divided up between mills and elevators. No hard wheat was offered. Corn was unchanged to ½c higher. The small supply available was readily absorbed. Bulk of the sales were made to industries. Oats were ½c higher. Supply was very light. Choice kinds were in demand. Feeders and elevators were the buyers.

Wheat was steady; corn unchanged to 1c higher; and oats ½c higher.

Sales of cash grain made on the floor exchange were as follows:

No. 2 red winter wheat, 89@89½c.

No. 2 mixed corn, 50c; No. 2 yellow corn, 50@50¼c; No. 3 yellow corn, 50c; No. 4 yellow corn, 49½c; No. 3 white corn, 50c.

No. 2 white oats, 36½c.

SETBACKS IN STOCKS AND COTTON AFFECT WHEAT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 17.—Wheat rose about a cent a bushel today, but gains failed to hold in the face of late setbacks both of securities and of cotton.

Accelerating the transient upturn of the wheat market were severe dust storms in the Southwest and West, with a sudden sharp drop of temperatures to far below freezing. Subsequently, wheat values were bearishly affected by snowfalls and sleet over the dust areas and by an unofficial estimate suggesting possibility that the United States this season would have a total wheat supply of 950,000,000 bushels, compared with 913,000,000 last year.

The fact that today's wheat trade as a whole lacked volume made the market readily susceptible to late weakness of stocks and cotton and to bearish figures on 1934 wheat supplies in the United States. A leading trade authority here was out with a tentative estimate that the prospective domestic yield of wheat this season would be around 700,000,000 bushels and the carry-over on July 1 would reach 250,000,000. Last year the crop was 527,000,000 bushels and the carry-over 386,000,000.

Corn and oats were firmer than wheat, stimulated by prospects of corn export business. March corn contracts at Buenos Aires jumped 2⅜ cents today to about 5½ cents above Chicago May delivery.

Provisions tended downward as a result of scattered selling and of only indifferent demand.

Wheat closed nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to ¼ higher, May 87⅜@87½, corn ⅛@⅜ up, oats ⅛@⅜ advanced, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents decline.

Silver legislation question and talk that taxes on grain futures would be reduced were also bullish factors.

Wheat rose gradually about a cent a bushel. Southwestern dispatches said dust storms preceding snowfalls had been severe. A sharp sudden drop to freezing temperatures was also a subject of comment. Liquidations of May contracts, however, led to price setbacks which at times carried the market down to below yesterday's finish.

Comprehensive cable summaries said the condition of European wheat crops was not as favorable as a year ago, and that belief was widespread the 1934 yields would be considerably smaller than harvested in 1933. In France, alternate freezing and thawing was reported to have caused damage, and there were unfavorable prospects also in Germany and Italy. Drought in Great Britain was asserted to be imperiling water supplies of cities.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 11,730,000 bushels and corn 2,358,000.

SAARBRUECKEN, March 15.

THE Saar is a speck of land seven-tenths as large as the smallest American state, Rhode Island. It lies between France and Germany. It contains 16 billion tons of coal and 823,000 people. In 1935 its inhabitants will vote for or against Hitler. If they vote against Hitler the Saar could move up to place number one in the list of trouble breeders on this continent. The chances, as estimated in this capital city of the Saar today, seem to be 90 per cent, that a majority will vote for Hitler.

The campaign has just begun. A huge swastika banner floats down from a house on the main street of Saarbruecken. In the window of the house is a picture of Adolf Hitler as a saint. Next door a bookshop flaunts a cartoon of him as the devil. Crowds from the Nazi camp trade glares with crowds from the anti-Nazi camp.

The Nazis call the anti-Nazis traitors. The anti-Nazis call the Nazis beasts. They are ready to mutilate each other today. By the time election day comes they may be ready for murder. If murder starts, French troops may be asked to come to keep order. If French troops should come and should have to shoot, what would Germans do? Of all the worried men in Europe there are none more anxious today than the Saar authorities.

Fight Centers Around Hitler.

The "Saar question" has ceased to be a Franco-German question. It requires a trip to this tiny territory to realize that the conflict here is purely an internal German conflict. It is a conflict over Hitler.

Adolf Hitler was unknown to the makers of the Treaty of Versailles. When the paragraphs concerning the Saar were written, the present Chancellor of Germany was a lance corporal just demobilized, and casting about in Munich for a political toehold.

So the treaty makers wrote that because the German army had destroyed the coal mines in Northern France, the Saar coal mines should go to France and the Saar territory should cease to be a part of Germany for 15 years. It would become a customs and currency unit with France. It would be governed by a commission of the League of Nations. The mines would be counted as worth 300,000,000 gold marks on the sum Germany owed France for reparations. At the end of 15 years the population would vote. If they voted to return to Germany, France would resell the mines to Germany at a price fixed by one French, one German and one neutral expert.

Every person above 20 years old and who had lived in the Saar at the time the treaty was made, will be asked to answer: "Do you want the Saar to remain as it is, under the government of the League, and in customs union with France?" or "Do you want the Saar to become a part of France?" or "Do you want the Saar to return to Germany?"

A New Division.

Until January, 1933, the result of this plebiscite was a foregone conclusion. In the whole Saar there are perhaps 8000 French employes of the mines and a scattering of other French families. German is the only language heard. The architecture, food, atmosphere, people are emphatically German. Ten minutes' motorcar ride away the hotels in France serve tournedos and wine. Here they serve kalbsbraten and beer. The distance from Saarbruecken to the French border is a step, but that step measures all the distance between the Latin and the Teuton.

Until January, 1933, it was anticipated that at least 95 per cent of the population would vote for Germany. France knew it. She did not expect to keep the Saar. In 1930, Stresemann, having persuaded Briand to evacuate the Rhineland ahead of time, had persuaded him to give up the Saar also. But Stresemann died. And three years later Hitler came. Immediately the 100 per cent German population of the Saar divided on the Hitler line.

Today nobody of any importance in the Saar is campaigning to make the Saar French. But thousands are campaigning to make it stay under the League. They are Social Democrats, Catholics, Communists, Jews, everybody who feels he has something to lose by becoming a citizen of the Third Reich.

Before Hitler, 90 per cent of the people of the Saar would have voted for Germany. To-

Government Figures Show 4,000,000 Would Be Idle Even With Industrial Production Restored to Levels of 1929

Four-Day Week Would Not Employ All Who Worked in Major Industries in 1929

NUMBER of workers in 1929 in four classifications—manufacturing industries, non-manufacturing industries, coal and steam railroads 16,000,000

The National Bureau of Labor has analyzed its statistics of unemployment and estimated the effect of a hypothetical 32-hour, or four-day week, in industry.

Manufacturing Industries: A thirty-two hour week for the 6,550,000 employed five years ago would still leave in idleness 1,151,000

Steam Railroads: A thirty-two hour week for the 1,687,000 who had employment in 1929, would fall short of work for 267,000

Anthracite Coal Mining: The average weekly hours in July, 1933, were only 31.3 because of increased competition from oil and other fuels. A continuation of those hours would give work to only 85,000, leaving idle miners numbering... 57,000

Non-Manufacturing Industries: A 32-hour week would employ only 330,000 more than the 7,500,000 employed in 1929.

Statistics indicate that there are today from 4,000,000 to 6,000,000 more available workers than there were in 1929. There were, in that year of wide prosperity, from 1,000,000 to 2,200,000 unemployed. Second, there has been an increase of 4.3 in the population of working age; third, improved machinery and improved processes has increased productivity 15 per cent since 1929; fourth, a number of small business men, clerks, farm helpers and others unclassified have been forced into the ranks of the unemployed since 1929—possibly as numerous as 1,500,000.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, March 17.

THERE is not enough work available today in private industry to go around. To be more explicit, the earnings of industry at current price and production levels, even if devoted in full to the employment of labor, would still be insufficient to permit the absorption of more than a fraction of the millions of workers who are without jobs or depending upon emergency government work.

Some re-employment is possible, in some industries. This is what the President and General Johnson are trying to bring about. The object is to reduce the drain on the public treasury as much as possible without placing an intolerable burden upon private employers. No harder problem faces the Government.

What is said here of the present applies also to the predictable future: it is not possible for industry under the prevailing profit system, barring some miraculous job-creating development, to wipe out unemployment. It follows that numbers of persons who want and need work but cannot get it in private employment must continue to be provided for at public expense. Whether these numbers are large or relatively small depends upon the state of industry at any given time and the extent to which, voluntarily or under compulsion, it distributes profits to workers.

Estimating the Number of Jobless.

What are the facts on which these conclusions are based? So far as industry as a whole is concerned, without regard to the ability of particular lines of industry to increase their payrolls, the facts can be stated by means of a few large figures.

There are now at least 10,000,000 employable persons without jobs in industry. The American Federation of Labor, whose estimates are generally accepted by official Washington as trustworthy, places the current total at more than 11,000,000, and a recent study by the Department of Commerce says the probable total for 1932 was 14,400,000, in which case we may accept 10,000,000 as a highly conservative estimate as of today.

Let us take $1000 a year as a bare subsistence wage. (The average received by wage earners in mining, manufacturing, construction and transportation was $1406 in 1929, $1331 in 1930, $1186 in 1931 and $959 in 1932.) To give work to 10,000,000 persons at $1000 a year each would require $10,000,000,000.

But industry in 1932 operated at a loss. Dividends, it is true, continued to be paid, but in the large they came out of surplus. The Department of Commerce, in its study of the national income, 1929 to 1932, recently sent to Congress, estimates dividend payments for 1932 (payments going into the national income stream, exclusive of dividends paid by corporations to other corporations) at $2,590,000,000. If all these payments to individual stockholders had been diverted to the employment of new workers, the number so employed, at $1000 each, would have been only 2,590,000, or only about one-fourth of the number now conservatively estimated to be unemployed.

If All Profit Went to Labor.

Interest payments in the same year (1932) aggregated, according to the same authoritative study, $5,506,000,000, and the total "property income," including dividends, interest and the net balance of the international flow of property income, was $8,489,000,000. If, as some students do, we classify net rents and royalties as property income, we reach a total of $10,180,000,000. That is to say, the complete diversion of the property income in the United States in 1932 would have been required to take care of 10,000,000 persons in jobs at $1000 each.

What of 1933? The business pick-up in the latter part of the year, which has continued into 1934, is reflected in a recent tabulation showing, for 810 representative companies in various lines of industry and trade, net profits of $441,000,000 as contrasted with a net deficit of $46,000,000 for the same companies in 1932. This improvement, though achieved in part by economies of operation and by writing off of capital investment, is encouraging; but by no stretch of the imagination can it be construed to indicate a prospective solution of the unemployment problem.

The Department of Commerce estimates that the national income produced in the United States in 1932 was $38,349,000,000 (which may be compared, incidentally, with $83,037,000,000 in 1929, $70,484,000,000 in 1930 and $54,652,000,000 in 1931). Estimates carried forward by the National Industrial Conference Board indicate that in 1933 the national income was $39,800,000,000, or an increase of approximately $1,500,000,000 over the income for 1932. Had the whole of this increase been applied to the employment of workers, it would have taken care of only 1,500,000 at $1000 a year each.

Plans on Paper Not Always Workable.

The most that General Johnson has suggested, for the present, is that industry add to its labor costs an amount sufficient to re-employ 1,000,000 workers, or one-tenth of those industrially unemployed. This billion dollars or thereabouts, it is argued, would so swell the stream of purchasing power that further business recovery would ensue, which recovery would make possible the employment of more workers, and so on in a beneficent spiral.

Donald R. Richberg, general counsel of the NRA, told the recent code authorities' conference in Washington that the experience of the code makers had "proved the necessity of varying the application of a theory to meet the stern realities of existing conditions." Anybody, he said, could solve the unemployment problem on paper by reducing the hours of labor to a point that would permit every employable person to have a job.

"But," he added, "if you face the facts of trade and industry, you will find that whereas the hours of work can be readily shortened in some industries with little additional cost or trouble, the effect of the same shortening in another industry may be to require huge expenditures in additional plant capacity, or a heavy increase in man hours required for the same production.

"We have long ago learned that the mere spread of work is no way to relieve a depression, or to revive business. If hours are to be shortened, wage rates must be increased or else the worker is merely sharing his livelihood with another worker. This raises at once the question as to how far wage rates can be increased without bankrupting innumerable employers. Here again there is no standard which can be applied to all trades, or to all the enterprises in one industry. But it has been demonstrated, in these months of extensive code making, that the larger enterprises, with their reserves and surpluses and sources of credit, can accept the burden of a percentage payroll increase which may be absolutely ruinous to their small competitors."

How Wage Earners Are Distributed.

Statistics of the Department of Commerce show the large extent to which the workers of the country are in "small industries." Out of a total of 48,829,000 persons estimated to have been gainfully employed in 1930, only 14,110,000 were in manufacturing and mechanical industries, and of these, 42 per cent were employed by concerns with an annual production of less than $1,000,000. Outside of manufacturing and mechanical industries, the largest group of gainfully employed persons was in agriculture—10,471,000. Other large classes were: Transportation and communications, 3,843,000; trade, 6,081,000; professional service, $3,253,000; domestic and personal service, 4,952,000; clerical occupations, 4,025,000.

The trade classification covers both wholesale and retail establishments. A. D. Whiteside, deputy NRA administrator, estimated at a code hearing that there are about 1,500,000 of the latter, employing about 5,000,000 persons. In about 429,000 of these stores the investment is not more than $500.

Prosperous Days Found Many Idle.

Estimates based on the figures of the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor show that if we should return to the industrial levels of the boom year of 1929, at least 4,000,000 employable persons would be without jobs.

General Johnson, among others, has made this calculation to illustrate the necessity of shortening work hours, and his statement has been quoted and approved by the American Federation of Labor. Four million, clearly, is a minimum estimate. Some authorities place the total at six million.

What is the ground for the estimate that the number of employable persons today is from four to six million greater than the number of workers employed in 1929? Four factors, some or all of which are commonly overlooked in discussions of unemployment, justify the estimate.

(1) Notwithstanding the high level of production in 1929, there were in that year at least 1,000,000 unemployed workers. Figures used in the previously quoted study of the Department of Commerce indicate that the total may have been as high as 2,200,000.

(2) There has been a 4.3 per cent increase in population since 1929. The average age of the population also has increased; hence the gain in the number of persons of working age is greater than the 4.3 per cent increase for the whole population would indicate.

(3) Owing to the increased use of machinery and to improved processes, there has been a 15 per cent increase in the productivity of labor since 1929.

(4) Large numbers of small business men, of farmers and of others who formerly enjoyed independent livelihoods have been forced into the ranks of the unemployed. These constitute a new class of people looking for work and are believed to aggregate from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 of working age. Acreage reduction programs of the Government will tend to swell their numbers.

Producers, Capital, Wages and Profit.

Let us assume now an overnight return to the production levels of 1929, but with 6,000,000 more people available for gainful employment than were actually employed in 1929. When all the factors making for an increase are weighed—the number of unemployed in 1929, the growth of population, technological improvements and the constant displacement of "marginal" men from the independent callings—it is seen that the 6,000,000 estimate cannot be far off the mark. The first and fourth items alone account for close to 4,000,000.

Now in 1929, there was produced in the United States, according to the study of the Department of Commerce, national income totaling about $83,000,000,000. Income paid out, in salaries, wages, dividends, interest, rents and all other ways, was about $81,000,000,000, so that there was left what the department classifies as business "savings" of $2,000,000,000, i. e., the amount retained by corporate and individual enterprises. (Incidentally, 1929 was the last year of such "savings"; in 1932, income paid out exceeded income produced by more than $10,000,000,000.)

If we add to the $2,000,000,000 "saving," or surplus, the amount paid out in dividends, roughly $6,000,000,000, we reach a total of $8,000,000,000.

If devoted wholly to employment—all dividends and surplus being abandoned—this sum would hire our hypothetical 6,000,000 workers at $1333 a year each, which is slightly less than the average wage actually paid in mining, manufacturing, construction and transportation in 1929.

Possible End of Industry for Gain.

Thus unemployment would be wiped out by industry without governmental aid, but at the sacrifice of all corporate profits beyond those required for fixed charges—interest—which in 1929 amounted to $5,687,000,000.

But industry under the present economic system, which no program of the Government seeks fundamentally to change, is operated for profit, and if profit were eliminated industry as now organized would pass out.

Of course the answer may be made—and is made—that the gradual re-employment of workers is possible; that such re-employment adds to purchasing power and hence to the profits of industry, thereby enabling more workers to be hired, and so on and on in the beneficent spiral we have mentioned, the opposite of the malevolent downward spiral of depression. This is true, but there is a limiting factor in the process—that of profit. There comes a time (witness 1929) when production, stimulated by the natural desire for profit, outruns the purchasing power distributed in the form of wages; then prices fall and the downward spiral, marked throughout by increasing unemployment, begins. All this has become too obvious, from the hard lessons of the past few years, to need elaboration.

How Much Sacrifice Will Capital Offer?

It would seem, from all the evidence, that the extent to which industry, of and in itself, can solve the unemployment problem must depend on the extent to which it is willing or is compelled to share its gains with workers.

At present its gains are slight; however well intentioned, it can now do little toward a solution. What it can do ultimately remains a question, but there can be no question that, with the present and prospective surplusage of labor, due to the growing mechanization of industry and other factors, industry as now organized for profit cannot absorb all the available workers and survive. It can absorb some at present, and, with recovery, more as time goes on—but not all. This is the proposition with which, on the authority of students of the problem and of government officials in close touch with it, we started.

Important factors which have made for the unemployment increase of the last few years are still effective. Among them, notably, are the displacement of workers by the machine and the transformation of small merchants and farmers—little capitalists—into job seekers.

As to the reduction in hours that would be necessary to cure unemployment in various lines, we have, fortunately, the published fig-

Millerand States French View of the European Status

Chides United States for Giving Advice While Avoiding Responsibility—Says Austro-German Union Is Hitler's Controlling Thought.

By ALEXANDRE MILLERAND
(Former President of France.)
PARIS, March 17.

THE dominant trait in French policy since the war is attachment to peace.

The reasons are evident. Aside from the fact that we left 1,500,000 dead on the field of battle, it was on French soil that the hostilities took place during more than four years.

Ten of our departments were invaded and looted and the war left upon us ineffaceable marks.

This explained the popularity of Briand who declared one day either from pride or with prevision:

"As long as I am here there will not be war."

Like him the French people with touching faith and enthusiasm warmly welcomed each succesive manifestation of pacific intent, notably the Locarno pact and the Kellogg agreement, to give two examples.

The League of Nations knew no participants more devoted to its principles and more fervent than France's delegates.

Results of Blindness.

From these intentions, both so natural and so honorable, Germany has not neglected to extract an advantage. Of this the memories of Stresemann furnish irrefutable proof. The unforgettable evacuation in advance of the Rhine country, abandonment of preparations and the ill-advised recognition in December, 1932, of the principle of equality rights are the principal results of our blindness.

The result, easily foreseen, of this state of mind has been French policy dedicated to avoiding anything which might thwart initiatives and undertakings taken by England, Italy or even the United States, who is still lavish in giving us advice but declares itself determined to escape all responsibility.

For the above reason we signed the Four Power pact, which, however, has not been ratified, and agreed to most of the proposals of the British disarmament plan, which I must confess, differs little from Paul Boncour's.

While thus we moved toward progressive disarmament of France, Germany rearmed. If this important happening did not suffice to unseal the eyes of our rulers—for it was in 1933 that the Four Power pact was signed and practically total approval was given the MacDonald plan—the Hitlerite explosion did profoundly shake up French public opinion.

It showed how paradoxical was the coincident disarming of France and rearming of Germany. Emphasis was lent our feeling as it became apparent how chimerical were the so-called guarantees with which our yielding was camouflaged.

However, drawn along by the current into which we had plunged, French policy adopted a seductive but deceiving motto:

"Neither victors nor vanquished."

To show the vanquished the same treatment and extend them the same confidence as we would show conquerors is impossible unless the conquered and conquerors are agreed to accept without reservations the new law setup in Europe.

But that is not the case as we know only too well. Since the moment they signed the treaties of Versailles and Trianon, Germany and Hungary have had but one thought, to overthrow them. Revision of treaties has been their motto.

States born of the treaties which ended hostilities, or enlarged by them, have naturally been alarmed by France's easy-going attitude towards her former enemies.

The Little Entente.

If they have not doubted France's loyalty, France can hardly blame them for doubting her intelligence. From this doubt was born the Little Entente.

Foreign Minister Benes of Czecho-Slovakia, who with Titulescu represents most authoritatively this new formation, explained without ambiguities its object when he said:

"It is in the name of the most fundamental policy of the Little Entente that we reject anything tending to modify present frontiers. On this point we will not yield to anyone."

France welcomed this union as an outgrowth of mutually inextricable interests and

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

What Is Wrong With Radio?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN Cleveland recently, the telephone company had its operator call 210 homes of 18 of its residential exchanges. This was done on a Monday night, during the hour when Bing Crosby was on one local station and Lawrence Tibbett on another. Here were two topnotch programs of two entirely different sorts. As people answered, the operator asked them to which of these programs they were listening at the moment.

Of the 210 homes called, 81 did not answer. Here were almost 40 per cent of this cross-section of the population who found other things of more interest than the radio. Of the 129 who responded, 64 did not have their radio sets turned on.

The serious thing about this check is that of the 210 homes, only 30 per cent were listening to the radio. Fifty per cent of the radio receivers were shut off. This situation challenges the best thought of the powers that have invested fortunes in the business of broadcasting.

What is wrong with radio? Ask almost anyone that question and he will reply, "Too much advertising. Too much mediocrity. Too much sameness." And now we are beginning to get double doses of advertising. One sponsor interrupts his program with tiresome and long-winded discourses on what to eat. If his food sours, the local station offers you the best remedy for indigestion.

How many, many so-called artists turn out to be mere mediocrities, and how many programs are utter trash! Would anyone pay real money to see them? I think not. As for sameness, one may frequently hear the same songs and jokes on two or three different programs. Some of the wise sponsors have sensed this tiresome sameness and filled their programs with variety. But most of them insist upon giving us the same entertainment weekly, semi-weekly or twice in awhile.

My biggest peeve is the "cut" in the Carefree Carnival merely to insert a commercial blurb anent the ventilating system of a certain railroad. Then I have to scramble all over the dial to find a station with the same program. I was listening to a band concert the other night and had to get three stations to finish one program and later had to tune in on a Canadian station to get the conclusion of a concert played by an American orchestra.

No wonder 50 per cent of radio sets are dark. And this percentage is going to increase unless sponsors can find a less obnoxious and more subtle method of getting their advertising across.

Alton, Ill. JAMES McINTOSH.

A Plea for Care of Young Trees.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM writing this in the hope that all those who have had new trees planted in front of their homes or places of business will not forget to give them water. It is such a little thing to do for the beauty and shade which they give, and the effort will be repaid, many, many times.

During the summer, take a walk or ride on the streets where the trees are already established and notice how much cooler it is, and how beautiful they are with their different shades of green, their differently shaped leaves, and the various forms of bark and growth.

What a beautiful city this will be, if all the trees grow that are planted! It is up to you, good citizen, so please give them a drink—one bucketful of water a day, if there is no rain.

A LOVER OF TREES.

As the Old Order Passes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ILLITERACY has been eliminated, but not stupidity. Our citizens are educated, but are incapable of feeding, clothing and sheltering themselves in an orderly and intelligent manner. Our university graduates are in the breadlines, for all their learning. A foul enchantment paralyzes public thought and action.

In the heart of every city, slums. In the heart of every citizen, despair! Thousands of idle workers, capable of building palaces, housed in slums. More thousands, capable of preparing banquets, barred from labor, rationed by charity. Thousands more on useless errands, to get a few cents for tomorrow's food. Five years of it—five long years of waiting for the capitalist to get back to his job of "furnishing employment." Five years of patience while the master minds confer as to what is to be done. God knows how many more years of the same!

Old men feel that never again shall they have comfort and security, while they read about coffee, food and textile fibers being destroyed on account of superabundance. Young men wonder what they have been brought into the world for.

Thus does a cruel and outworn system die. Universal poverty and desperation are the prelude to universal awakening. All over the world, Christian or pagan, democracy or tyranny, the universal blight has fallen. With gold money, or silver, cowrie shells or bank currency, capitalism chokes in the superabundance of commodities, here and everywhere.

But we dream of a new order of things. Clear minds, brave hearts will bring it to pass. We must pay for having consented to the rule of selfishness.

FRANCIS PETER.

Secretary Wallace and the Agricultural Riddle

The quality which distinguishes a real statesman from a mere politician is the capacity, all too rarely found, to translate complex economic issues into such intelligible human terms that the people may wisely agree upon those policies which best serve their common interest.

The study of American trade policy which Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has prepared for the Foreign Policy Association and the World Peace Foundation shows that he possesses this capacity to a marked degree. It is calm, dispassionate, thorough and scholarly. Yet, at the same time, it presents the alternatives which now confront our people with such clarity that their respective implications must become apparent to every honest mind.

Mr. Wallace finds that four possible courses lie before us. We can continue to let things drift, as we did during the 12 years which followed the war. We can move toward internationalism. We can move toward nationalism. Or we can deliberately set a middle course between these two extremes. Each of these alternatives has its costs. The Secretary enumerates them candidly, courageously and with rare impartiality.

The policy of drift is the policy of selling increasing quantities of goods abroad while we refuse to buy abroad. Such a policy denies the realities of international trade. It makes heavy foreign loans and raises tariffs to prevent their repayment. It imposes heavy losses on domestic purchasers of foreign securities. It creates a fictitious foreign market, which is certain shortly to disappear. It engenders international ill will. It may provoke uncontrollable inflation. It leads inescapably, as it did in 1929, to industrial depression. When we attempt to promote exports by depreciating our currency or by making increasing sales on credit to Russia or to the Orient, without at the same time lowering our tariffs, we are treading this path. We are attempting both to eat our cake and to have it. We are merely closing our eyes to the catastrophe which will inevitably overtake us.

The Secretary admits that he personally inclines toward internationalism. But internationalism, too, has its costs. It would require us to import a billion dollars more, in goods every year than we did in 1929. It would impose serious losses on the growers of flax and wool and sugar beets. It would put some weak and inefficiently managed American factories out of business. It would force others to face foreign competition. Temporarily, it would increase unemployment. It would require careful planning to determine which industries we were willing to sacrifice that the rest of our economy might prosper. The price which we would have to pay for internationalism is high.

The price of nationalism would be even higher. We have already retired over 40,000,000 acres from production, an eighth of our crop land. Nationalism would retire 100,000,000 acres, an area larger than the combined states of West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. It would necessitate the forcible uprooting of some 7,000,000 people in the cotton, corn and wheat belts and their transplantation in other areas. Agriculture would become a public utility. A quota would be fixed for every farmer for every crop for every month of the year. Crops would be grown under license and, in the words of the Secretary, "Every plowed field would have its permit sticking up on its post." Marketing would be subjected to compulsory control; surpluses would be handled by the state; government ownership would be rapidly extended. Freedom would give way to regimentation. For some goods which we enjoy today—rubber, sugar, tea—we would pay an ever and ever higher price. Others we would perforce learn to do without. The standard of living would fall.

The fourth course is a compromise between the impossible extremes of nationalism and internationalism. It calls not for a drastic but for a moderate reduction in tariffs to admit not another billion dollars but a half-billion in additional imports. Instead of retiring from 40,000,000 to 100,000,000 acres of land from agricultural production, it would retire 25,000,000. It would move some people off the farms. It would expose some struggling factories to powerful foreign competition. But it would distribute the burden of readjustment. Like the other alternatives, it would require careful planning. It would provoke the opposition of special interests. But, in the opinion of Mr. Wallace, it is the plan which we are most likely to adopt and it is entitled to a trial.

Upon the choice which the nation will make among these alternatives rests the future of American agriculture. The Post-Dispatch has consistently opposed the regimentation which has been imposed upon the farmer by the present program of crop curtailment. But it appears that it is no more welcome to the Secretary than it is to us. He regards it purely as an emergency device. His department, he says, is "sparring with the situation until the American people are willing to face the facts—the bare, distasteful facts on such matters of policy as exports, imports, tariffs, international currency exchange, export quotas, import quotas and international debts."

The Secretary of Agriculture, then, is not willfully setting out to exploit the consumer by creating an artificial scarcity. He is merely doing the best he can in an impossible situation. He could scarcely do less. His analysis of the trade dilemma is admirable in its frank admission of difficulties, its judicious weighing of pros and cons, its freedom from bunk, its appeal to reasoned judgment.

It is seldom that a high public official has prepared a document of such unquestionable educational value. We believe that it should be made required reading in every school and college in the land. It should be thoughtfully read and widely discussed wherever men and women meet for an exchange of views. It is only through such informed discussion that democracy can come to solve its common problems. We must admit the sincerity of conflicting opinion, precisely as Mr. Wallace has done. We are confronted by a great riddle, a true test of the national wisdom.

The New Conservation Policy

For years, the country has sat back and watched its wildfowl diminish alarmingly as the great natural breeding and rest areas for geese, ducks, brant, etc., were destroyed by the encroachment of civilization and periods of drouth. Or, when the country has bestirred itself, it has been to limit game bags, shorten seasons and otherwise attempt to preserve wildfowl, not at its source, but at its destination.

As a result of surveys made and agitation aroused by intelligent conservationists, we are now embarking on a new conservation policy. Congress has passed, and the President is sure to sign, the Walcott-Kleberg duck stamp bill, providing an estimated revenue of $1,000,000 a year for the acquisition of breeding, feeding and resting refuges where no shooting will be allowed. This sum will properly come from the pockets of those who enjoy the sport of wildfowl shooting. Each wildfowl hunter will be required to purchase a $1 duck stamp and affix it to his hunting license.

In a volume published three years ago by the foundation, "More Game Birds in America," a graphic picture was painted of the devastation that has been visited upon what were once the inviolate haunts of wildfowl. Great areas of swamp land, reclaimed for agricultural purposes, must be returned to their original state. That will be good, not only for wildfowl, but for agriculture, groaning under its unsellable surpluses. With the refuges already established by states and the Federal Government, the duck stamp revenues, within a few years, should work remarkable changes in the wildfowl situation.

Perhaps it is not too much to hope for such an increase in the wild duck and goose population as to make it possible shortly to relax some of the restrictions which now bind hunters, as well as to abandon some of the suggestions made for still more and greater strictures. It is the hunters, after all, who originated the new conservation policy and who are paying for it. And there is no reason why, with careful administration, a sport that seemed to be on the verge of disappearing cannot be perpetuated.

Modern hunters read with envy such sagas as that written by the famed Capt. Bogardus, who hunted the prairies of Illinois and whose descriptions of the plentifulness of waterfowl and upland game stagger the imagination. Those days are gone forever, but we can always have plenty of game if we only permit the birds a chance to lay their eggs, rear their young and rest in natural surroundings. Nature will do the rest.

Aside from the duck stamp law, President Roosevelt has inaugurated numerous other conservation measures, and, according to American Game, "has done far more to advance the conservation movement in his first year in the White House than any of his predecessors accomplished during an entire administration."

We hail the new era in conservation.

A New Deal for the Law

In a nation-wide broadcast Wednesday evening, Attorney-General Cummings attacked abuses now ancient in our legal system. He scored the law's "inertia"—the product of antiquated rules of procedure in both state and Federal courts. And he smote forthrightly the lawyer who takes advantage of this antiquated procedure to obstruct justice.

Though the abuses are hoary with age and have been indicted by intelligent legalists for the past hundred years on innumerable occasions, it is the spirited protest of Mr. Cummings in a New Deal regime that arouses hope. Our law has been in as much need of a new shuffle as our economic system. Indeed, unless the wheels of justice are speeded up, it is very difficult to see how economic reform can succeed.

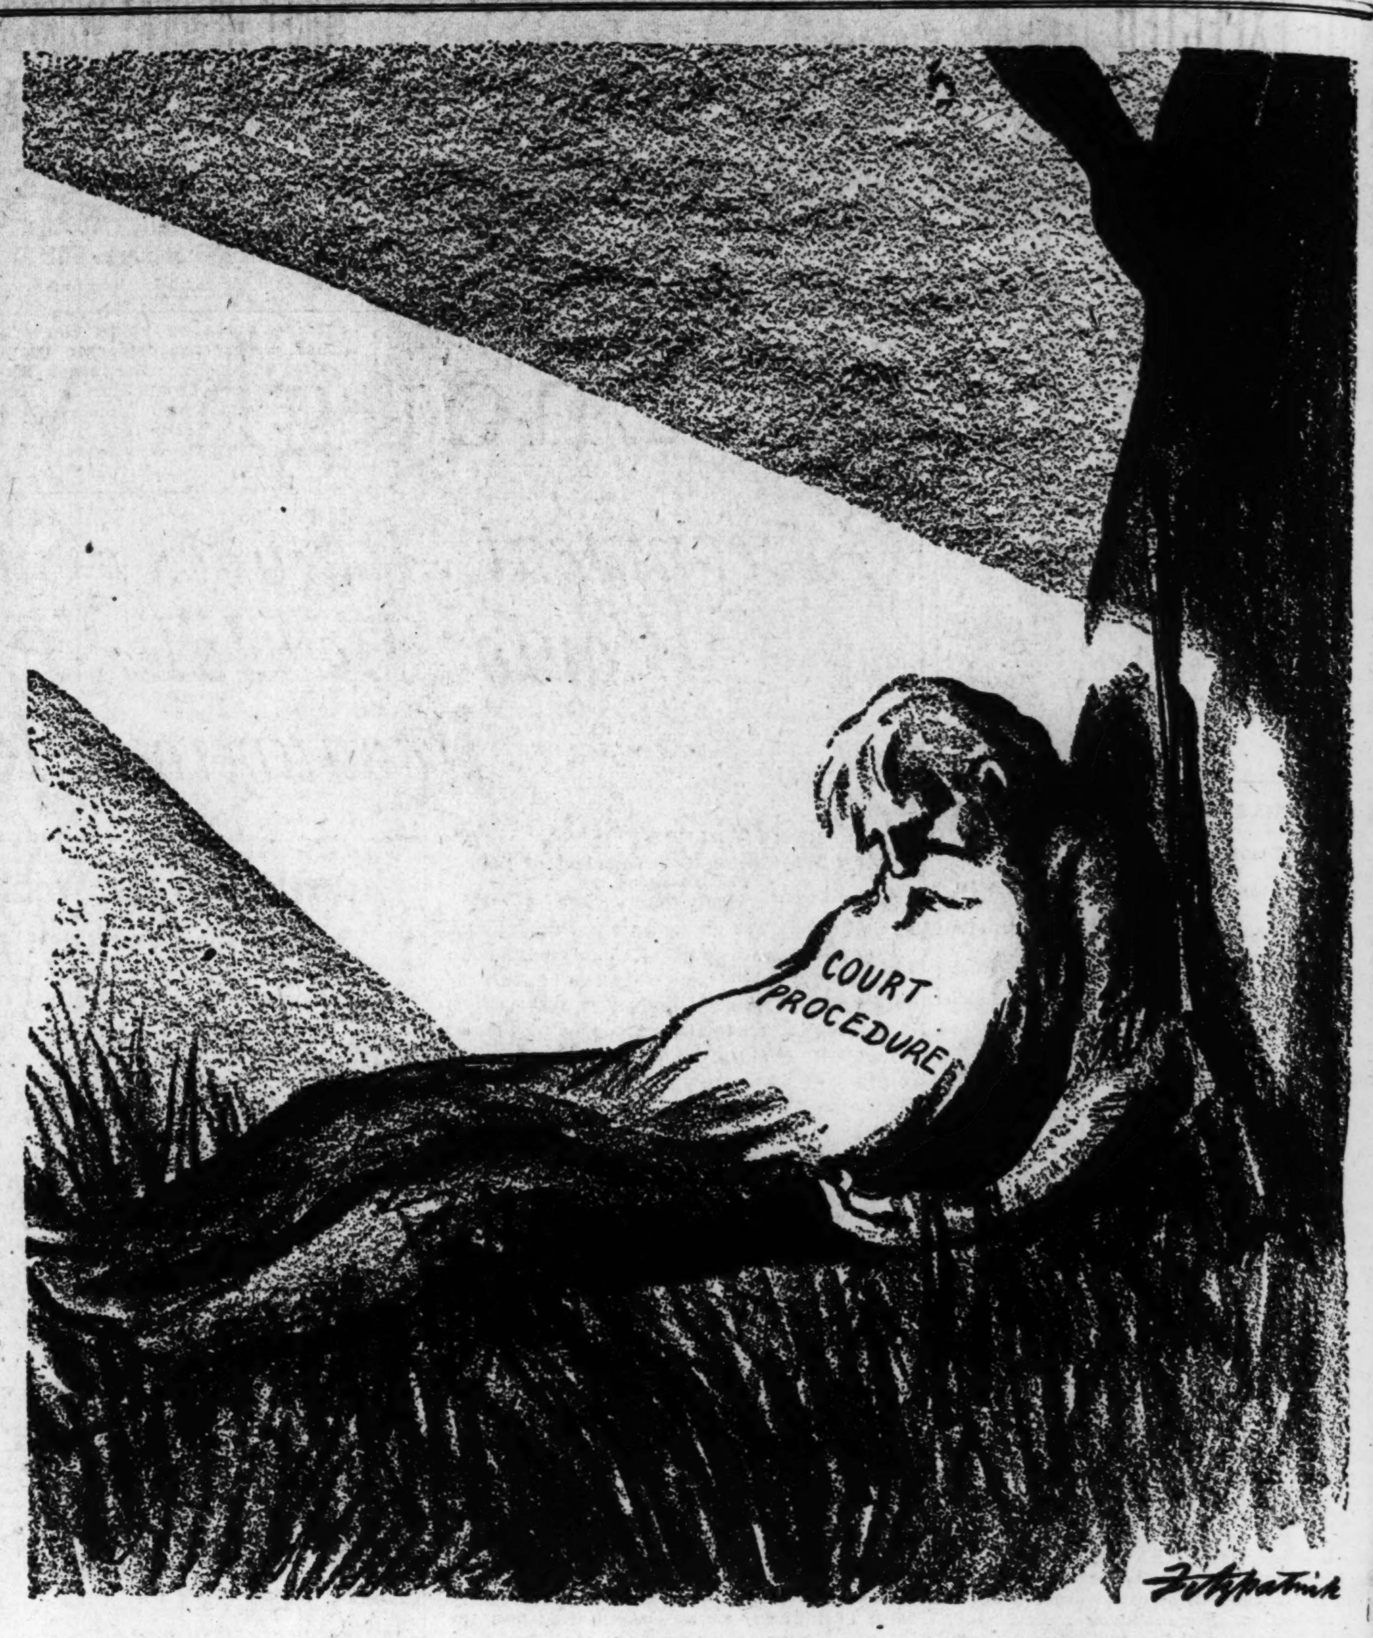
Within the last 20 years, the criminal jurisdiction of the Federal Government has grown rapidly. This has been due to the growth in the regulatory power of the Government—a regulatory power that depends for its life on the effective punishment of those who seek to evade or nullify its restrictions. On June 30, 1914, the Federal Government had 9958 uncompleted criminal prosecutions on its hands. During the year that followed, the Government started 19,868 new prosecutions. At the end of the year, it had been able to terminate only 19,120 cases. Thus the uncompleted prosecutions, on the eve of the year following, arose to 10,706. Since that date, the congestion has increased because the Government has been compelled to go into criminal law in a big way. On June 30, 1932, the Government had 23,012 criminal cases still unfinished. During the year, it began 82,675 new criminal indictments, and by the end of the year—June 30, 1933—it had completed only 84,780, leaving a residue for the new year of 20,907 cases still unfinished. At this rate—and this was a good year of work for Federal prosecutors—it would take a decade for the Government to get up to scratch.

With the passage of New Deal legislation such as the NRA, the Securities Act, the Banking Act and numerous other economic measures it is certain that the Federal Government is facing a serious crisis in its attempt to uphold the regulatory power of the state. And if this power is not upheld, the laissez-faire diehards may escape the handicaps of sound economic restrictions on their predatory activities, not by preventing the passage of such measures, but by making their enforcement a joke. This issue is momentous and challenging.

Mr. Cummings proposes the immediate passage of a law by Congress to permit the Supreme Court to regulate rules of procedure in civil suits brought in Federal courts. At present, Federal District Courts are called upon by an act of Congress to observe the procedural practices of the state courts where they are located. If this law were passed, the Federal courts would be emancipated at once from the antiquated procedural rules of state courts and a new day would dawn for the administration of Federal justice.

Mr. Cummings points out that the Supreme Court already has the power, and has exercised it, to regulate rules of procedure for cases in equity. Hence, nothing radical or dangerous is embodied in his proposal. And the last Congress gave the Supreme Court the power to regulate criminal procedure in all appellate cases. This still leaves the Federal District Courts shackled to the outworn criminal procedure of state courts. It is to be hoped that Congress will extend this act to permit the Supreme Court to regulate criminal procedure in District Courts also.

Mr. Cummings thinks that if the Federal Government will exert itself to make its legal machinery a model in every respect, such an example will not go unheeded by the states. That is sound argument, for it is hardly thinkable that bar associations and the people of 48 states will observe a thoroughgoing revolution in antiquated Federal procedure without initiating a drive to get the cobwebs off of state justice.



WAKE UP, RIP, THERE'S A NEW DEAL ON.

"Of Making Many Books"

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Grim Amusement

THE MENACE OF RECOVERY. By William MacDonald. (The Macmillan Co., New York City.)

THE value of this discussion of the New Deal up to the end of 1933 lies in the fact that it presents with patent sincerity the frankly reactionary point of view, and apparently without taint of political purpose.

Such a book is of timely importance, at least; for reactionism seems to be "coming to," after that wallop on the chin it took a year and more ago, and in its effort to "come back," we may expect a deal of artful dodging in no way applicable to the vital issue. It is well to know in advance just what, if anything, the old-timers can have to say for themselves in this, the twilight of their gods.

It is impossible to trace here the author's honest, sometimes pathetically honest, detailed argument against the various acts of the present administration. His summary of objections to the principles of the New Deal must suffice; but it would be worth any forward-looking reader's time to follow the man carefully, if for no other reason than to enjoy the view through the occasional gaping holes in his rational processes, and to note with what invariable precision he gives the wrong reasons for his most defensible objections.

In defending an impossible economic order, he seems to be in the position of a mathematician who undertakes to solve a problem in simultaneous equations erroneously stated. If 1 must equal 3 in order to justify the assumed proposition, the fault is not in the technical manipulation of the numerical details involved, which may be made to seem masterly enough, but in the original statement. The author's fundamental proposition is that "business," in the old accepted sense of competition for profit, must be "revived" if there is to be a "recovery." The proposition involves a ludicrous contradiction, which may be suggested roughly as follows:

Let 1 equal the total cost of production exclusive of wages. Let 1 equal the total buying power of the public acquired in the process of production. Let 1 equal the total profit to be realized in the putative interest of prosperity. Then the 1 of buying power must equal the 1 plus 1 plus 1 of price somehow. But 1 is only 1; and formerly the additional 2, necessary to a workable equation, was realized by selling surplus product in foreign markets—a game that has been given a nasty setback by the increasing necessity of other industrial nations to do the same. One social cost of that surplus product was the spread of poverty among the many and the growth of enormous fortunes among the few. A further cost is the growth of rabid nationalisms, now preparing for a leap at one another's throats.

"The recovery program," says our author, thus qualifying for a high place among unconscious humorists, "is shot through with economic fallacies. It is fallacious to imagine that the law of supply and demand can be repealed by Government intervention, or depression dissipated by forcible attempts to raise the general price level. It is fallacious to believe that wage increases will enlarge purchasing power if commodity prices also rise. It is foolishness to expect that industry or trade will be revived by compelling employers to pay more wages for less work or take on more employes than they need.

"It is only a vain imagining that sees in 'made work' and relief doles a remedy for unemployment. It is utterly visionary to think of coping with debt and economic disorder by spending more money, piling up more debts and raising taxes. No production problem is solved by paying farmers to produce less, and the consumption of food is not increased by taxing food products for the farmers' benefit. It is a travesty of social justice to essay restriction of production when millions are in want."

These are impressive objections, as champions of the New Deal must grant; but they are amusing in the mouth of the author, who clearly does not realize that the joker involved in such enforced temporary expedients is inherent in the very doctrine of business that his book is written to defend; the doctrine that produced the calamitous situation with which a sincere and valiant administration is now struggling by whatever half-measures may seem possible in the present stage of the social process among us.

What the author greatly fears is precisely the disappearance of these contradictions through the adoption of full measures in due time; and may he live to see it!

It is further amusing to note the grave alarm with which the author views the New Deal on constitutional grounds. "It may fairly be questioned, for example," he says, "whether the Constitution recognizes any such 'emergency' as Congress and the President have declared exists!"

It may fairly be questioned if the Constitution was made for men, or men for the Constitution; and, if that hoary document cannot "recognize" the slow starvation and heartbreak of millions, how about writing a new one that can?

Always it is the cart before the horse with these retainers of the old order. The Constitution must be able to "recognize" a terrifying human emergency or that emergency does not exist. Business is not properly that activity by which men's needs and desires are to be supplied; but human needs and desires are to be exploited in the interest of business. Money is not a mere convenience in the process of exchange for use; it is a sacred independent entity, and if you invoke it by the proper ritual, "prosperity" will return! The whole attitude has become an intolerable impertinence.

There are those who do not want good old-fashioned business to die at all. They want it "revived." They are the reactionaries.

There are those who want it to die a little, or maybe quite a bit, thus producing, one infers, a sort of chronic invalidism in the Beast that we may not be utterly devoured thereby, but only reasonably bitten and chewed. Such are the liberals.

There are those who believe that there is only one way to "control" an essentially fatal thing; and some suspect that the future may be theirs.

If the New Deal should fail, as many hope and many fear, it will do so not because of being "new," in the sense our author here deplores, but because it was not, or could not be, in keeping with the time, half "new" enough in just that sense.

HANDBOOK OF REVOLUTIONS. By Roger Shaw. (Review of Reviews Corporation, New York City.)

BEGINNING with the legend of the Amazons and ending with the year 1933, the author briefly discusses in chronological order the more important revolutions of all time. The following quotations, with which his "foreword" begins, will bear some pondering just now:

"A reform is a correction of abuses; a revolution is a transfer of power."

"Do you think, then, that revolutions are made with rosewater?"

The little book should prove valuable to any serious reader of the news, and such should find it far from depressing.

THE FOOL OF VENUS. By George Cronyn. (Covici-Friede, New York City.)

THIS is the story of the most famous troubadour of Provence, Peire Vidal, who flourished during the early years of the thirteenth century. Described as "reckless and scatterbrained," and as "the maddest man in the world," "Love" was his specialty; and when this medieval super-crooner turned loose, mere husbands turned and ran for cover, according to the present record, which, by that token, ought to have a fine sale. Happily, the book does seem to give a good picture of the times in a general way—an excellent alibi for those who may feel the need of one.

TOWARD THE FLAME. By Hervey Allen. (Farrar & Rinehart, New York City.)

THIS "war diary" by the author of "Anthony Adverse," which first appeared nearly eight years ago, sets forth the writer's experiences on the Western front as First Lieutenant in the 111th Infantry, from July 1 to the middle of August, 1918.

"There is no plot," says the author, "no climax, no happy ending to this book. It is a narrative, plain, unvarnished, without heroics, and true, . . . and I have set it down as a picture of war with no comment."

This reviewer, intending to give the book the "once-over" generally accorded to reprints, spent nearly three hours with it.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF JOHN KEATS. Compiled from His Letters and Essays by Earle Vonard Weller. (Stanford University Press, Stanford University, Cal.)

"THE best biography of Keats," said Buxton Forman, who was in position to speak with authority, "whether as man or poet, was written by himself, all unconscious of what he was doing." He was referring to the letters written by the poet during the last four years of his life. Here, for the first time, those letters, supplemented with other intimate self-revelations of the poet, have been so arranged as to make practically a continuous narrative, with all repetitions and unimportant details eliminated.

The volume thus produced is illuminating and very much worth while.

SENATE EXPECTED TO BEAT PATMAN BONUS MEASURE

Leaders Expect Administration Will Be Able to Head It Off Without "Turning on Heat."

BILL NOW ON GARNER'S DESK

No Disposition to Send It to Committee, Which Itself Has Shown Little Sympathy.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—In striking contrast with the nervous feeling the Patman bonus bill caused among members of the House, the Senate is looking forward complacently to a vote on that hardy perennial. The prediction is freely made that the President will not be called on to exercise his veto power, as he has said he will do if the bill is sent to him by Congress.

In the past, the overwhelming majorities for the bonus in the House have been matched by just as impressive majorities against it in the Senate. The last vote in the Senate—said by some not to represent a real test—came Feb. 27, when Senator Huey Long attempted to attach the Patman bill as a rider to the independent offices appropriation bill. The Long amendment was rejected, 24 to 64. The last outright vote in the Senate was on April 28, last year, when the bonus advocates mustered 28 votes, while the opponents piled up 60.

There are, of course, a few nervous Senators, who, according to their colleagues, have shown signs of reversing their previous opposition. These men, like their House confreres, are impressed by the fact that this is a campaign year. It is a safe wager that a majority of those who do change will be candidates for re-election. For instance, Patterson of Missouri, who is a candidate this year, voted for the bonus last month, when presented in the Long amendment, whereas last year he voted against it.

Still On Garner's Desk.

At present the Patman bill, as approved by the House, 295 to 125, is still on the Vice-President's desk, although it is customary to refer such House bills immediately to the appropriate committee. In this instance it is the Senate Finance Committee.

Finance Committee members say that they have not discussed what they will do with the bill if and when it is referred, explaining that it would first be considered by the Veterans' Sub-committee of which Senator George of Georgia is the chairman. The other members of this sub-committee are Walsh of Massachusetts, Connally of Texas, Barkley of Kentucky, Democrats, and Reed of Pennsylvania and Keyes of New Hampshire, Republicans. Every member of this sub-committee voted against the Long rider last month and the bonus itself last year. Thus the odds are for an unfavorable report from this sub-committee, should it consider the bill.

With the votes of last month and last year as a criterion, the Finance Committee itself may be expected to report unfavorably on the bill. Only two members of the committee voted for the proposal, McAdoo of California, Democrat, and La Follette of Wisconsin, Republican.

Buck-Passing in House.

The nervousness of the House members was indicated by the buck-passing indulged in by the House Ways and Means Committee, which neglected to report out the Patman bill this session. On the motion to discharge the committee from further consideration of the bill, the House saw the strange spectacle of 14 members of the committee, including Chairman Doughton and Dickson of Missouri, voting for the motion. Seven committee members voted against the motion.

Stranger than this was the vote on the bill itself. On that roll call, 14 committee members voted for the bill they had failed to report out in the first instance and seven voted against it. The implication in the whole proceeding to discharge the committee was that the Ways and Means Committee—carefully selected administration group—was opposed to the bonus bill and would neither hold hearings on it nor report it out, favorably or unfavorably. By their considered neglect, the committee members passed the buck to the House. Chairman Doughton, however, explained that the committee had been very busy this season, and besides, no one had asked for a hearing.

Possibilities in the Senate.

There is some evidence that a similar move will be attempted in the Senate. The Senate procedure, according to plans under consideration, would be to move that the Patman bill be taken from the Vice-President's desk and laid on the table, a parliamentary maneuver to defeat the bill. If this plan succeeded there would be no debate, since a move to lay on the table is ordinarily not debatable. The Finance Committee members would be saved the embarrassment of voting on the proposal in committee, where votes have great weight, and the President, should the motion be adopted, would be saved the trouble of writing a veto message.

How many votes the Patman bill can muster in the Senate is problematical. Senate leaders refuse to make any exact numerical prediction. One question involved is whether the White House will apply pressure, locally known as "putting on the heat," or will accept past votes as evidence that such pressure is not needed. If no pressure is applied, the bill may pick up 10 or a dozen votes. The reasoning behind this calculation is that some Senators, believing that the bill will be rejected, will vote for it, hoping to impress the veterans in their states.

No Pressure in the House.

So far as can be ascertained, no presidential pressure was applied to House members. If the Senate calculations are wrong, and that body does approve the bill and the President vetoes it, the "heat" undoubtedly will be applied to members in both houses. Some of the House members who voted for the bill did so in the firm belief that the Senate would reject it. They believed that they could pose as friends of the veterans and still be assured that the Government would not be called on to pay out the $2,400,000,000 required to cash the bonus certificates. But on the question of overriding a veto, these members would have to decide whether they could get more votes through "standing by the President" or by flouting him and appealing to the veterans.

The first law of politics is self-preservation. Administration leaders are convinced that if by some miscalculation Congress does approve the bonus, the presidential veto will be sustained through changes by those who believe that their jobs depend on "standing by the President."

$439,411 FOR PUBLIC HEALTH FROM GIFTS LAST YEAR

Report for St. Louis Forwarded to Washington in National Contest.

Expenditures for public health work in St. Louis during 1933 by nonofficial agencies, supported through voluntary contributions, totaled $439,411, according to the report for this city which has been forwarded to the United States Chamber of Commerce at Washington in the Inter-Chamber Health Conservation contest.

Last year's expenditures were $56,492 less than in 1932. The agencies spent $42,187 in sanitation work, $37,014 for milk and dairy control, $49,251 for other food control, $10,479 for control of tuberculosis, $25,056 for venereal disease control and $39,121 for hospital care of patients suffering from other communicable diseases. They expended $13,960 for conservation of child life and maternal hygiene, $22,232 for dental work in clinics and homes and $32,542 for laboratory service. Salaries of nurses aggregated $134,650.

intended to guard against any to menace the results of a war that freed peoples. She was even more satisfied with it than surprised.

Perhaps she was less surprised by the attitude Poland adopted toward Germany, because Poland had not attempted to conceal her displeasure over signature of the Four Power pact.

Poland's "Happy Waltz."

The truth is that France, whose principal occupation has not ceased to be to maintain peace, should congratulate herself on seeing any difficulties between Powers lessen or disappear, so why should she oppose Poland's joining in a happy waltz with her Germanic neighbor?

If the Germans have not given up their claim to the Polish corridor, the fact is that all Poles regard it as definitely Polish as Warsaw. For our Polish and little entente friends as well as for ourselves, the question of revising frontiers is so full of dynamite that we are forbidden to fool with it.

If Adolph Hitler has desired to give the lie to Bismarck's statement to the Prussian Landtag that the "sky and earth will unite more quickly than Germans and Poles," then it is so much more praiseworthy of Adolf.

But perhaps Hitler only meant to assure Germany of peace to the east while he accomplished an anschluss to the west.

Quotes From 'My Battle.'

Indeed, nothing is nearer the heart of the Chancellor than this. Read now his book "My Battle," the Bible of the Hitler movement, in which he says:

"A happy destiny caused me to be born on the frontier close to the German states whose reuniting appears to us as the essential task of our life, to be pursued by every means.

"Germany and Austria should come back to the great German fatherland, and this not because of certain economic reasons. No! No! Even if this reuniting, economically speaking, were a matter of indifference or disadvantageous, it should take place just the same."

It seems that Italy, which would not have consented in any case to the anschluss so ardently hoped for by Hitler, thought for a while that it had the power necessary to prevent it. Recent happenings notably the insolent "ultimatum" by Theodore Habicht, apparently were awakeners. By joint declaration on Feb. 17, England, Italy, and France clearly defined their position.

By sending Fulvio Suvich to Vienna and Budapest, Mussolini inaugurated negotiations destined to fortify the independence of Austria. While these are going on, he will certainly not lose sight of the fact that economic and political considerations interlock and that during 15 years Hungary has been Germany's messenger.

France's Real Object.

France will be glad to lend its good offices to Italy for the purpose of improving, in accord with the little entente, the situation of the Danubian countries.

If in learning the lesson of experience, our country is taking into account what is happening along its Eastern frontiers and is proceeding to build up its position and correct its errors, which resulted only from its over-eager desire to realize as soon as possible its ideal, its objective has not changed.

The object of the policy of France continues to be maintenance of peace, with the means of doing so remaining fidelity to her alliances and friendships.

THREE HERBERT WORKS FOR MUNICIPAL OPERA

"Rose of Algeria," "Sweethearts" and "Mlle. Modiste" on This Summer's Bill.

Three works by Victor Herbert, America's greatest composer of operetta, will be included in the Municipal Opera productions in Forest Park which open Monday, June 4. They are "Rose of Algeria," which is being presented for the first time in the Municipal Theater; "Sweethearts," one of the great favorites of other years, and the popular "Mlle. Modiste."

This announcement completes the repertory for six of the 12 weeks' season, for the Municipal Theater Association has already made public its plan to offer three recent New York musical successes new to St. Louis: "Music in the Air," "Sweet Adeline," and "East Wind."

"Rose of Algeria" adds the thirteenth to the roster of Victor Herbert masterpieces to be presented by Municipal Opera. With the others, it will complete 24 weeks of Herbert operas, enough for two full seasons, in the course of the 16 years of al fresco operetta in Forest Park. Herbert's "Naughty Marietta," a popular success last season, is one of the very few operettas ever to have been offered in our Municipal Opera seasons. It was presented in 1923, in 1924, and 1925 and last year. "Sweethearts" was presented in 1922, 1923 and 1926, and "Babes in Toyland" in 1920, 1926 and 1929. "The Fortune Teller" was offered in 1921 and 1924, and "The Red Mill" in 1926 and 1927. In Municipal Opera's first year, 1919, "The Wizard of the Nile" represented Herbert's genius. "Eileen' was presented in 1926; "The Enchantress in 1929; "Her Regiment" in 1925, "Mlle. Modiste" in the same year; "Princess Pat" in 1927 and "The Serenade" in 1927.

The "Rose of Algeria" was one of Herbert's own favorites among the 35 operettas he composed in less than 25 years. The book is by Glen MacDonough, librettist of "Babes in Toyland," "It Happened in Nordland" and others of Herbert's successes. Henry Blossom Jr., native St. Louisan, is the librettist of "Mlle. Modiste," and Harry B. Smith, dean of American librettists, collaborated with Fred de Gresac in the book for "Sweethearts," while his brother, Robert B. Smith, wrote the lyrics.

"Rose of Algeria" has an Oriental romance for its basis and lends itself particularly to spectacular production, such as that which, characterized Herbert's "Naughty Marietta" at Municipal Opera last season.

Hitler Sole Issue In Hot Campaign Over Fate of Saar day they don't want France. Their vote will be less for the League than against Hitler.

Their campaign is hot and bitter. It is not more hot and bitter than the campaign of the Hitlerites to return the Saar to Germany. On their side the Swastika men have a heavy advantage: "Traitors," they cry to the opposition, "can't win in the long run. If you vote against your fatherland, wait until the Saar is German again and see what happens to you."

Election day is already called the "day of reckoning." Every issue of the anti-Hitler organs make it plain just what "reckoning" may mean. Every description of the life in a Nazi concentration camp is meant to persuade the voters to choose life under the League. But in the dead of night, under the blankets, comes the thought: "What if I vote against Germany and my side loses?"

On the Swastika side are 15,000 young men who have been to Germany and have been trained in the so-called labor service camps. They have returned first-class, disciplined storm troopers. By election day it is estimated there will be 25,000 of them—very good ballot box watchers.

Rival Claims.

The Swastika side is united. Against them the opposition to Hitler is as variegated and as widely divided as it was in Germany. The Hitlerites, marching under the so-called "German front," boldly announce: "We will get 99 per cent of the votes." The anti-Hitlerites modestly declare: "We have a chance to get a majority."

Between these two camps totaling more than 800,000 persons daily hurling lethal threats at one another, stand only 1000 policemen at the disposal of the League Governing Commission, and the majesty, the power, or the bluff if you like, of the League.

Probably not only Hitler, but the League itself, and most of Europe except France, would welcome it if the Saar today could be turned over to Germany, the rights of its political minorities be secured, and the secondary economic question of the purchase price of the mines agreed upon for Germany would never be reconciled to losing this plainly German territory.

Of all the provisions of the Versailles Treaty none has turned out to have more explosive possibilities than that relating to the Saar. At the time it seemed a sensible way to recompense France for her destroyed coal mines. Today it seems a potential danger to peace.

If by any turn of fate, the Saar should after all vote against Germany, the results would be unpredictable. Hitler has declared that if the Saar question were settled there would be nothing left for Germany and France to quarrel about.

ures and studies of the Bureau of Labor statistics, which, under the direction of Dr. Isador Lubin, formerly of the Brookings Institute, has attained a high degree of impartiality and efficiency.

What Shorter Hours Might Accomplish.

Statistics of the bureau show that on the basis of the amount of work available last summer and fall, a 32-hour week would theoretically absorb all except 1,085,000 of the 16,000,000 employed in 1929 in the manufacturing and non-manufacturing industries reporting to the bureau and in steam railroad transportation. In a few industries, the 32-hour week would absorb more than were employed in 1929. Among these are the retail trade, where average weekly hours have been unusually high, and certain manufacturing industries, such as rayon, which have expanded even during the depression.

All the 16,000,000 employed in 1929 in the above-described industries would theoretically be absorbed by a work week of about 30 hours. This average represents a wide variation among individual industries, ranging from 70.6 hours in the beet sugar industry to 10.5 hours in the machine tool industry. The figures show how difficult, if not impossible, it would be to apply a flat 30-hour week, or a week of any specific length, to all industries. Obviously, some industries and some enterprises within industries would be driven to the wall, under present conditions, by the increased costs consequent upon reduction of the work week without reduction of the weekly wage. Equally obviously, some could increase their costs in this manner without undue strain.

Output Per Man an Important Factor.

In any estimate of the work week necessary to restore employment to the 1929 totals, certain important qualifying factors, as the bureau's studies show, must be taken into consideration.

First, there is the observed phenomenon that when production increases, especially from abnormally low levels, the average output per man per hour increases rapidly, so that a gain in employment is far less than a gain in production.

Second, if hourly wage rates rise as hours decline (and they must rise if the weekly pay is to remain the same and the spread of work is to fulfill its purpose of increasing purchasing power), the employer is given an additional incentive to curb his rising labor costs by means of speeding up, the "stretch-out," labor-saving devices, etc. Thus the shortening of the work week fails to increase proportionately the number of employes.

Third, as already pointed out, various causes have operated to increase the number of employable wage workers far beyond the number actually employed in 1929.

A breakdown of the bureau's figures covering the above-described 16,000,000 workers, as of 1929, gives the following results:

Manufacturing industries alone: A 32-hour week would leave out about 1,151,000 of the 6,550,000 employed in 1929. To employ all, a week of 26.4 hours would be necessary.

Non - manufacturing industries alone: A 32-hour week would employ 330,000 more than the 7,750,000 employed in 1929. The 1929 level would be attained through a week of 33.4 hours.

Steam railroads: A 32-hour week would fail to employ 267,000 of the 1,687,000 employed in 1929. A week of 27 hours would be required to absorb them all. Railroad statistics shows a large increase in workers' average output since 1929.

Rigid Rules Not Always Possible.

Among the individual industries which apparently would find it impracticable to reduce weekly hours enough to employ as many workers as in 1929 is anthracite coal, which has suffered from severe competition by oil, coke and other fuels. In July, 1933, the average weekly hours in this industry were only 31.3. The employment of all the 143,000 workers of 1929 would require an average week of only 17.5 hours.

On the other hand, the average weekly hours in the rayon yarn and allied industries in July, 1933, were 44.1 hours. It is estimated that they could employ as many workers as in 1929 by means of 51.2 hours a week. Shortening of the hours in industries of this type would enable them, without undue cost, to take on some of the surplus workers from other industries.

On the basis of the bureau's estimates, the work week necessary to a theoretical absorption of the 1929 employment in the selected industries has been placed at about 30. But, as we have seen, the number of persons employed in 1929 is far from an adequate measure of the number now needing employment. The single factor of population growth since 1929—one of the several enumerated factors making for an increase in the number of employable persons—requires an increase of 4.3 per cent in the number employed in 1929, and a consequent reduction to 28.6 hours of the work week needed to absorb them.

There are no data on which to base a worth-while estimate of the length of work week that would be required to wipe out unemployment in farming, the petty trades and services and the independent professions. The evidence shows that these employments, so far from being able to absorb workers displaced from other pursuits, have growing surpluses of their own. For this reason and also because of obvious administrative difficulties in the way of limiting hours in these employments, the shorter work week as a means of relieving unemployment is believed to have practical significance only in the larger manufacturing and service industries organized on a wage basis.

It is true that farming during the depression has absorbed large numbers of the unemployed, but these for the most part are urban workers awaiting signs of business recovery to flock back to the industrial centers. On the farms they are on a subsistence basis merely. Farming, as the figures of the Bureau of Labor statistics show, was seriously overmanned before 1929.

NRA OIL CODE TEST TO SUPREME COURT

Ickes' Solicitor to Handle Government's Case on Regulation of Output.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The first challenge of the validity of code regulations under NRA—a request to rule on the authority of the Federal Government to regulate the production of petroleum—has come before the Supreme Court.

United States District Judge Randolph Bryant, sitting at Tyler, Tex., on Feb. 26, last, set aside an indictment charging J. W. Smith and others with conspiracy to produce petroleum in excess of quotas fixed by the NRA oil code, and held the Federal Government could not under the Constitution regulate oil production.

Judge Bryant quashed indictments against Smith, Roy Taylor, John M. Kerr, W. B. Gossage and Marvin Jones for conspiracy to violate Section 9-C of the NIRA and Section 4 of Article 3 of the code.

On the request of Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Attorney-General Cummings consented that the Government's case instead of being handled as customary by the Department of Justice, could be handled by Nathan R. Margold, solicitor of the Interior Department and chairman of the Petroleum Administrative Board, and Charles Fahy, first assistant solicitor and vice-chairman of the board. The Justice Department will co-operate wherever necessary.

A statement for the Supreme Court filed yesterday by the Government stated that the jurisdiction was claimed on the basis of the criminal appeals act of 1907.

"Under the criminal appeals act," the statement to the court said, "there may be a direct review by the Supreme Court of a decision by a District Court sustaining a demurrer to an indictment where such a decision is based upon the invalidity or construction of the statute upon which the indictment was founded. In the present case the defendants demurred both on the ground that the statute upon which the indictment was based was invalid and unconstitutional, and upon the ground that the indictment did not conform to the statute when properly construed and the demurrer was sustained on both grounds."

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

Final Curtain on "Season"

Katherine Cornell, in a Repertory of Three Plays, Comes Tomorrow Night for a Week Which Will End Local Drama Year—Interest in Probable Award of the Pulitzer Prize With Four Plays Reported as Being Under Consideration.

THE theater season—such as it has been—will wind up next Saturday at the conclusion of Katharine Cornell's visit of a week, which begins tomorrow evening, at the American Theater. During her short stay, Miss Cornell, in addition to reviving her tremendously successful play, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," of a couple of seasons ago, will be seen, for the first time here in "Romeo and Juliet," and, also for the first time, in Bernard Shaw's old play, "Candida." The Shakespearean tragedy will be the opening offering tomorrow night and will be repeated Friday evening and the Saturday matinee. "Candida" will be presented just twice, on Tuesday and Saturday nights, while Rudolf Besier's fine drama of the life and love of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning will have three performances—Wednesday afternoon and Wednesday and Thursday nights. In each of the three plays Basil Rathbone will be the leading man, playing Romeo, Marchbanks in "Candida," and Robert Browning. The evening performances are advertised to begin promptly at 8:15 and the matinees at 2:15.

Miss Cornell has said that her aim in the production of "Romeo and Juliet" has been to give the poet's play not as a vehicle for a star or as a dusty museum piece, but as a great and sweeping tragedy. To this end she has restored three scenes not acted in 30 years on the American stage. She has used new stage technical equipment which permits the 20 scenes to be changed rapidly without breaking the continuity of the romance. In no sense has she "modernized" the classic story, which she presents with only one intermission.

BEFORE she became a star, Miss Cornell appeared in "Candida" in New York, but now she is acting the comedy for the first times on tour. Shaw is reported to have said that she is the greatest of all the many Candidas. The play, most theater-goers will recall, tells of Morell, the suburban London parson; his wife and the young rebel of a poet, Marchbanks, and of how the familiar triangle theme may be varied when the participants become human beings.

"Candida" served to introduce Shaw to this country as a playwright, with the late Arnold Daly as the star in the role of Marchbanks.

"The Barretts of Wimpole Street" has been acted over 600 times in the United States by Miss Cornell. This romance of England's famous poets follows closely the story as it is told in the many letters which passed between Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning, and is heightened by the unusual atmosphere of Elizabeth's home which was ruled by her demoniac father.

Basil Rathbone has starred on the stage and the screen in both America and in England. The assisting cast includes Charles Waldron, Alice John, Orson Welles, Brenda Forbes, Merle Maddern, John Hoystradt and Helen Walpole—and, of course, the now famous cocker spaniel, Flush.

AND as the curtain also prepares to drop on the theatrical season in New York, where it is not as confined by seasons as it is—or was when we really had a season here in St. Louis—interest turns to the probable winner of the Pulitzer Prize, the decision to be made within a few weeks.

Although it has been a profitable and somewhat prolific season, only four plays are reported as being given serious consideration, and two of them are last-minute entries. The quartet is "Men in White," "Ah, Wilderness," "Dodsworth" and "Yellow Jack."

"Men in White" is a drama about the medical profession by Sidney Kingsley, produced by the Group Theater with Alexander Kirkland, Margaret Barker and J. Edward Bromberg in the leading roles. "Yellow Jack," a new offering, also has to do with medical science. It is a dramatization of the heroic fight of Dr. Walter Reed and others against the dread peril of the tropics, yellow fever, and Sidney Howard wrote it from notes he gathered from Paul de Kruif's book, "Microbe Hunters." It is reported to be less a play than a sort of lantern-slide lecture, there being neither plot nor love story. Most of the action revolves around Dr. Reed's experiments in Cuba at the turn of the century when he definitely determined that the fever is carried by the mosquito.

If "Ah, Wilderness" should win the prize, it will be the fourth time that Eugene O'Neill has carried off this honor. His is a straight comedy drama of American home life, an unpretentious and entertaining play enhanced by the striking performances of George M. Cohan, Marjorie Marquis and Elisha Cook Jr.

Sinclair Lewis, who once spurned the Pulitzer Prize, may find himself a co-winner, for "Dodsworth" was dramatized from his novel by Sidney Howard. Walter Huston, Fay Bainter and Nan Sunderland have the leading roles.

The Port of Forgotten Men

Hollywood and the Studio Lots Full of Actors Who, Just a Few Years Ago, Were Big Shots in The Movies—Now Many of Them Are Playing Bits With Stars Who Had Never Been Heard of When They Were Famous in the Good Old Days.

PLAYING a small part in "Good Dame" at the Ambassador Theater this week is William Farnum and playing the best part he has had in years in "Beggars in Ermine" at the St. Louis, is Henry B. Walthall. Both were names to conjure with not so many years ago in the cinemas of the whole world. Just 19 years ago this month "The Birth of a Nation" burst upon the astonished movie audiences in all of its glory and made David W. Griffith the most talked of man in the new-fangled form of entertainment. Today Griffith's name is almost unheard. It was in that same picture that Walthall rose to the heights of screen acting playing the role of the Colonel. Remember him?

Time seems to fly in Hollywood a little faster than in the rest of our busy world. A thorough combing of any major studio will turn up a dozen people once famous in pictures who are now no longer of particular importance either to the producers or the public.

Most of them don't mind being "turned up." They have lost any resentment they may have held in the early days of their declining celebrity and are resigned to their lot. They are not often found giving advice to their successors in success, but they have a wise look in their eyes when a present-day star or director rides by in a big automobile.

Most of them welcome the work they have now as a method of earning an honest living. They are willing to trade the glory of their pasts for necessities of the present. They do not ask for sympathy. They ask for work. As best they can, the studios take care of these people. A few weeks ago while out in Hollywood the writer counted 15 of 'em on the lot at Warner Bros.

There was King Baggot, one-time star and director of many long-remembered pictures. He plays bit roles now. There was Florence Turner, once known the world over as the "Vitagraph Girl," working that day as an extra on the set where Richard Barthelmess was filming "A Modern Hero."

Gladys Hulette plays an extra role in "Rhythm in the Air," ultra-modern comedy featuring Dick Powell and Pat O'Brien, neither of whom had been heard of when Miss Hulette was starred in the first motion picture version of "Alice in Wonderland," for Edison in 1909. She was leading woman for Dick Barthelmess afterward in "Tolerable David."

FLORENCE LAWRENCE was discovered as an extra on the set where another newcomer to films, Hal Le Roy, was being featured in "Harold Teen." Florence Lawrence, many will remember, was a star for Lubin in Philadelphia, many years before LeRoy wore long trousers.

Paul Panzer, the Clark Gable of his day, does an occasional "bit." Clara Horton, once a child star, is a regular stand-in for stars on the Warner lot. Bobby Agnew, a featured player only a few years ago, assists Busby Berkeley in the creation and staging of the Berkeley dance numbers in screen musicals and likes his job.

Frank Crane, once a famous star and director of pictures for Thanhauser films, is available for extra roles. Jerome Storm, Carl Leviness and Ed Mortimer, all successful directors in other days, now play bit roles and their names never appear in the billings.

PAULINE GARON is playing bits for various studios. So are Mae Busch and Mary Carr and Alice Lake, the last a well-known Universal star of 10 years ago. Mary MacLaren, who also starred for Universal in "Shoes" and other pictures, played a bit part in "Registered Nurse," and Wilfred Lucas, once a leading man and director for the old Triangle company, has a bit part in "Upperworld."

The case of Clara Kimball Young was recently given much publicity, at least in Hollywood. Yet she is only one of many who find themselves forgotten, almost over night, in the film colony. The name of Charles Ray, once a big star, is listed as available for bit roles in casting directories. Margaret Morris is playing an extra part in "A Very Honorable Guy," and Aggie Herring will be seen briefly in "Merry Wives of Reno."

Fame is short-lived in Hollywood. But these people are not asking for sympathy.

They ask for work. Sometimes they get it.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS

By Nie

THEY had to go back a long way to get material for Will Rogers' latest screen offering, but in filming "David Harum," which is at the Fox this week, the cinema people dug up the best entertainment the comedian has ever had and a story which was, apparently, written just for him long before he was heard of, theatrically. The present generation, with so much more to do, probably never read Edward Noyes Westcott's old story, but, around Spanish War times, "David Harum" was, more or less, the reading sensation of the day, and David was supposed to represent the thoroughly American character. Harum was a small-town banker and hoss trader of the old school. Hard as nails in any business deal, especially so when it came to swapping horses much after the manner of automobile exchanging today—not mentioning broken gears, faulty generators and such—he had a kindly heart for widows and orphans and managed to do a lot of good deeds without attracting any great amount of attention. In the picture David's old heart has been softened even more, and while he gets the best of pillars of the church, on Sundays, with his horse trades, he manages to do a lot of good for his community and for the clerk in his bank and that young man's sweetheart. This gives a touch of romance to the film, but Rogers, with his homespun humor, is always the center of attraction with a lot of comedy being furnished by that very comical Negro actor, Stepin Fetchit. "David Harum" is fine, and clean entertainment for everybody. There is another picture on the Fox program this week, something called "I Believed in You." Miss this one, if you can.

Virtue Its Own Reward.

SYLVIA SIDNEY is a good gal in "Good Dame" at the Ambassador. True, she skates on thin ice every once in a while and knows all the answers as might be expected of a small-time chorus lady but she is good enough to keep out of jail and to keep her boy friend, Frederic March from doing time, too, so the title of the film fits the story. You see March was one of those hardboiled carnival show lads who did a little stealing and stood ace high with women. He couldn't really understand why any girl wouldn't consider she was getting a break if he even noticed her but when Sylvia came along things were different. She didn't fall, off hand, and the first thing Fred knew he was in love. Sylvia saw to it that he made himself over entirely and when the reformation was complete, about the time all feature pictures are supposed to end, the affair winds up with the benefit of clergy. It's not much of a story but March, playing an entirely different role from his usual gentlemanly portrayals, and little Miss Sidney manage to make it a rather fair sort of play. The Ambassador has a good stage show for the flesh part of its bill with Jackie Heller, the boy wonder, heading the bill.

Number, Please?

WE are not informed as to the number of men and women employed by the Bell Telephone Co. hereabouts, but there must be a lot of 'em and, sometime during the present week they all ought to drop into Loew's and see "Looking for Trouble." This is a film which glorifies the telephone trouble shooters, the boys whose adage it is that conversation must go on. Rain and fire and snow and even earthquakes keep them jumping and climbing under all sorts of dangerous conditions, but Spencer Tracy and Jack Oakie manage to inject a lot of very funny comedy into the thrills of their tough jobs. There is time for romance, too, that side being provided with the assistance of Constance Cummings and Arline Judge and "Looking for Trouble" is amusing and melodramatic and sentimental enough for everyone—especially for the folks from Tenth and Pine streets.

When Beggars Ride.

THIS being the last week, for the time being at least, of stage shows at the St. Louis Theater, that house is winding up its girl and music and vaudeville entertainment with a lot of excellent talent. For one thing, there is an orchestra of 100—we didn't count 'em, but the press agent's figure appears about correct—to fill up the entire stage during one part of the proceedings and some good variety acts are topped by the pleasing O'Connor family of singers and dancers. "Beggars in Ermine" is the main picture and in it Lionel Atwill is a steel magnate who is crippled by molten metal and robbed of his wife and daughter and fortune by his partner. It would seem, offhand, that the courts might have set most of the matters right, but Atwill went about getting revenge, over a long period of years, in a different manner. He organized all the beggars of the country into a pretty close combine and piled up a big enough fortune to enable him to crush his enemy by way of the stock market. It all couldn't happen that way, of course, but for screen purposes it is fairly reasonable meller. The second film is "Notorious but Nice," a tale of balked love which comes out triumphant.

Laughing Matters.

AT the Missouri, where there are also two feature pictures, the main one is "The Poor Rich," a somewhat tangled farce which would have been snappier had it been told in half the number of reels, but since Edward Everett Horton and Edna May Oliver keep digging up laughs to the bitter end, it will pass muster as it is. Edna and Everett, penniless cousins, inherit an old house which has seen better days and their efforts to live up to the traditions of the place furnish the excuse for the comedy. "The Crosby Case"—no relation to Bing—is a mystery meller of the regular sort, but told rather differently, and is really better theater than the top feature.

'Alice' to Become 'Lovey Mary' Next

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," which has been waiting for two years for a suitable "Lovey Mary," has gone back on Paramount's production schedule, with Charlotte Henry, the Alice of "Alice in Wonderland," slated for the leading role. Charlotte also has been borrowed by Twentieth Century to play a romantic role in "Head of the Family," George Arliss' next starring picture.

Three One-Act Plays.

The Grace Howarth Monie Players will present three one-act plays at the Wednesday Club auditorium Friday evening, April 6. The plays are, "Toast and Tea," "Let It Go at That" and "Ashes of Roses." The casts include Ada Busse, Gertrude Enlow, La Verne Haaser, Cecelia Hershberger, Sylvia Hoffmann, Genevieve Hunter, Marie Intemann, Jean Joller, Marie Kustra, Lilian Meinhart, Helen Neighbors, Irene Phillips and Evamay Thirolf.

Jack Haley to Star In Rogers Picture

The elevation of Jack Haley, well known in St. Louis through his many appearances at the Ambassador, to screen stardom and the purchase of the New York play, "Here Comes the Groom," as his first vehicle, are announced by Charles R. Rogers, who will produce the film for Paramount. Haley recently made "Sitting Pretty."

West's First Tutor Is Cast in Picture

The man who launched Mae West on an acting career by teaching her songs in a Brooklyn theater when she was 7, has been cast in "Murder at the Vanities." He is Charles McAvoy, an end-man with the Primrose Minstrels and friend of the star's father, Jack West. The first song he taught her was "She Done Me Wrong."

Choir and Organ Recital.

One hundred voices of the Washington University Chapel Choir will assist G. Calvin Ringgenberg in his monthly organ recital in Graham Memorial Chapel this afternoon at 3 o'clock. They will sing two Negro spirituals arranged by Cecil Burleigh: "O Lord What a Morning" and "Were You There"; and Motet "Let Us Cheer the Weary Traveler" by R. Nathaniel Dett.

Play for Children at Toy Theater.

"Wonders of Woodland," a play for children by Margaret Keaney, will be presented at the Toy Theater in the Music Arts Building next Friday night and again on Saturday afternoon. The large cast for the play is about evenly divided between children and adults.

Thomas Concert on April 16.

John Charles Thomas, who was scheduled to open the Condon course of concerts at Washington University Field House on April 13 has put off his appearance here for three days and the concert now is announced for April 16. The concerts to follow Mr. Thomas will be heard in the new City Auditorium as originally planned.

Holmes Ends Season Here Tomorrow Night

Burton Holmes will end his regular season of illustrated travel talks at the Odeon tomorrow night when he will deliver his lecture, with motion picture and colored photographs, on "The New Italy."

This will be the last of five travel talks which Holmes has given on successive Monday nights and completes his fortieth season of visits to St. Louis.

A. & P. TO BUILD "PARK AND SHOP" IN OLD ORCHARD

ucces of This Type of Store on Clayton Leads to Plans for Second on Big Bend.

As a site for another "park and hop" store, the Great Atlantic & acific Tea Co. has acquired a long ease on a tract having a frontage f 150 feet on the west side of Big end boulevard, between Old Or-hard and Lockwood avenues, in he Old Orchard section of Web-ter Groves.

The lessor is the Noro Realty Co., holding company which purchased he tract from the Webster Groves
Knights of Columbus Association hrough the Henry R. Weisels Co.
he lease was arranged by Arnold
I. Maremont, secretary of the Wei-els firm.

Plans of the A. & P. company all for a one-story structure cov-ring 50 feet of the site. The remainder of the ground will be eveled and macadamized as a park-ng area for the convenience of cusomers of the store.

Was Experiment.

As to facilities the new store will e an almost exact duplication of he A. & P. company's "park and hop" store on Clayton road near Big Bend, which includes an air conditioning plant.

The original "park and shop" tore, undertaken as an experiment n St. Louis a year or so ago, has een a notable success. The Old Orchard section was chosen after a careful survey of outlying shopping districts. The A. & P. company has conducted a store in this ection for seven years. The build-ng will be completed June 1.

The Webster Groves Knights of Columbus Home Association was represented in the negotiations involving the sale of the ground by E. M. Rosevear of the First Naional Co. and the Noro Realty Co., by Maremont of the Weisels firm.

Woolworth Lease.

The F. W. Woolworth Co. has eased from the plans the two-story uilding in course of construction t 117 North Kirkwood road for a erm of 15 years. The building is eing built by the Malvern Construction Co., composed of R.
A. and G. B. Bullock and Walter
Kobush, the lessees. The lease calls for completion June 1, when the new store is to be opened. The negotiations for the lease were han-

FLORENCE LAWRENCE was discovered as an extra on the set where another newcomer to films, Hal Le Roy, was being featured in "Harold Teen." Florence Lawrence, many will remember, was a star for Lubin in Philadelphia, many years before LeRoy wore long trousers.

Paul Panzer, the Clark Gable of his day, does an occasional "bit." Clara Horton, once a child star, is a regular stand-in for stars on the Warner lot. Bobby Agnew, a featured player only a few years ago, assists Busby Berkeley in the creation and staging of the Berkeley dance numbers in screen musicals and likes his job.

Frank Crane, once a famous star and director of pictures for Thanhauser films, is available for extra roles. Jerome Storm, Carl Leviness and Ed Mortimer, all successful directors in other days, now play bit roles and their names never appear in the billings.

PAULINE GARON is playing bits for various studios. So are Mae Busch and Mary Carr and Alice Lake, the last a well-known Universal star of 10 years ago. Ma MacLaren, who also starred fo Universal in "Shoes" and other pictures, played a bit part in "Registered Nurse," and Wilfred Lucas, once a leading man and director for the old Triangle company, has a bit part in "Upperworld."

The case of Clara Kimball Young was recently given much publicity, at least in Hollywood. Yet she is only one of many who find themselves forgotten, almost over night, in the film colony. The name of Charles Ray, once a big star, is listed as available for bit roles in casting directories. Margaret Morris is playing an extra part in "A Very Honorable Guy," and Aggie Herring will be seen briefly in "Merry Wives of Reno."

Fame is short-l d in Hollywood. But these people are not asking fo sympathy.

They ask for work. Sometimes they get it.

A. & P. TO BUILD "PARK AND SHOP" IN OLD ORCHARD

Success of This Type of Store on Clayton Leads to Plans for Second on Big Bend.

As a site for another "park and shop" store, the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. has acquired a long lease on a tract having a frontage of 150 feet on the west side of Big Bend boulevard, between Old Orchard and Lockwood avenues, in the Old Orchard section of Webster Groves.

The lessor is the Noro Realty Co., a holding company which purchased the tract from the Webster Groves Knights of Columbus Association through the Henry R. Weisels Co. The lease was arranged by Arnold H. Maremont, secretary of the Weisels firm.

Plans of the A. & P. company call for a one-story structure covering 50 feet of the site. The remainder of the ground will be leveled and macadamized as a parking area for the convenience of customers of the store.

Was Experiment.

As to facilities the new store will be an almost exact duplication of the A. & P. company's "park and shop" store on Clayton road near Big Bend, which includes an air conditioning plant.

The original "park and shop" store, undertaken as an experiment in St. Louis a year or so ago, has been a notable success. The Old Orchard section was chosen after a careful survey of outlying shopping districts. The A. & P. company has conducted a store in this section for seven years. The building will be completed June 1.

The Webster Groves Knights of Columbus Home Association was represented in the negotiations involving the sale of the ground by E. M. Rosevear of the First National Co. and the Noro Realty Co., by Maremont of the Weisels firm.

Woolworth Lease.

The F. W. Woolworth Co. has leased from the plans the two-story building in course of construction at 117 North Kirkwood road for a term of 15 years. The building is being built by the Malvern Construction Co., composed of R. A. and G. B. Bullock and Walter Kobush, the lessees. The lease calls for completion June 1, when the new store is to be opened. The negotiations for the lease were handled by Wilbur Thomas.

The Royal Typewriter Co. has leased new quarters at 116-18-20 North Tenth street in the Imperial Building at the southeast corner of Tenth and Pine streets. The lessee is the Stifel estate, which owns the property. Contracts have been let for interior alterations and improvements, which will include Walnut fixtures and Johns-Manville asbestos tile floors. Possession will be taken April 1.

The typewriter company, of whom L. E. White is local manager, at present has offices in the Boatmen's Bank Building, Broadway and Olive street, which are inadequate to its requirements. The lease was arranged by W. L. Fulbright in conjunction with Walter K. Mathias, both connected with the management of the Stifel real estate holdings. Built by the late Charles G. Stifel, the building was completely done over several years ago.

114,678 HOME LOANS MADE BY U. S. CORPORATION

Total of $325,151,720 Has Been Put Out Through Exchange of 4 Pct. Bonds for Mortgages.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The report of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, issued today, shows that up to March 9, 114,678 loans, amounting to $325,151,720 have been made by exchange of the 4 per cent bonds of the corporation for home mortgages on the verge of foreclosure, or by cash loans in a small percentage of cases.

The danger of losing their homes has been removed or lessened for 540,000 other home owners whose requests for refinancing under the law have been approved for further consideration after their applications had been found eligible, the mortgagees had agreed to take bonds in lieu of their mortgages, and the properties had qualified under preliminary appraisal for security. On these, final steps in effecting the exchange are proceeding.

The average of all loans to date is $2833. It is estimated from test checks that the amount lent represents 69.3 per cent of the appraised value of the properties involved.

The Home Owners' Loan Act became effective June 13, 1933. The corporation has since expanded into every state and the District of Columbia and the Territory of Hawaii, with a total of 244 field offices serving every county and village in the United States.

The following table shows the activity of the field offices:

Loans Closed, by 4-Week Periods.	Number.	Amount.
Prior to Sept. 23 ...	369	$ 1,056,923
Sept. 23-Oct. 21	1,761	5,103,259
Oct. 21-Nov. 17	7,052	20,704,109
Nov. 17-Dec. 15	16,204	46,135,913
Dec. 15-Jan. 12, '34..	22,258	62,284,325
Jan. 12-Feb. 9	29,535	85,050,731
Feb. 9-Mar. 9......	37,499	104,816,460

In addition to the amounts of the mortgages refinanced, these figures include about $27,000,000 in cash advanced for the payment of taxes, assessments, insurance and repairs to the properties, as well as smaller sums for title search, character reports, appraisal, survey, if necessary, conveyancing and recording. Of this sum more than $18,000,000 has gone to local governmental units for the payment of back taxes, resulting in a healthier tax situation in many communities. Cash disbursements for repairs—painting, plumbing, heating, masonry, carpentry and tinning—have stimulated the construction industries.

The total of 1,031,349 applications includes many thousands filed by persons and on properties not eligible for relief under the law. Some applications were for loans on chattels, livestock and farm or business properties. Other home owners hurriedly filed applications, apparently not aware that their mortgage holders were willing to grant them temporary relief. Thousands came from home owners who were in no danger of default and well able to meet their present mortgage payments, and therefore ineligible for loans from the corporation. Some of these had deliberately defaulted, hoping to make themselves eligible. These applicants are weeded out in the preliminary investigations of the corporation.

BUILDING PERMITS CONTINUE ABOVE FIGURES OF 1933

215 Cities Report $19,215,000 for February Against $17,161,000 for Month Last Year.

Building expenditures in February, despite the severe snows and cold, were again larger than the corresponding month of last year. The dollar value of building permits has been higher than the corresponding figures of a year ago for each month since last June, with the exception of a slight decrease reported last November.

Permits for 215 cities regularly reporting to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., totaled $19,215,309 during February, compared with $17,161,943 in February, last year, an increase of 12 per cent. Comparison with the January total of $20,561,018, however, shows a drop of 6.5 per cent, as against a usual seasonal advance of about 4 per cent at this time.

The best showing during February was made by the cities outside of New York and especially in the South Atlantic States, which more than doubled the building expenditures of the corresponding month a year ago. The total value of permits for the 214 cities outside of New York City for February amounted to $16,220,581, compared with $10,409,813 for February, last year, and $16,072,474 in January, increases, respectively, of 55.8 and .9 per cent.

At New York City building expenditures last month dropped to the lowest level since January, 1933, totaling only $2,994,728, as compared with $4,488,544 in January, a decline of 33.3 per cent, and with $6,752,130 in February a year ago, or a loss of 55.6 per cent.

MEN
On account of the steady progress and growth of our company we are in a position to take on a few additional men from time to time; the requirements for these positions are quite reasonable so that the average man of good habits and clean-cut appearance will stand a fair chance of being employed.

This company has been uniquely successful throughout this depression, in fact, 1933 was our fourth successive record sales year. In line with our steady gains in business, the earnings of our men are higher; not only are more men earning $50 and $75 a week, but in recent months we have issued many weekly pay checks running between $100 and $250, throughout the entire country. These earnings, of course, are generally made by more experienced men, but there are exceptions where new men have quickly advanced themselves to the higher incomes.

Similar positions are available in our local office to a few more men who are qualified to learn this work, and who would be satisfied with earnings of $125 monthly while learning, provided they saw opportunities for increases with experience; the men accepted for these positions will be given a very thorough course of training free of charge.

For personal interview, call at Room 562, Ninth & Olive Sts., Paul Brown Bldg., Monday morning between 9:15 and 1:15.

ARE YOU THE MAN

Cards' Fine Pitching Stops Champion Giants, 2 to 1

Moore and Medwick Drive in Winning Runs In Exhibition Game

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

MIAMI, BEACH, Fla., March 17.—Carl Hubbell, Herman Bell and Adolfo Luque held the Cardinals to five hits this afternoon, but the Redbirds did 60 per cent of their hitting in the sixth inning and by combining three singles with a walk and a stolen base, they scored their second straight victory over the world champion Giants, 2 to 1.

Hubbell apparently has not forgotten about pitching over the winter. He hurled the first three frames for Bill Terry and a single by Frisch, a line drive to center field, was the only safety off the delivery of the master of the screw ball. And except for that single the Cardinals went down in order while the pitching hero of the 1933 world series was on the mound.

While three hurlers worked for each team, a spring training custom which usually makes for long score games, the contest was a mound duel and the Giants made only six safeties off the slants of Frisch's three curve artists—Jim Winford, Jim Mooney and Tex Carleton.

Winford, the sturdy right-hander from Columbus, who according to Scout Charley Barrett has one of the best screw balls in the business, started for the Cardinals and yielded the one New York run. Jim went through the first two frames impressively, retiring three successive batters in the second after George Davis started the inning with a double to left-center and took third on Durocher's wild relay to the infield.

Winford's Bad Inning.

Then to start the third, young Francis Healey cracked a single to center and after Prather batted for Hubbell and flied out, Joe Moore shot a one-bagger to right, moving Healey to third. Winford disposed of Critz on a pop to Frisch, but Bill Terry hit a low liner through short and Healey ran home with the first run of the contest.

Frisch's single to right was the only safety off Herman Bell during his first two frames on the hill, but in the next inning, the sixth, Mooney started an attack with a single to center. Martin's infield out advanced the Tennessee schoolmaster and Gene Moore delivered a single to center which sent Mooney home with the tying run.

Moore then stole second and after Frisch walked, Medwick slammed a single to right, scoring Moore with what turned out to be the winning run.

Pitchers Dominate the Game.

Pitching dominated the contest to such an extent that there were no difficult fielding plays, but except for the wild relay by Durocher, the Cardinals played flawlessly on the defense.

Both managers sent in reserves in the late innings. Weintraub, who started in right because Melvin Ott was nursing a "Charley Horse," was the only Giant who played the entire game.

For the Cardinals, Bill Myers relieved Pepper Martin after six innings, Carey took over the shortstopping and Burgess Whitehead finished the game for Frisch at second base.

Frisch was the only player in the game to collect more than one hit, the Cardinal nicking Hubbell for a single in the first and Bell for a one-bagger in the fourth.

Carleton Fans the Side.

Carleton, who was lambasted by the Cardinal second-stringers in a practice game last week, was in good form against the Giants, holding them hitless during his three innings on the hill.

Tex had four strikeouts in the three frames and finished brilliantly by fanning Weintraub, Leiber and Joe Martin in order in the ninth inning.

Fitzsimmons vs. Dean.

Dizzy Dean and Fred Fitzsimmons will probably be the starting pitchers in Sunday's game here.

REESE STARS AS YALE BEATS HARVARD, 37-21

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 17.—Yale trounced the hapless Harvard quintet with ease tonight as these traditional rivals closed their Eastern Intercollegiate basketball season. The score was 37 to 21.

The victory placed the Elis in a tie for third place with Princeton in the league race which they won last year.

The Crimson, beaten in every league game this season, trailed throughout as it dropped its twelfth consecutive circuit contest. At the half the Elis held a 16 to 5 lead.

Ben Reese Jr. of St. Louis won individual scoring honors, making 15 points for Yale. His teammate, Capt. Earl Nikkel was runner-up with 11 points, while Grady made 10 points for Harvard.

BROWNS TO TRY TO PLAY TODAY, AFTER WASHOUT

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 17.—A rainstorm the like of which has not been seen around this part of the country in ever so long—that is, that's the way the natives talk about it—gushed forth today in all its wildest fury. The copious flow of water from the heavily-laden skies soaked the diamond and outfield to such an extent that Manager Hornsby refused to allow his players to go on the field, and the opening exhibition game of the Browns' season against the House of David team was called off.

It was very disappointing to Hornsby, as he was extremely eager to see his players in action. And Another Pro Revival.

THE comeback of the professional in tennis seems to have turned the minds of promoters toward the revival of professional running races for men.

TOLAN.

At any rate, we read that that great Negro runner, Eddie Tolan, has been invited and will probably accept an invitation to turn professional and compete in a match race against Austin Robertson, Australian champion.

The proposal was made by the Victorian Athletic League of Melbourne. The invitation includes also F. A. O'Neal, another famous British runner.

Tolan was Olympic champion at 100 and 200 meters. Robertson is world champion at 130 yards.

The "Sheffield Handicap."

PROFESSIONAL runners were numerous in this and other countries several decades ago. Betting was the chief reason for their existence.

In Europe and Australia real "classics" were arranged for the track men, just as rich stakes are annually held for race horses.

The "Sheffield Handicap" was one of the most famous of these. Runners went to England from everywhere for this event. Bookmakers laid odds against the contestants. So numerous were the entries that heats had to be run before the actual final stake final could be held.

St. Louis, many years ago, groomed a runner for this event, Lew Holland. He was kept under cover and taken to England, where he made the mistake of

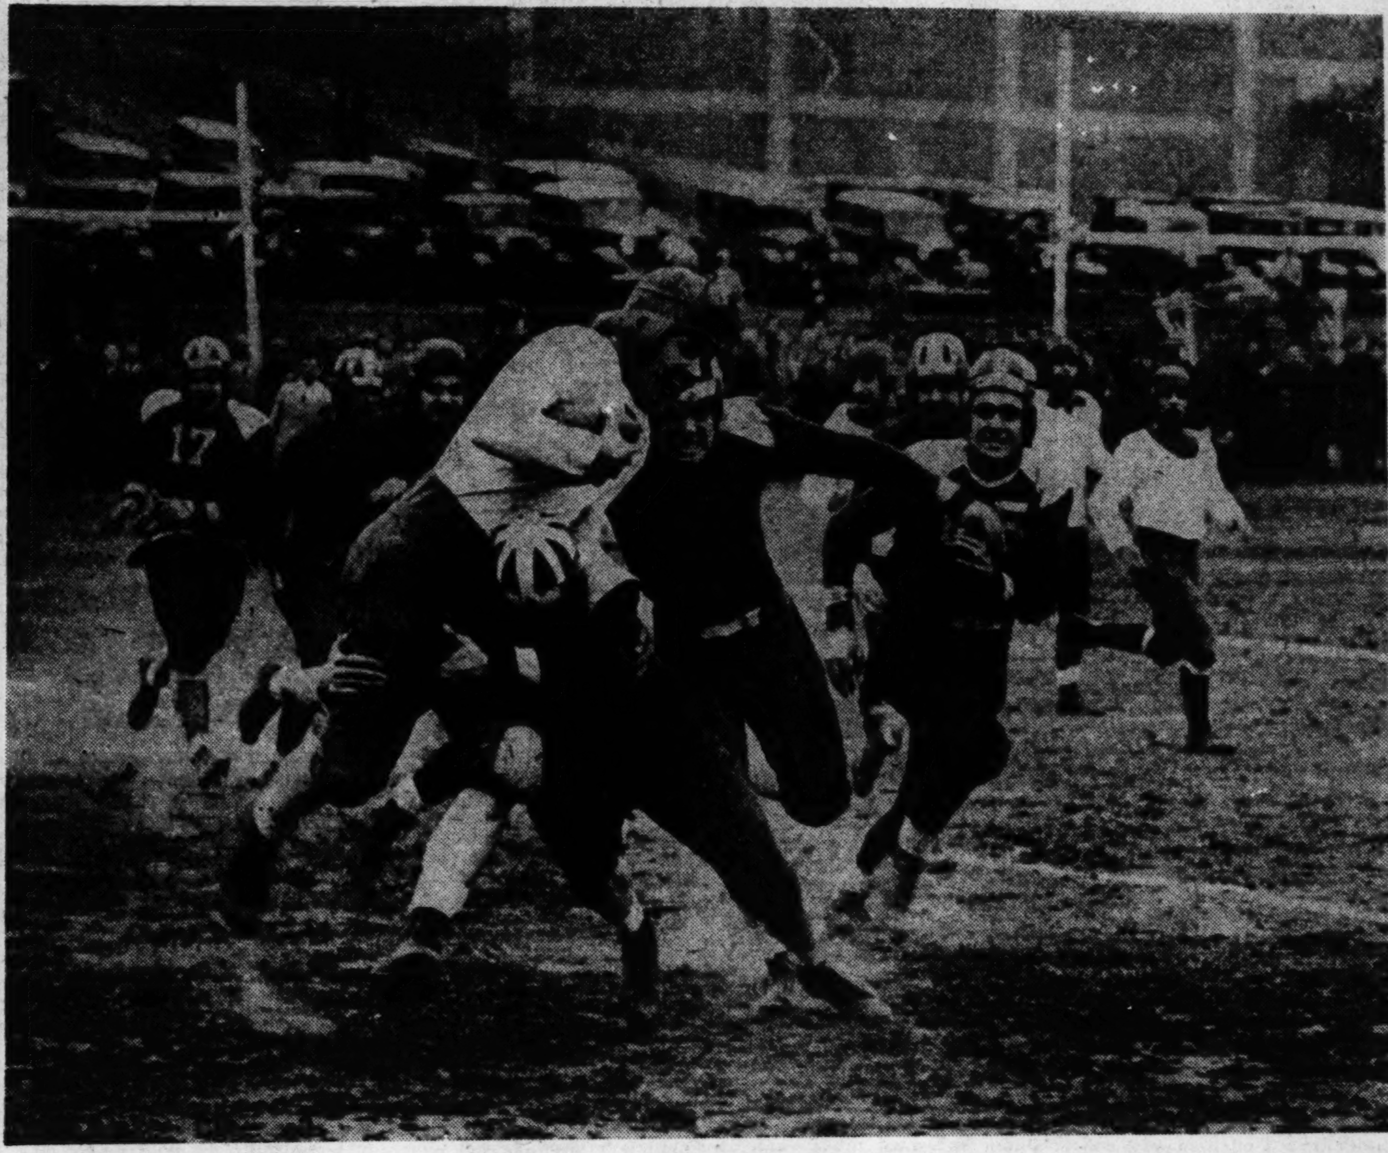
Hudgens, Washington Ace, Off on a Long Run



Though his team was defeated in the inter-varsity game yesterday, Bob Hudgens, looked on as a certainty to be a 1934 Washington University sensation, made several long runs, one of which resulted in a touchdown in the first quarter. He is shown here battling on, despite considerable opposition.

Two W. U. Football Teams Give 700 Spectators a Fine 3-Touchdown Show

By James M. Gould.

According to the calendar it may have been near-spring yesterday, but it was bracing fall weather out at Washington University and the tonic in the air helped two teams of varsity players to give a splendid exhibition of football, the "Reds" defeating the "Whites," 12 to 6. Full 15-minute quarters were played. Substitutions were few and both teams battled every minute of the hour of play.

About 700 persons, many of them Washington alumni, watched the game and rubbed their eyes unable to believe at first that these were Washington U. football players who were blocking so beautifully, tackling so fiercely and running so speedily. It is safe to say, without the slightest exaggeration, that Coach Jimmy Conzelman's two teams showed better all-around football form yesterday than they did in any game last season. And, there are still three weeks of this spring practice and every man who played yesterday and quite a big squad in addition will be eligible to play on the 1934 eleven.

Of course, after the manner of coaches, Jimmy Conzelman didn't want to appear too pleased. "It was a good game," he said, "but we've got some rough spots to smooth off. It does look, though, as if we would have a much stronger team this year than we did last season.'

Proof of Good Coaching.

Coach Conzelman was too modest. It was an extra fine exhibition of football by two teams that showed the benefits of real coaching. They were strong in fundamentals and there was a fire in their attack quite remarkable when it is remembered that each eleven knew the other's plays.

Bob Hudgens, the young halfback who promises to be one of the greatest of all Washington players, scored the lone touchdown for the "Whites," with Harry Brown and Chick Droke, veterans, accounting for the two "Red" touchdowns.

The game started with Hudgens in great form. The Illinois boy tore off several long runs, three of which accounted for more than 100 yards and one of which resulted in a touchdown in the first quarter.

Hudgens was getting some excellent blocking from Wimberly which was greatly helpful.

It was all the "Whites" and mostly Hudgens in the first period but then the tide of battle changed and the "Reds" took the upper hand and maintained the lead to the end.

In the second quarter, Brungard, "Red" end, blocked Hobbs' kick on the Whites' seven-yard line. Droke's dash was good for six yards and, on the next play, Harry Brown carried it over. His try for point, as TULSA OILERS KEEP A. A. U. TITLE BY BEATING WYOMING U.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, March 17.—The Tulsa (Ok.) Oilers retained their National A. A. U. basketball championship here tonight by defeating the University of Wyoming, 29 to 19.

Olympic club of San Francisco won third place in the tournament by defeating the Hutchinson, Kan., Renos 38 to 34, in the play-off game between the defeated semifinalists.

Gov. Leslie A. Miller of Wyoming was in the crowd of more than 5000 which saw the Rocky Mountain Conference champions lose their bid to become the first college team in nine years to take the A. A. U. title.

MICHIGAN U. WINS FOURTH STRAIGHT BIG TEN SWIM TITLE

IOWA CITY, Ia., March 17.—The University of Michigan's crack swimming team tonight captured its fourth consecutive Big Ten meet in the University of Iowa pool, scoring 41 points, more than double the tally of its nearest competitor, Iowa, which chalked up 20.

TILDEN BEATS COCHET, VINES DEFEATS PLAA

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—Big Bill Tilden and Ellsworth Vines tonight handed singles defeats to Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa, respectively, to win the ninth of the American-French professional tennis series in the cross-country tour.

Tilden downed Cochet 7-5, 6-2, 6-2, while Vines trounced Plaa, 7-9, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4.

PEDEN-SCHALLER WIN CHICAGO BIKE RACE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 17.— The team of Torchy Peden and Tony Schaller won the 31st six-day bicycle race at the stadium tonight. The Reboli-Servergnini pair took second place while the New Jersey entry of Lands and McNamara won third.

CUNNINGHAM BREAKS WORLD INDOOR RECORD FOR ONE MILE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Glenn Cunningham, the University of Kansas' premier miler, tonight drove the indoor mile record down to 4:08.4 seconds as he gave the finest exhibition of his career in winning the Columbus mile at the Knights of Columbus games from an all-star field. Setting a terrific pace from the fifth lap on Cunningham broke the tape 30 yards in front of Gene Venzke, Pennsylvania sophomore, who held the old universal indoor standard of 4:10, set on the same track two years ago.

Little John W. (Bill) Follows, going out of his class so he could get some competition, finished third some five to ten yards behind Venzke.

Cunningham Fresh at Finish.

Cunningham appeared as fresh as a daisy as he finished his marvelous race to hang up the second fastest mile in athletic history, indoors or out. Only Jack Lovelock's outdoor mile record of 4:07.6 stands ahead of Cunningham's time.

Laboring along behind the Kansan, almost distanced, were such great runners as Glen Dawson, of Skiatook, Ok., Charles (Chuck) Hornbostel, of Indiana, Frank Crowley, of Manhattan, and Frank Nordell, of N. Y. U.

Nordell, making his first start in one of the big club meets this year, jumped out to set the early pace with Venzke, Crowley, Cunningham and Follows running in stride right behind him.

Cunningham stayed behind the violet runner only so long as the pace suited him, stepping out to take the lead half way through the fifth of the 11 laps as Nordell began to run down.

Follows, Hornbostel and Venzke were right after him in that order, but Cunningham began to draw out gradually, increasing his pace and his lead.

Hits the High Spots.

As the bell rang for the final lap the great Kansan started for town, and how he went! Running like the champion he is, he just hit the high spots on that final circuit to leave Venzke, Follows and the rest struggling along to finish as best they could.

The cheers had hardly died away for Cunningham when Raymond Sears, of Butler, came out

Time Clock under a perfect ride ran a game race. He got away well but was crowded back going into the first turn and again was bothered in run down back stretch. He was taken out and around field going around long turn. Entering stretch he was on the outside and under a powerful ride closed gamely and won going away. Agrarian also received a perfect ride. He got away well, was beautifully handled all during the running came around the inside, horses entering stretch and closed very fast under the whip. Boy Valet while warming up before the race jumped the fence just beyond the club house. He was examined and found to be O K. He was slow to get into stride was sent up on the extreme outside and closed with a powerful rush in last three furlongs. Soon Over was hustled along at a terrific pace and tired under the ride. He held on gamely, however, in the final drive. Coequel was on the inside all the way saved ground at every stride and made a game effort. Somebody got the break but could not hold his advantage and dropped back turning out of the back stretch. Chance Flight was hustled along in early part and tired. Naval Cadet attempted to go up on inside in run down back stretch but was knocked out of all contention and never recovered. Bittybit tired badly after showing early speed.

MIAMI, Fla., March 17.—Time Clock, in the blue and white silks of Mrs. Dodge Sloan's Brookmeade Stable and with the battle-scarred veteran, Mack Garner, in the saddle, raced to a surprise victory in the seventh running of the Florida Derby today as the most successful meeting since the boom days came to a close at Hialeah Park.

With a crowd of 20,000 packing the stands, the black son of On Watch came from far back to sweep past the leaders in the last sixteenth of a mile and cross the finish line with a length and a half to spare. Mrs. Frank J. Heller's Agrarian, the 2 to 1 choice in the field of 10, just lasted to nose out E. R. Bradley's Boy Valet for the place, while Mrs. Payne Whitney's Soon Over was a tired fourth after setting most of the pace.

Time Clock Pays $32.10.

Although Time Clock, also eligible for the Kentucky Derby, came to Florida heralded as a strong contender for the getaway day feature, he was slightly regarded due to his poor performance in his only other start over the course. A $2 straight ticket returned $32.10. He ran the one and one-eighth miles in the fast time of 1:49 1-5, but did not threaten the track record. Mrs. Sloane's reward was $10,075.

Time Clock was slow to get in stride and was blocked at the first turn and bothered in the run down the back stretch. Rounding the long turn, however, Garner took the son of On Watch to the outside and Mrs. Sloane's colt responded gamely to win going away.

Agrarian, and Boy Valet, which jumped a fence in front of the grand stand before the start, also were slow to settle in their stride, but like the winner moved up fast once they hit the run for the judges' stand.

"I made my move along with the other stretch runners and my horse was the best," said Garner after the race. "I whipped him through the stretch because once he gets to the front, he has a tendency to twitch his ears and loaf.

"I think he will go the full mile and a quarter of the Kentucky Derby."

Like the Derby, the Juvenile Championship stake went to a

Babe Ruth, at 40, Shows Old Punch With First Homer

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17.—Featured by Babe Ruth's first home run of the training season, the New York Yankees eked out a 6 to 5 verdict over the Boston Braves here today. It was the second victory in a row for the Yanks.

Ruth's homer, the first out-of-the-park circuit blow on display here this spring, came in the third inning with the bases empty and the Yanks trailing by two runs.

The Yanks took the lead in the fifth with a three-run outburst, and practically cinched the game with a two-run rally in the seventh. Hoag's homer with one on in the fifth featured the late batting attack.

St. Louis Flyers to Play Kansas City Here Tonight With Hockey Lead at Stake

By W. J. McGoogan

First place in the American Hockey Association race will be at stake tonight when the St. Louis Flyers and the Kansas City Greyhounds clash at the Arena before what, indications are, will be the largest crowd of the season.

The only flaw in the Hockey Club's prospects is the weather forecast which calls for rain, snow and cold weather. But to offset this, in a measure, officials of the club announced last night that if the weather is bad, the side doors to the Arena will be opened and general admission tickets will be sold under the stands, making it unnecessary for fans to stand in line in the cold.

Also all gates at the front of the building, 13 in number, will be opened as against the usual six or eight. These plans are expected to expedite the handling of the incoming crowd.

This May Be Key Game.

The team which wins tonight will have an excellent opportunity of clinging to the top through the end of the season, even though Kansas City has played one less game than the Flyers. But the Greyhounds, with five contests remaining, play St. Louis twice and Tulsa three times while the Flyers play four more games, two with Kansas City and two with the last place Oklahoma City team, the players of which haven't a great deal of interest in the proceedings now as they are out of the playoffs.

St. Louis, Kansas City and Tulsa, of course, will play off for the championship regardless of the outcome of the remaining games on the schedule but the teams are trying hard to finish first as the leader will have to play but one

CHICAGO, March 17.—One up in the series to decide the Western soccer championship, the Stix, Baer & Fuller eleven of St. Louis, defending its title, will face the Wieboldts, local representatives, here tomorrow afternoon in the second contest. A victory for the Stix will give the club the Western championship for the third consecutive season. It also will give the St. Louis club the right to defend its national honors against the Eastern survivor.

The first match, played in St. Louis last Sunday, proved a rough affair, with the Stix gaining a 5 to 3 victory after two overtime periods. There was plenty of hard charging in the first battle and with the contest being played on the Wieboldts' home grounds, Alex McNab, coach of the Stix expects an even harder fight in the game here.

Praise From McNab.

"The Wieboldts own a fine club and will give us even more trouble in Chicago than was the case in St. Louis," said McNab. "While the Chicagoans were fresh, we had a hard time of it. However in the end the fine condition of our players told. We expect to use the same tactics in the second match we did in the opener," continued the St. Louisans' coach.

Last season after the Stix had beaten Sparta, 7-3, in St. Louis, they were fortunate to beat the Windy City here, 1-0, on a goal by Jimmy Roe in the first few minutes of the match. Which indicates clearly that Chicago teams are a lot tougher on their home fields.

In the opener of the series, the Wieboldts completely outplayed the Stix in the first half and gained a lead of one goal. However, in the closing period, the Stix overcame the advantage and went one ahead, only to have the Wieboldts come back and knot the score five minutes before the end of regulation time. However, in the extra half hour, it was all Stix, with the local representatives having few opportunities.

There will be no changes in the Stix lineup. Jimmy McGowan, the young "goalie," was nervous in the first battle, but is expected to prove better in the game here. It was his first test in a really important match. The other players, all experienced in national title play, will be at their regular positions. Despite the rough play, all the players came out of the first battle in fine style.

Same Chicago Club.

Billy Alexander, manager of the Wieboldts, will rely on the same club which started in the contest at St. Louis.

The game will be played at Kuppenheimer Field, which Alexander declares has a much better playing surface than Sparta Field. Dave Evans of Detroit will referee.

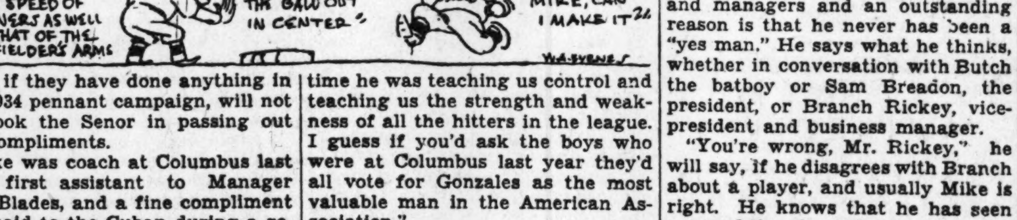
Mike Gonzales, He Coach Third Base and Keep Cardinals From Fumbling Around This Year

"We Have Strong Club, Best in League," Says Cuban Discussing Redbirds' Flag Chances. "All We Need Is Every Man Hustle and We Win."

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 17.—Miguel Gonzales, the veteran Cuban catcher, starting his twenty-fourth year in professional baseball, will not be mentioned by the experts as a candidate for the most valuable player award this year. Mike is listed as a player as well as a coach, but it is not likely that he will catch many games. He won't be important, using the batting and fielding averages as a yard stick. But the Cardinals realize his importance and when the race is run, the Redbirds if they have done anything in the 1934 pennant campaign, will not overlook the Senor in passing out the compliments.



A GOOD THIRD BASE COACH, MIKE KNOWS THE SPEED OF RUNNERS AS WELL AS THAT OF THE OUTFIELDERS ARMS
"BETTER STOP HERE, TRUCK, HE'S CHASING THE BALL OUT IN CENTER"
"PUFF! PUFF! WOT SAY, MIKE, CAN I MAKE IT?"
W.A. EVENS

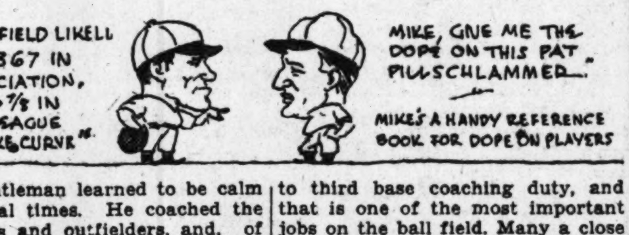
Mike was coach at Columbus last year, first assistant to Manager Ray Blades, and a fine compliment was paid to the Cuban during a recent Redbird workout by a Columbus baseball fan, in Bradenton for a vacation.

"You have many of our Columbus players here in Cardinal uniform," the fan said. "You have Paul Dean and Clarence Heise and James Winford, all good pitchers; you have Catcher DeLancey, Infielders Borgmann, Riggs and Whitehead and Outfielder Rothrock. But I don't think Columbus will miss any or all of them as much as they will miss Mike Gonzales."

Can a coach be that important?

Gonzales All-Around Coach.

"Yes, indeed, a coach like Gonzales. For one thing he took charge of Ray Blades until that fiery-tempered gentleman learned to be calm at critical times. He coached the infielders and outfielders, and, of course, his counsel to the pitchers was invaluable Ask some of the Columbus hurlers."



"OK—FIELD LIKELL HIT 367 IN ASSOCIATION, AND 67/8 IN BIG LEAGUE NO LIKE CURVE"
MIKE, GIVE ME THE DOPE ON THIS PAT PILLSCHLAMMER.
MIKE'S A HANDY REFERENCE BOOK FOR DOPE ON PLAYERS

That wasn't a bad idea and some of the Columbus pitchers were consulted.

"Mike certainly helped me," was the reply of each. "He's the most valuable coach I ever worked with. He was always on the job. In the bull-pen he didn't merely let us throw to him. He was teaching us all the time. He'd make us pitch in the bull-pen as though we were pitching to the opposing batter who happened to be at the plate in the game. He'd tell us that this man would kill a high ball outside and make us keep our delivery low while the man was batting.

"When another hitter went to the plate, he'd tell us what he could hit and what he couldn't hit. All the time he was teaching us control and teaching us the strength and weakness of all the hitters in the league. I guess if you'd ask the boys who were at Columbus last year they'd all vote for Gonzales as the most valuable man in the American Association."

Senor Miguel has a remarkable memory, a valuable asset in baseball. He knows all the batting averages and he knows the strength and weakness of virtually every player in the major leagues and in the minors of higher classification. He is a handy reference book at meetings before the games and Manager Frank Frisch is making full use of the Cuban.

"BUT HE'S A GOOD BASERUNNER, MIKE, YOU'VE GOT TO ADMIT THAT"
"NO—NO GET ON—NO BASERUNNER"
MIKE'S NOBODY'S YES MAN

Frisch already has assigned Mike to third base coaching duty, and that is one of the most important jobs on the ball field. Many a close game is won and lost through the action of the third-base coach. He must know the throwing arms of all outfielders, the speed of all base runners and must make snap decisions as to whether a man has a chance to score from second on a single or from third on a fly. Good third-base coaches are scarce. Bill Killefer was one and Bill McKechnie, another. McKechnie, now manager of the Boston Braves, always does the coaching at third base, as do many managers.

Gonzales also is valuable to a club as a builder of morale. He believes in the Cardinals and talks baseball and winning always. He does not say, "We can win," or "We ought to win." No, sir! "We gotta win" is the way Mike puts it. "We gotta win. We have a strong club. Best in league. All we need is every man hustle and we win. Yes, no question, we gotta win."

He Is No "Yes Man."

Gonzales is respected by players and managers and an outstanding reason is that he never has been a "yes man." He says what he thinks, whether in conversation with Butch the batboy or Sam Breadon, the president, or Branch Rickey, vice-president and business manager.

"You're wrong, Mr. Rickey," he will say, if he disagrees with Branch about a player, and usually Mike is right. He knows that he has seen more of the player in question than Branch has, and, having confidence in his judgment, he will speak freely.

Coaches frequently can be unimportant members of a big league baseball family, but Gonzales isn't that kind of a coach. And one of Frisch's wisest moves since he was made manager of the Cardinals was his request that Gonzales be assigned to the club as coach and assistant.

SHAW-STEPHENS FIVE MEETS PALMER TEAM OF DAVENPORT TODAY

The Shaw-Stephens girls' basketball team will meet the Palmers of Davenport, Ia., this afternoon at Maplewood High School in the last home game for the Shaw-Stephens team before it goes to Wichita for the National A. A. U. basketball tourney the last week in March.

It will be "American Legion day" and two preliminaries have been scheduled, the Wolfs of Maplewood meeting the Wellston Journals in a men's game, and the undefeated S-K five, Muny League girls' title winners, opposing the Liebersteins, East St. Louis champions.

Cubs Win From White Sox.

LOS ANGELES, March 17.—For the second time in their last nine games, the Chicago Cubs took the measure of their fellow townsmen, the White Sox, in an exhibition game here today, 7 to 4.

Jimmie Dykes and Zeke Bonura hit home runs for the White Sox. Cuyler connected for the circuit for the Cubs.

Parochial Fives Play Final Today

Having upset St. Francis Xavier, a school which twice has won the championship, St. Stanislaus hopes to continue its drive to the Parochial School basketball title with a victory over St. Adalbert of East St. Louis in the final round of the tournament this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the St. Louis University High School gymnasium. An hour earlier, Xavier will play St. Mark for third place honors.

If St. Stanislaus does win from St. Adalbert, it will be quite an achievement, because the East Siders also have won two previous championships. In reaching the final round of the present tournament, St. Adalbert conquered St. James, St. Edward and St. Mark, while St. Stanislaus eliminated St. Henry, East St. Louis, St. Ann and St. Francis Xavier.

Trophies and medals will be awarded to the winner and runner-up after the conclusion of today's doubleheader. Admission will be 25 cents.

CAMBRIDGE CREW BEATS OXFORD, BREAKING MARK 100 YEARS OLD

PUTNEY-ON-THAMES, March 17.—While countless thousands raised their immemorial din, afloat and ashore, a powerful Cambridge crew rowed into a new record and its eleventh consecutive victory over Oxford in their annual classic of the Thames today. Cambridge, finishing with a perfection of watermanship almost incredible in the heavy going, completed the four miles in 18:03 to establish the fastest time yet made in 100 years of competition.

Oxford offered a dramatic bid in the closing half-mile, but made little impression on the winners' lead, finishing about four lengths back. Oxford, however, took a slight meed of comfort back to the boathouse with it—the fact that its 18:18 also had bettered the course record.

Cambridge finished strong, but Oxford, completely spent by its magnificent effort in the late stages, was on the point of collapse, several of its men falling flat on the thwarts. For the first time in several years, there were no Americans in either boat.

The performances of the two boats were all the more remarkable for the fact that the Thames was rough, with a fitful wind raising havoc. Cambridge won the toss and chose the south side of the river. They got away at 4:17 o'clock after nearly an hour's delay, Oxford, outsider in the betting, breaking in front.

Oxford showed plenty of power in this opening skirmish, and, while its supporters went wild, it pushed its way out to a lead of a length in less than two minutes after the start. But this was not long to be.

Cambridge's crew had entered the race a prohibitive favorite and it swiftly showed why this was so, pulling up easily on the other boat and drawing even as they passed Beverly Brook. They rowed in this manner for some time, Cambridge pulling easily and Oxford with the zeal of desperation; then the inevitable happened.

Cambridge then applied its first touch of pressure and promptly sent its nose out in front at the one-mile mark, never again to be headed. At Crabtree Wharf, its lead was three-quarters of a length; at Hammersmith Bridge, open water was beginning to show. From that point it was just an unequal contest between a strong crew on one side and a tired crew on the other. At Chiswick, the lead was two lengths; at Barnes Bridge it was the same, but below the bridge Cambridge really began to row.

The Cambridge oarsmen gave it everything they had and pulled further and further away, until Oxford's case seemed hopeless. But it wasn't. The Oxonian had one more kick left and it proceeded to exhibit it, lifting its stroke to an abnormal pitch in an effort to cut down the lead of Cambridge. However, rough water and its own weariness combined to defeat this aim, Oxford's closing rush being too ragged to make any great impression, except in one particular.

"What's the Odds"?

YOU'D be surprised what the odds really are against the chances of the various clubs in the two major league races.

The professional figures released today are as follows:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

	Win.	2d.	3d.
Washington	5-4	2-5	1-10
New York	2	3-5	1-6
Boston	5	1	2-5
Chicago	8	5-2	1
Detroit	12	4	3-2
Cleveland	12	4	3-2
Philadelphia	50	15	5
St. Louis	100	30	6

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

	Win.	2d.	3d.
New York	2	3-5	1-5
Chicago	2½	7-10	1-5
Pittsburgh	3	1	3-5
St. Louis	6	2	4-5
Boston	8	2½	1
Brooklyn	20	6	2
Philadelphia	100	30	10
Cincinnati	100	30	10

The prices show plainly that the odds-makers look for well-contested races this year, with Washington being close to an even money favorite in the American League.

While the Browns have been placed last at odds of 100 to 1, they are not wholly despised as is shown by the fact that only 6 to 1 is quoted against the team's chance to finish third.

New York at 2 to 1 is logical but that the odds seem to be conjectural. It seems impossible to place the next six clubs with any confidence by reason of numerous changes.

The probabilities are good for two very close struggles.

All in the Viewpoint.

MILWAUKEE capitalists having failed to buy the Brewers for $100,000, less than half what the club cost Phil Ball, fans of the Cream City have decided that it's up to the owners of the Browns to give them a winning team.

There isn't much news in that. Fans of every baseball city usually demand that somebody give them a pennant club. The surprising feature of the Milwaukee situation is that they not only want the Browns to provide them with the winning talent, but they want the St. Louis owners to wreck their own club doing it.

An "open letter to the St. Louis Browns," published in a Milwaukee newspaper, reads in part:

"The club needs at least three more pitchers who can win consistently, two more infielders and another hard hitting outfielder.

"The Browns can provide these players.

"The roster of the St. Louis club right now includes sufficient men, not of American League caliber, to give Milwaukee a contender for the American Association pennant. These men cannot be of any real service to the Browns, but in the association they would be good ball players. The list:

"Pitchers—Jack Knott, Henry McDonald, Jim Walkup.

"Infielders—Art Scharein, Ollie Bejma, Harland Clift.

"Outfielders — Deb Garms, George Puccinelli, Ray Pepper."

What It Means.

THE Browns may be able to and probably will send Milwaukee three pitchers. Already they have sent the Brewers Infielder Storti and Pitcher Stiles, pretty good players.

As for the rest, giving the three outfielders asked for would leave the Browns only three players for their entire outfield defense—and one of these, Earl Clark, is a newcomer.

To give the Brewers the three infielders named would leave the club without a single replacement and would compel Hornsby to play 154 games.

On the basis of the team's present numerical strength, the arrangement would force the Browns into a pennant race with only 18 players.

Considering that losses due to weak St. Louis teams run well over $100,000 annually and in Milwaukee about $30,000, the request that the Browns' owners wreck their club to gratify Milwaukee may strike St. Louis fans as a little bit balmy.

The Browns Outfield.

WHILE most of the critics of the country take it for granted that West, Campbell and either Puccinelli or Ray Pepper will make up the Browns' outfield, there seems to be some debate about this.

West, regarded as the greatest defensive player in the country by many, and certainly a dependable though not a slugging hitter, is sure of a job. And that is about the only certainty.

Debs Garms showed hitting qualities last year and hitting will get first consideration this season. Garms, in fact, was the soundest hitter of the outfield group in 1933. Whoever beats him out of a job will have to show a better than .300 hitting average to get there.

Intensive batting practice is likely to bring several of the outfielders up to this requirement. Earl Clark, who hit quite well for the Braves for a short time, takes a fine sock at the ball. Puccinelli and Pepper both are long hitters.

The players who can convert base runners into scores will get two of the jobs.

Looking for Discards.

WHEN the major league clubs begin to shed their excess baggage, Hornsby will be on the lookout for pickups. With that unusually long—and tall—pitching list available for deals, he figures he may aspire to some pretty good talent.

The scarcity of major league players who can hit is such that little seasoned material will be allowed to escape. If Hornsby gets material let go by major league clubs after May 15, it is likely to be too old or too young to help much.

Does It Matter?

THE Browns today have 12 or 13 pitchers signed and only one is a left-hander. The Boston Red Sox, on the other hand, have eight left-hand twirlers.

The possession of the left-handed pitchers is cited as an asset for the Red Sox, but the fact that the Browns have only one left-hander is considered a weakness—and probably it is.

One would think that in a game where an average of two-thirds of the players active are right-handers, left-hand pitchers would be a handicap rather than a great help, considering that right-hand batters hit left-hand pitchers better.

The real reason for optimism about the Red Sox staff lies in the individuals rather than their sinister pitching equipment. Grove, Walberg, Pennock are names to conjure with, and Ostermueller and Weiland, among the others, are not to be despised.

Looking back through baseball history, the records seem to show that a great pitcher is great whether he is facing right or left-hand hitters and regardless of whether he throws left or right-handed.

The really successful mound men win by pitching with the head quite as much as with the arm. And we take it that all intelligent pitchers function by using BOTH lobes of the brain. They may be left-handed but they think right.

CHARLESTON, S. C., March 17.—Paul Runyan, the young White Plains, N. Y., star, gave his fellow professionals a lesson in par breaking tactics today as he won Charleston's Open Golf Tournament with a four-round total of 273, eleven strokes under par and nine shots ahead of his nearest rival.

The 25-year-old New Yorker pushed in front in the third round with a 68 and blew his opponents out of the running with a brilliant 65, six under par, and a new competitive course record in the closing round of the 72-hole medal play test. He had a 72 in the first round and a 68 in the second.

Professionals agreed his total was several shots better than the winning score in any tournament this season and some thought it was the lowest figure ever posted in any of the winter tournaments, and one of the lowest in any major tournament in the history of the game.

Craig Wood, the big blond from Deal, N. J., who was ahead at the half-way mark with 139, put together two nice rounds today of 73 and 70 to wind up in second place with 282, the same total with which Walter Hagen won this tournament a year ago.

Four strikes behind him was Horton Smith, of New York, who also played consistently fine rounds of 73-69-70-74—286.

Runyan, the big money winner of the winter season, who won 11 tournaments in 1933 and has captured three this year, profited $700 from his victory today.

Most of the pros left tonight for Augusta, where they want to get in a few rounds early next week before they enter the Masters' Invitation Tournament and encounter Bobby Jones again for the first time since 1930.

New Orleans Trims Indians.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—The Cleveland Indians lost their first exhibition game of the season today, 3 to 2, to the New Orleans Pelicans. Clint Brown was the losing pitcher. Brown yielded two runs in the opening inning, and Thornton Lee gave up another in the fifth. Dennis Galehouse pitched the last three innings.

THE NET RESULT DEPENDS ON HIM: Mickey Murray, Flyers' Goalie

HE is one of the chief reasons for the success of the club this year. Tied for first place among the league goalkeepers at present, Mickey's watchword is: "They shall not pass." And they don't, often.

Western A. A. U. Mat Tourney to Start Thursday

Amateur wrestlers have until tomorrow night to file their entries for the Western A. A. U. championships, which will be held Thursday and Saturday nights at the Y. M. H. A., Union and Enright avenue.

Organizations which will be represented in the tournament include the Downtown Y. M. C. A., the Y. M. H. A., North Side Y. M. C. A., Neighborhood House, Kingdom House and the Boys' Club. Any amateur wrestler who holds an A. A. U. card and passes a physical examination may enter. Preliminaries are set for Thursday night and the finals, Saturday night.

Entries are being accepted by Harry D. Regit, 724 North Union.

TROLLEY LEAGUE WILL START PLAY APRIL 29

The Missouri-Illinois Trolley League will open its season April 29, league officials have announced. The league will play a split season running through to the last Sunday in September.

League officials will meet Thursday night at Hotel Statler to ratify the transfer of the franchises of the Bly-Moss and Madison teams to Collinsville and Alton, respectively. The league this year will be composed of the Kirkwood and Vess teams in Missouri and the Collinsville, Belleville, Alton and Edgemont teams in Illinois.

Edgemont won the Trolley League pennant last year.

Long Time Together.

Four regular members of the famous South Carolina basketball team played together through their high school days in Texas.

Two Rings May Be Used at Arena for National A. A. U. Boxing Tournament in April

So numerous have been the entries and prospective entries for the National Senior amateur boxing tournament to be held at The Arena, April 4, 5 and 6, that officials of the Western A. A. U. under the auspices of which the event is to be handled, are seriously considering the use of two rings, instead of the usual one.

"If the entry list runs to 200 as we now expect it will, 't will be necessary to erect another ring in the Arena," Benny Kessler, manager of the tournament, said last night, "we now have officially 62 entries and really the list totals about 160, so it is clear that the list will appregate 200 or more."

Among the entrants are nine boys from the Northwestern Ohio District with headquarters at Cleveland. They are Ray Sharkey, 126 pounds; Troy Bellini and Ted Kara, 118 pounds; Jesse Leveles, 112 pounds; Steve Smozzy, heavyweight; Joseph Bauer, 175 pounds; Lloyd Marshall (Negro), 160 pounds; Danny Farrar, 147 pounds; Frank Bojack, 135 pounds.

Midnight Closing Hour.

The new rules for the national tournament require that only the semifinals and finals will be boxed the last night of the tournament and that on the two previous evenings all the boxing must be completed by 12 midnight, thus the necessity for two rings in the event of a big entry list becomes apparent.

Entries are made by the boxing committee of each district, and are limited to 16 entrants which may be chosen at the discretion of the committee. It is not necessary for there to be two boys from each weight division but the 16 may be chosen without regard to weight.

The entries close next Saturday, March 24.

Officials of the Western A. A. U., of which Kessler is chairman of the Boxing Committee have not chosen the team to represent this district as yet but probably will do so in the next few days. Of course, boys who won championships in the Western tournament at the Arena Friday night will be given serious consideration but not all the title winners are sure of appointment to the team.

The first night of the tournament will be "War Veterans' Night," with veterans' organizations sharing in the receipts. Details of the plans will be worked out at a meeting of American Legion post commanders, Wednesday night.

Expect Six Hawaiians.

Capt. Roy Davis, Chicago, chairman of the National A. A. U. Boxing Committee, has sent word to Kessler that he has been assured the entries of six boys from the Hawaiian Islands.

Among the recent communications received by tournament officials is a letter from Gene Tunney, retired world's heavyweight champion, commending the Western District for bringing the event to St. Louis.

" * * * It is my belief that the National Tournament of amateur boxing championships is a very important sociologic event because of the aspirations of American youth," Tunney wrote. "Practically every boy wants to be a good boxer and anything that inspires boys along that wholesome course is indeed worth while."

Father, Mother, Sister, Brother, 5000 of Them, In Softball This Summer

By Harold Tuthill.

If you can't find dad or mother, sister of brother, girl friends or boy friend after dark this summer, a good place to look for the absent one might be at one of the softball games that will take place nightly. It is estimated that at least 5000 boys and girls, men and women, will be active members of organized softball leagues this year.

From the small and cautious start with night games by George Sisler at his North Side Park, Grand and Florissant, last year, this sport has grown to such tremendous size that Sisler has decided to open two new parks—the South Side Park at Kingshighway and Chippewa and the Maplewood Park at Manchester and Laclede roads.

In addition, a group headed by George Leaver has incorporated under the name of the National Softball and Soccer League of Missouri, and will promote games at a $17,000 field on Kingshighway, half a block south of Arsenal. This organization will sponsor about 24 teams and already six clubs have signified their intention of taking part in the men's division. They are the Schumachers, Oldanis, First National Bank, Carlsons, Calcaterras and St. Margaret's Holy Name Society.

Small Admission Prices.

The usual admission price to the games in inclosed parks will be 10 cents, and there will be a "tax" of 15 cents for the grandstand at the National League Park. Sisler's League, the American Softball Association, will charge 10 cents everywhere.

Intercity games will be a feature new to softball. The National League will play on six nights a week and the seventh will be devoted to play-off of postponements and intercity contests. Sisler has stated that sectional teams will be brought into the American League and that there will be a national tournament of all sectional winners at the close of the playing season. Both leagues will have a split season, with the winners of the first half meeting the winners of the second for the championship.

Also affiliated with Sisler's American League are teams on the East Side, such as East St. Louis, Collinsville, Edwardsville and others. These clubs will invade St. Louis from time to time.

The demand to see the softball games last year was great enough that Sisler felt justified in enlarging the North Side Park to a seating capacity of almost 3000, and his other two parks will accommodate at least that many. The National League Park will seat between 3500 and 4000.

Muny A. A. to Sponsor Leagues.

Softball is growing so fast that the Municipal Athletic Association has taken cognizance of it and will institute an organization to regulate the sport this summer. Demands to Al Fleishman, Director of Recreation, have been frequent and he estimates several hundred teams want to join the association. Between 25 and 35 playgrounds will be made ready in a month to take care of the teams that enter. New diamonds are being installed at Sherman, Fairgrounds and Forest Park.

The entrance to the Municipal Association will be $12 for teams which enter an "open" league, while those which compete in a "closed" league, such as the Sunday schools, will have to pay a registration fee of only $3.25 per team and 25 cents per player. The last-named leagues supply their own equipment, but are entitled to take part in the elimination games at the end of the season.

An idea of the popularity enjoyed by softball may be drawn from the fact that although only a week was given teams to enter last fall, 66 clubs took part in the tournament sponsored by the Municipal Association. Fleishman expects that number to be quadrupled for the coming year.

The Y. M. C. A., too, contemplates instituting softball leagues and more than 100 teams want to join the Industrial League, which is sponsored by the "Y." All in all, 400 teams appear ready for the start of the season, about April 15, and since there is a minimum requirement of 10 players, it is easy to see that 5000 is only a conservative estimate of the active participants.

MIAMI, Fla., March 17.—Gene Sarazen and Joe Kirkwood, the premier ramblers of golf, will hop off from here Tuesday morning on a 10-month 120,000-mile barnstorming jaunt that will make all previous golfing odysseys look like baby's first steps.

They fly to San Juan, Puerto Rico, for the first match of a six weeks' South American leg, after which they will play in the American open, go to Europe, back to Canada and then to the Far East and the Antipodes.

With the announcement tonight of this world tour, it was learned definitely that neither Sarazen, the professional champion, nor Kirkwood, the Canadian open champion, will play in the Augusta tournament starting Thursday, in which Bobby Jones will return from retirement. Both globe trotters were invited to the masters' tournament at the Augusta national golf course, Bobby Jones' new home links.

95 Boys Enrolled in Negro Boxing School; Entries Close Tuesday

From a list of 95 names of Negro boys and youths between the ages of 16 to 24 years, in the Boxing School for Negroes here, sponsored by the St. Louis Argus, weekly Negro newspaper, those who qualify will appear in the 32 semifinal and final bouts which will be held March 26 at the Coliseum. The boys will be fighting also for possible places among the 16 to be chosen by the District Boxing Committee as the Western division's representatives in the National A. A. U. senior championships at the Arena next month.

Youngsters from the St. Louis area, including East St. Louis and St. Louis County, have entered classes held every night at the Pine Street Y. M. C. A., the Lincoln Community Center, Twenty-third and Walnut streets; the Dunbar Center, 1415 Garrison avenue, and the Cole Center at 3935 Enright avenue.

The school is composed of classes in eight divisions. There are 27 in the lightweight class, 26 in the welterweight, 10 in the bantamweight, 6 in the light-heavyweight, 4 in the heavyweight, 14 in the middleweight and 8 in the featherweight.

Orthell Roberts, former University of Iowa track man, and now supervisor of school recreation centers in St. Louis, is directing the school. He is assisted by Clifford Evans, former member of the University of Colorado boxing team; Larry Spink, a Canadian Negro boxer; Benny Deathpaine, professional middleweight boxer; Charles Casey and James G. Brown, physical director at the Pine Street Y. M. C. A.

The entry list is expected to be swelled to at least 120 names before the final closing date, which is Tuesday night of this week. Elimination contests will be held at the various centers the coming week-end. Gold medals and medals of bronze will be awarded to the 16 best boxers in the final ring contest.

Aiding in the movement are the city Recreation Department, Citizens' Recreational Council and the athletic sponsors of the two Negro high schools.

FLYERS TO PLAY KANSAS CITY TONIGHT

series while the second and third place teams must play a series between themselves to determine the club to meet the first-place aggregation for the pennant.

All of the St. Louis players are in good physical condition and ready to go. So are the Greyhounds, as far as is known here, although Burland, one of Kansas City's best defense men, has suffered three major penalties and is suspended from tonight's play, automatically.

Paddy Paddon, St. Louis left wing, continues in the lead in scoring, according to figures released by the league and including games of Thursday night, while little Alex McPherson has moved up to a tie with Pete Palangio and Mulvihill of Kansas City for third place. Vic Des Jardins, Tulsa coach has jumped into second position.

Paddon has scored 21 goals and has been credited with 12 assists for a total of 33 points, 3 more than Desjardins. Mulvihill, McPherson and Palangio each has 28 points.

Mickey Murray, the goal tender who has had so much to do with the Flyers' success this season is tied for first place with Sammy "Porky" Levine of Kansas City.

Tulsa defeated Oklahoma City in a league game last night at Tulsa, 4 to 0.

KARL HODGE TO DEFEND INDOOR TENNIS HONORS

By Davison Obear

Karl Hodge, Triple A Club captain, will defend his title as men's singles champion in the eighth annual St. Louis District Indoor tennis tournament which opens at the Washington University Field House next Saturday afternoon. By winning last year's event, Hodge earned the first leg on the new Roy Culbertson challenge trophy.

The events in the 1934 indoor championship will be men's singles and doubles and women's singles. A mixed doubles event will be added if eight teams enter. Miss Alita Davis, St. Louis Country Club tennis star, is expected to defend her title in the women's singles. In addition to her victory last season, Miss Davis won the previous women's singles event in 1927, and therefore is undefeated in District indoor singles play.

In order to complete the tournament by Saturday, March 31, the men's singles will be limited to 48 players, while 16 teams will be allowed in the men's doubles. The entry in the women's singles will be limited to 24 players. Entry fees, including players admission ticket for the entire tournament, are $1.50 in singles and $3 a team in doubles.

Players may enter the tournament at sporting goods stores located at 921 Locust, 915 Pine street, 1102 Locust and 409 North Broadway. Mail applications accompanied by the entry fee may be sent to J. H. Witherspoon, 904 Security Building, St. Louis.

The Tournament Committee is composed of Dr. Frank E. Diekneite, chairman; Donald P. Beebe and Russell C. Hadden. Arrangements are being made to increase the lighting facilities over the three courts in the Field House and other improvements for the benefit of both the spectators and the players will also be made.

Season admission tickets may be obtained at $1 each from Karl H. Hodge, 904 Security Bulding.

JOE PENNER cannot sell his duck
And hence is melancholy;
The P. S. C. is out of luck
And cannot sell its trolley.

Congrats, Bucky.

After two days' practice Bucky Harris claimed the American League pennant for the Boston Red Sox. Looks like a revival of that ancient and honorable custom of winning the pennant before the season opens.

Bucky says he based his predictions not on what he has seen his veterans do in practice, but on what they have told him they could do in heart-to-heart conferences. Indicating that they have taken a line out of the football book and are all set to win the Conference championship.

"Casey Jones, Daring Jumper, to Compete at Greenfield."

Don't jump the track, Casey.

Sonja Henie, world champion figure skater, says she pines for retirement, but has no intention of venturing out on the thin ice of matrimony.

Think of That.

"What's the matter with this water I told you to boil?" inquired Mrs. Fillum Starr.

"I was so engrossed in writing a recipe for my favorite dish that I let it burn," rebutted Mr. Fillum Starr.

The track where the English Derby is run is called Epsom Downs. But the guy who ran a shoestring into a tannery and then ran the tannery back to a shoestring has rechristened it Upson Downs.

Herb Pennock takes a more conservative view of the Red Sox pennant chances than does Manager Bucky Harris. Herb has been to the races and knows that pennants are won on the diamond and not in conference.

Frankie Frisch thinks the new ball will help the sluggers. With the added resilience they will be stretching singles into home runs.

"Garden Offers Baer New Deal."

They're not thinking of turning it into a Baer Garden are they?

One of the most important requisites of a ball club is a masseur. It takes a good rubber to put the old snap into the boys.

The society gals of Pasadena presented Al Simmons with a bat made of flowers. Why not say it with pussy-willows?

They also presented Manager Lew Fonseca with a key to the city that wouldn't open anything. But Lew isn't one of these guys who look a gift horse in the mouth.

A Spring Phenom.

Brooklyn is trying out a young first-sacker named Johnny McCarthy. According to reports from Orlando, which is in Florida, he can do everything that Hal Chase or George Sisler could do and many things they wouldn't attempt. Furthermore, he has the additional advantage of having been hit on the head with a bat when four years old, which makes him a logical contender for the first base job with the Dodgers. He is what they call a "natural," never having played a game in organized ball.

Johnny is the property of Dayton, where he will probably play this year, but he will be back next season when Casey pulls the string.

Jess Haines this season will be serving under his seventh manager since joining the Cards in 1920. Looks like some kind of a record.

BROWNS TO TRY TO PLAY TODAY AFTER WASHOUT

it was a terrible blow to the business manager of the House of David team, Mr. Louis Murphy, because, as he says, he is carrying 18 players and every game counts, financially speaking, very greatly at this time of the year. Members of the House of David reported last Tuesday at Vero Beach, Fla., where they have been in training, and the battle today was to be their first of the season. Naturally, Mr. Murphy, a very appropriate name for this particular date, was anxious to play ball, not that he wanted any of his men to injure themselves on the slippery field, but he was willing to take a chance. In other words, Louis Murphy felt sure that the sun would quickly dry out the field.

The teams are scheduled again tomorrow.

Old Sol did burst forth in all of his radiant glory after the deluge, which lasted 20 minutes, and there is reason to believe that the field might have dried up. However, Hornsby was not taking any chances. He simply remarked to his men that all work for the day was over, and all might take off their monkey suits and return to the hotel.

Most of the boys jumped into their cars and headed for a ride over to Palm Beach. It's the first day the athletes have had off since landing in camp March 6, and everyone was glad to take advantage of the freedom.

Generally, when Manager Hornsby calls it a day, the players are so weary that they return to the hotel and either spend the remainder of the afternoon sitting around the lobby, or taking naps in their rooms. Some few weeks ago Hornsby was asked if he had any objection to his men playing golf. He replied that it was alright with him if they wanted to play golf after they were through working at the ball park. There are no golf players numbered among the large squad of Browns. And none of the players ever goes to the beach.

About the only excitement of the day was furnished by "Buck" Newsom. It seems that some time ago "Buck" wrote a post card to "Dizzy" Dean, and sent it over to Hot Springs. The big Californian, who is now a member of the Browns' pitching staff, stated in the few words he wrote that he was anxious to meet "Dizzy" in two of the spring exhibition games between the Browns and Cardinals at Sportsman's Park.

Newsom received no reply to his card. Last night Big Buck sent a wire, and repeated his challenge. However, Newsom forgot to pay for the wire and informed the telegraph clerk to send it collect. Today at the ball park a couple of messenger boys drew up their bicycles at the front gate, and asked for Newsom. He was called off the field and then the messenger boys handed him two messages, both collect. Both were sent from Miami, one filed at 11:36 and one at 11:38, one over the Postal and the other over the Western Union. And here's how "Dizzy" Dean wired "Buck" Newsom:

> Miami, Fla., March 17.—Buck Newsom, care of Hornsby, St. Louis Browns, West Palm Beach, Fla. Thanks for the flattery. Your ham and egg salary is pin money for me, so I accepted telegram collect. When you pitch against us, wear a suit of armor or you'll get killed. Brother Paul is a super star in comparison to you. May have some fresh rookies to farm out to your club. Get out of the cellar.
> "Miami, Fla., March 17. — Buck Newsom, care St. Louis Browns, West Palm Beach, Fla. You semi-pros had better get in shape. Try and get the change of pace that you call a fast ball over this year and tell Hornsby, the two hundred hitter, to get in shape. Your season pay probably won't cover the charges on this wire so return and I shall pay. It's a cinch Hornsby can't pay for it. Mr. Dean, care of Rickey's Minstrels."

So, as mentioned before, it seems that the war between Newsom and Dean started when Newsom sent the one-cent postcard issuing his challenge. True, he did send a collect wire inquiring why Dean had not answered, and now the pair, as the result of the one-cent card, both are paying out considerable for collect wires. Just how long this thing will continue no one knows, but it's certain that Newsom will not be able to keep up paying the charges, as only a few days ago some slick-fingered guy took his pocketbook containing $95. Perhaps Newsom is a great big fellow who can take it, but there is a sneaking suspicion that he may pay a call to the secretary before many days have passed.

The Chamber of Commerce of West Palm Beach has designated Wednesday, March 21, as St. Louis Browns day. That body and the Palm Beach chamber will unite on that occasion to pay tribute to the visiting American Leaguers and their manager, Rogers Hornsby. The Browns will furnish the entertainment with the first of a two-game exhibition series against the world champion New York Giants. It was also announced by Harry Woodruff of Palm Beach and N. Y. Mizell of West Palm Beach that a special dinner for the Browns and Giants would be held in the evening.

DOYLES OPPOSE SPARTON ELEVEN IN FIRST MUNY TITLE CONTEST

Survivors of a field of 28 senior teams, which started in the hunt for the Municipal Soccer League championship last fall, the Doyles, title winners of Fairground No. 3 and the Spartons of Sherman Park, will play in the first game of the series for the city title at Fairground No. 2, this afternoon.

In a preliminary, the Holy Rosary team of Fairground and the Diaz eleven of Carondelet, will start the series for the junior championship. The program begins at 1 o'clock, with the feature contest set for 3 o'clock.

The Doyles and Spartons established fine records over the season's play to go into the final. After winning the group honors without a defeat, the Doyles trimmed the Minit Rubs, 4-0, and the Clearys, 2-0, in the eliminations In the first round, the Spartons surprised with a 2-1 victory over the Sunshines, a team which went through the Forest Park competition with 15 consecutive victories. Then in the semifinal, the Sherman Park representatives downed the German Sport Club, last year's champions, 4-2, in an overtime match.

Grenon Out of Lineup.

These figures show that the teams are even on offense, each having scored six goals. However, on the defense, the Doyles have the better of it, inasmuch as their goal line is uncrossed, while each of the Sparton opponents has tallied. The Germans lodged a protest following the Sparton victory, but it was disallowed by the committee.

The Doyles will be without the services of one of their star forwards, Bud Grenon, in the title matches. Grenon still is in St. John's Hospital suffering from injuries received in an accident earlier in the week. His place as outside right will be filled by Ikemeyer. The Spartons will be able to field their best lineup.

As was the case in the other eliminations, halves will be of 45 minutes' duration. In case of a tie at the end of regulation time, extra periods of 16 minutes, divided into halves of eight minutes, will be played. There will be six officials in charge of each of the matches, two referees, two goal linesmen and two side linesmen.

Johnny Cradock and Harry Donovan will referee the senior match, with P. Garcia and C. Roche as side linesmen and W. Rogles and I. Wimer as goal linesmen. In the preliminary, the referees will be H. Ratican and W. Walsh, with W. Brady and A. Claeys on the lines and J. Keenoy and V. Sandusky on the goal lines.

An admission of 25 cents will be charged for the double bill.

Probable lineup of the senior match:

Referees—J. Cradock and H. Donovan; side linesmen—P. Garcia and C. Roche; goal linesmen—W. Rogies and I. Wimer.

Swimmers From Out of City in District Meet

For the first time there will be out-of-town entries for the Western A. A. U. swimming meet to be held Tuesday night at Wilson pool, Washington University.

The Little Rock (Ark.) Boys' Club, the Hannibal (Mo.) Y. M. C. A. and the Western Military Academy swimming teams will send representatives to the meet. W. M. A. is sending a complete team and the other two have three entries each.

There are 110 entries, 22 women and 88 men. This is 30 more than last year's total entries.

Other teams in the men's division are: Washington University, St. Louis University, Downtown Y. M. C. A., Y. M. H. A., St. Louis U. High, Beaumont, McKinley and North Side Y. M. C. A.

Women's teams are entered from Loretto Academy, Town Club, Y. W. C. A., Y. W. H. A.

Bill Rosenbaum, Washington University swimming team's captain; Bill Kiessling, North Side "Y", and Homer Heideman, Downtown "Y" swimming teams' captain are the favorites for the back stroke event.

Fred Varney, Washington U. freshman, and three swimmers from the Downtown "Y", Ben Schaller, Jerry Brenner and Harry Queensen, are favorites for the free style events.

Jeanette Queensen and Lorraine Morrison of the Y. W. C. A. are entered in the fancy diving event. Miss Morrison also is expected to give Miss Lillian Sanders competition in the free style race.

A special high school relay race also will be held with Beaumont, W. M. A., McKinley and St. Louis U. High entered. Beaumont and Western's teams are the leaders in the district this year and should wage a close race for first place in the special event.

GALLANT SIR'S JOCKEY CHANGED FOR CALIENTE HANDICAP

SAND BABY, A SELLING PLATER, ADDED STARTER IN $25,000 RACE

By the Associated Press.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, March 17.—In an effort to cater to the whims of the favorite, a new jockey was named for Gallant Sir today, 24 hours before the ill-humored stallion was to go to the post in an effort to win his second straight Agua Caliente Handicap. The race is worth $25,000.

E. L. (Woody) Fitzgerald, trainer of the most important half of the Northway Stable's entry, named Jack Pollard to fill the stirrups of the sulking son of Sir Gallahad III instead of George Woolf, who rode the gallant one to victory a year ago in the record time of 2 minutes 2 2-5 seconds.

There were few changes in the odds as the annual border classic drew near. Gallant Sir and Riskulus were quoted at the prohibitive odds of 1 to 2 with Pari-Mutuel in second spot at 5 to 1 and Boardwalker third at 8 to 1.

Indications were that only seven would start. Coflier was scratched but a surprise was injected in the race when Sand Baby, a field horse which won a $500 claiming race three days ago, became an added entry. It was considered unlikely, however, that his owner, J. E. Neibert, would pay the $250 post fee tomorrow since Sand Baby went unclaimed in his recent victory.

Long prices of 100 to 1 were posted for the added starter.

It was the smallest field ever to start in this or the Coffroth Handicap of old Tijuana, which the present event replaced.

HORSE—JOCKEY	WT.	ODDS
Bonny Grafton, J. Malben	100z	10-1
Onrush, H. Grayson	102	10-1
Sand Baby, H. Helm	90	100-1
*Riskulus, L. Humphries	108	1-2
Prince Pest, J. Sullivan	100z	10-1
Boardwalker, C. Turk	111	8-1
Pari-Mutuel, F. Munden	116	5-1
*Gallant Sir, J. Pollard	130	1-2

*Norman Church, Northway Stables entry. z-Probably will be overweight.

Little for Propagation.

LESS than 20 cents of every dollar received from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses has been available for propagation and replacement of game and fish, a checkup of the State Game and Fish Department expenditures in recent years has revealed. Enforcement, administration and State park expenses have demanded the greater portion of the Conservation Department's funds which virtually all come from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses.

Using 1932 as a basis for the calculations on an average of expenditures in recent years it was found that only 5½ cents were available for game investment; 11 cents for hatcheries, and 1 cent for game refuges of each dollar spent by the Game and Fish Department.

The county clerks who issue the licenses (retaining 10 cents commission on each license) received more than the State hatchery system. The county clerks received $37,892 for filling out the permits and the hatcheries spent only $36,300.

The State parks spent 21 cents and were the second largest expense. The wardens' division and office spent for salaries 23 cents of every dollar. Other items included: Traveling, 19 cents; office expense, 5½ cents; printing, 2½ cents.

Twenty-five per cent of the license fees, originally placed in the game protection fund, each year must be transferred to the parks division for purchase and maintenance of the park system. Because of the special development features being done on the State parks by the U. S. Department of the Interior with CCC assistance, this meager fund will no longer be sufficient to meet the park needs, conservation authorities say.

A move at Jefferson City to relieve the State Game and Fish Department of the State park obligations and provide other means of providing revenue for purchase and maintainance of the parks has already received the approval of some of the State and Federal authorities.

Checking Fishermen.

Chief of Wardens Joe Green, considered one of the most publicity-shy game wardens the Missouri Game and Fish Department has ever had, has been keeping his force busy the last few weeks checking fishermen. Each warm day sees an increased number of persons fishing at the better known sites and while every species of fish found in Missouri waters is now eligible to the creel the wardens are kept busy checking licenses and creel limits.

The game wardens have a huge task, it is pointed out, as the average area to which each warden is assigned amounts to more than one million acres. Augmenting the staff of full time, regularly paid wardens, the department has the usual several hundred "honorary" wardens. Virtually all the active work is done by the less than two score regularly commissioned wardens however.

Jack Salmon Return.

Jack salmon, which last year lured thousands of persons to Osceola because of their great numbers, apparently are beginning a return engagement, reports from St. Clair County indicate. With Lake Sac Osage once more running over the 750 h. p. water power dam at Osceola and churning the waters of Osage River the fish have become active and are biting ravenously.

Those who have been enjoying the early season fishing below the dam say it is not a difficult task to get the creel limit of ten jacks in short order. Live bait is being used on jack salmon but many fishermen also are using doughballs and liver for the carp which also are found in great numbers at this place.

During the last two years as many as 10,000 persons have fished at Osceola in one day. Most of them are cane pole fishermen, as artificial lures are barred near dams. Some bait and fly casting is done downstream, however.

Although fishing always has been good at this point, it was not until after the Lake of the Ozarks had been formed that the outstanding runs were noticed. The State Game and Fish Department once attempted to rescue some of the fish from the pools below the dam for planting in less favored streams but was stopped by an injunction obtained by the citizens of Osceola who are benefiting from the new resort business.

TIME CLOCK WINS FLORIDA DERBY AND PAYS $32.10

rank outsider, Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's Hasty Glance romping home a length in front of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Forever Young to pay $65.50 for $2 and earn $3270 for her owner.

Johnny Gilbert had the daughter of Haste in front nearly all the way to beat the winner of the male division of the Nursery Stakes. A head farther back came Mrs. Damon Runyon's Angelic to save third money from Miss Prince, a field horse. Little Lie, winner of the filly division of the Nursery, raced well up early but dropped back and finished sixth in the field of 14.

The mutuel pool on the Florida Derby, slightly more than $73,000, was the largest handle for one race in the history of Hialeah Park.

Porter Now Has 76 Winners.

Earl Porter, sensational apprentice jockey who is leading rider of 1934, at this early date, again finished a decisive winner in the race for riding honors as the 45 days Hialeah Park meeting which ended here today. The Geneva, Ill., boy scored on one occasion this afternoon which brought his total for the meeting to an even 40. He rode 36 at Tropical Park, to total 76 for the Florida season. He has 75 for 1934.

Johnny Gilbert and Eddie Litzenberger were tied behind Porter with 31 local winners apiece. Then followed Meade, 27; Wright, 24, and Coucci, who was out of action about three weeks, with 22.

MARION DEFEATS ZIEGLER FIVE FOR DISTRICT TITLE

Marion High School won the Illinois district basketball tournament held at Collinsville last night by decisively defeating Ziegler, 43—22, and will go to the Illinois State tournament to be held at the University of Illinois next Thursday.

Ziegler held Collinsville on even terms in the first quarter, but in the second G. Milosezich, star forward of the Ziegler team, was put out of the game on four personal fouls, and after he left the game Marion scored freely.

James Anderson, center, was Marion's star in the victory, taking high score honors for the night with 17 points.

Marion and Ziegler shared the five places on the all-star team picked after the tournament final. Borun, forward; Anderson, center, and Tulley, guard, of Marion, and Homan, forward, and Mattson, guard, of Ziegler, were placed on the team.

Two and a Half Mile Steeplechase Won by Oliver C

By the Associated Press.

AIKEN, S. C., March 17.—Oliver C., five-year-old chestnut gelding from the stables of Mrs. T. H. Somerville, of Wilmington, Del., won the Aiken Cup, feature event of the Aiken Steeplechase Association's meeting here today.

With Noel Laing, of Camden, up, Oliver C. raced home five lengths ahead of Thomas H. Durant's Fugitive, another Wilmington entry, which nosed out Ward A. Wickshire's Lucier in a driving finish.

A crowd of more than 5000 saw the colorful race meeting. Two favorites, Silverskin, owned and ridden by Rigan McKinney, of Westbury, L. I., and Our Friend, owned by Mrs. Verner Z. Reed Jr., of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., and Pinehurst, and ridden by Laing, won the two preliminary races.

STOEFEN BLASTS WAY TO A U. S. TENNIS TITLE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 17.—The two-year reign of Gregory S. Mangin as United States indoor tennis champion was broken today in the Seventh Regiment Armory by Lester R. Stoefen of Los Angeles, who smothered the defending champion 6—1, 8—6, 6—4, before 200 spectators.

A little more than an hour was all the time required by the towering Californian to subdue his Newark, N. J., rival in straight sets in one of the fastest played finals in 35 years.

Mangin won the first game of the set on service and then he was subjected to the humiliation of losing nine straight games. Stoefen's catapulting delivery came at Mangin with so much dazzling speed that the Newarker was almost blown off the court. The lanky lad's forehand, timed with perfect accuracy, invariably caught Mangin out of position.

As effective as any of his weapons was Stofen's gunfire service. Mangin virtually was defenseless against it and succeeded in taking only three games on Stoefen's delivery. Only once before during the course of the tournament was the Californian's service scored on and then by Frank X. Shields, nationally ranked at No. 1, in their semi-final match on Thursday.

Stoefen, ranked third in the country and a candidate for the 1934 Davis Cup team, won eight of his 20 games on Mangin's service, taking two of them at love.

Paired with George M. Lott Jr., Chicago Davis cup doubles veteran, Stoefen won his second national title, overhauling Berkeley Bell and Frank J. Bowden, New Yorkers, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4, in the doubles final.

Mary M. Simpson Becomes Bride of Dumont Dempsey

Quiet Ceremony at Home of Bride's Mother at 5058 Waterman — She Wears Sister's Wedding Gown.

ONE of the few socially important Lenten weddings took place at noon yesterday when Miss Mary Morrison Simpson, daughter of Mrs. William S. Simpson Jr., 5058 Waterman avenue, became the bride of Dumont Gardner Dempsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Dempsey, 5706 Maple avenue.

Simplicity marked the arrangements for the ceremony, which was performed at the home of the bride's mother by the Rev. John P. Spencer of St. Roch's Church. Thomas Dempsey Jr. was his brother's best man and the only attendant. Guests included only members of the two families and a few close friends.

The wedding party stood before the mantel in the living room, which was banked with clusters of all white flowers in which Easter lilies were combined with roses, snapdragon, freesia and stock. Flowers on small tables further decorated the room.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Sidney L. Breese Runyan. She wore the wedding gown of her sister, Mrs. William Lee Polk, formerly Miss Caroline Runyan. The gown is fashioned of deep ivory satin designed on bias lines to mold the figure. The bodice is cut to a V in the front and high at the back. The sleeves, full to the elbow, are gathered into a tight cuff. The skirt is attached to the bodice in front by rows of shirring, and the normal waistline is defined by a crushed girdle, terminating in a loop at the back and long ends that falls to the end of a long train. She wore a tulle bridal veil held at the back with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

An informal reception followed. Spring flowers in the pastel tints—pink snapdragon, blue iris and yellow jonquils—were used to decorate the dining room and hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey will sail from New Orleans for a honeymoon cruise to the West Indies, to be gone three weeks. They will live at 7515 Buckingham drive.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Van Leer Runyan and is a niece of Mrs. Valle Reyburn. Her father died several years ago. She is a graduate of Mary Institute and has traveled in Europe with Mrs. Atwell T. Lincoln. She is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Dempsey is a graduate of St. Louis University. His great-grandmother was Miss Mary Primm of a well known St. Louis family of that name.

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

NEW YORK, March 17.

HAVING been posted as missing these many sophisticated years, the old-time stage door johnny is revisiting the glimpses of Broadway's bright lights. The particular institution responsible for his revival is Billy Rose's Casino de Paris, a madhouse combination of stage revue, restaurant and cabaret. The Casino, which is run on the scale of an almost cosmic honkey-tonk, has in its choruses the most highly paid show girls in town, and after the last show at 3 in the morning the stage door of the old New Yorker Theater is besieged by top-hatted and opera-cloaked youths clamoring for the favor of their young lady friends.

All the ancient ritual is observed. The stage doorman is suitably feed, corsages of orchids are sent in with the cards of the expectant chivalry, and eventually the sleek imported limousines at the curb glide off into the night toward cold bottles, hot birds and Manhattan's version of romance. Like D'Artagnan, Johnny of the Stage Door rides again.

THE producing firm of Aldrich & deLiagre, current proprietors of the highly esteemed "Pure in Heart" and youthful sponsors of last season's "Three-Cornered Moon," inherits more than anything else the mantle of the Corinthian Winthrop Ames. Stemming from Harvard and Yale, respectively, Richard Aldrich and Alfred deLiagre each rate tip-top listing in the social peerage and have begun their joint careers under the most fortunate of auspices. To achieve two hits with a firm's first two plays isn't frequently done in the vicinage of Times Square. Their first-night audiences are smarter than any in town, except perhaps Sam Harris', and it would be possible, it has been remarked, to separate them into Harvard and Yale cheering sections.

Mr. deLiagre has suggested that crossed oars over the proscenium arch and the winning shell from New London suspended from the balcony might be a good idea in decoration. Mr. Aldrich's family-in-law, a few years ago at the outset of his theater career, clapped him into a bank to achieve respectability. He escaped the cashier's cage, however, and today considers it just a thought ironical that, by comparison to the banking profession at least, the stage is popularly esteemed a very pinnacle of prosperity.

A DETECTIVE, who, while he affects neither monocle nor deerstalker cap, could still give pointers to Philo Vance and the great sleuth of Baker Street, has been in town lately and achieved the admiration of New York's most adroit and hard-boiled police. He is State Detective Lieutenant John Stokes, of Massachusetts, who will be remembered for having solved the Peggy McMath kidnaping of last May and who has recently distinguished himself by the trailing and arrest of the notorious Millen brothers, charged with a whole string of New England murders.

A fellow of nickel-steel temperament who is famous for giving criminals "the works" without the aid of gun or blackjack, we spent Sunday afternoon with him discussing the relative merits of translations of Niccolo Machiavelli's "The Prince," about which he seemed a great deal better informed than any one in the Harvard University department of romance languages. Red-haired, soft-spoken, he has an amazing mannerism of being able to talk informatively and excitingly on any subject without laying himself open to direct quotation. Long experience with reporters, probably. Waiting for the completion of extradition proceedings to take two desperate criminals back to his home state for trial for murder, he was occupied with the Sunday comic sections. "Gee!" he said, naively, "this one sure does give me a thrill every week."

THE trouble with the drinking situation in Manhattan, from the masculine point of view, is that, aside from private clubs, there are too few men's bars. Nine out of ten hotels and restaurants have gone in for cocktail cafes where women are allowed and which are overrun by swarms of guitar players, blues singers, mammy yammers, jazz orchestras, cornet au piston soloists, zither strummers and strolling sackbut practitioners. In some there are even more foolish divertissements in the form of gigolos and hostesses, jugglers and card-trick experts, Chinese game instructors and importunate cigarette girls. All of which are, briefly, stupid nuisances.

The Ritz has a man's bar that is quite satisfactory except for the circumstance that there are only two waiters, and they very reluctant ones, to serve a hundred customers. The Times Square Hotel, of all places, is a good West Side oasis of the masculine order, presided over by Harry McCormick, of the old Artists and Writers newspaper man's bar. But our favorite is the Plaza, where, while women are allowed, the atmosphere discourages them and the sane and orderly absorption of sound beverages is possible. The tables are bare polished oak, the chairs deep and upholstered in dark leather, there is a heavy carpet on the floor and the tables are far enough apart so that you are actually conversing with your own party. There is a chef in immaculate white presiding over a grand free lunch table dominated by hot Virginia ham. The whole place is characterized by an atmosphere which somehow seems to subdue even the brashest and noisiest debutantes, and on cold, snowy nights there is a hot-rum punch, made with Felton's old Medford overproof, that is the world's grandest nightcap.

URBAN INCIDENTALS: Eddie Warburg, son of Felix Warburg, is writing a ballet satirizing the bulldog pipe and turtle-neck sweater era of college football. . . . The Count Perdicaris gives his friends solid gold garter ornaments for their birthdays. . . . Ishbel Ross, the novelist, lives in the old home of Richard Watson Gilder, Corinthian and literary arbiter of another day. . . . There is a row of brass marlin spikes around the edge of the front desk at the Lambs, presumably for troupers to hold on to when they get their bills. . . . The speakeasies now chartered as "clubs" are taking it on the chin these days. . . . The Vanderbilt Hotel makes a specialty of bouillabaise every Friday.

The musician who calls himself Jolly Coburn is the saddest looking man in New York. . . . You can see ten knockouts a night at the Golden Gloves preliminaries, and more at the finals. . . . Delos Chappell, who believes in lots of exercise, sprained his back painfully recently while dialing a telephone. . . . Creighton Webb, an old gentleman about town, knows the history of opera in Manhattan better than any one else alive. . . . Crosby Gaige sends first-nighters tickets to his productions with their names printed on them. Our most recent was elaborately misspelled.

"Gray Hair That's Young Looking!"

It's really true that some gray hair is young looking . . . gray hair that's unstreaked . . . that shows no trace of yellow . . . that's beautifully groomed. Sperber's care insures all this; there's even a special permanent by Sperber's for gray hair.

POWDER CLEANS AND WHITENS TEETH—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice which is ALL POWDER—just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used. Dr. Lyon's cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed and your breath so sweet and pure.

Once you use powder you'll never go back to tooth paste. People by the thousands are changing to powder.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

WINTER EVENTS AT PALM BEACH

By the Associated Press.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 17.

THE green of Old Erin predominated in the decorations of parties given here this week. Hotels and supper clubs have all featured St. Patrick dances.

Palm Beach continues faithful to contract bridge, but there are some men who prefer the old-fashioned game of poker. Wiley Reynolds of Jackson, Mich., entertained his poker club at a luncheon at his villa, La Solano, on the ocean boulevard. Among the guests were: Bernard H. Kroger of Cincinnati; Franklin P. Smith of Lake Forest, Ill.; Ward Ames of Duluth, Minn.; Hugh Dillman of New York, and Frank B. McQuesten of New York.

As the season advances, society turns more and more to dinners and luncheons as a mode of entertaining. Teas, too, are popular when one wishes to entertain a large number. Mrs. Neil McMillan of St. Louis entertained with an elaborate tea Thursday at the Everglades Club. Mrs. Frank O. Butler of Chicago entertained with a luncheon at the Everglades Club on Wednesday.

The annual society baseball game between Philadelphia and New York drew a large throng Wednesday to Poinciana Field. Proceeds of the game went to the Palm Beach police pension fund. Following a practice of many years, Edward T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia financier and octogenarian, tossed the first ball. Both teams were made up of celebrities of the stage and society. The New York team included George Jessel, Gilbert Kahn, son of Otto Kahn, Woolworth Donohue of New York, Frederick Carey, Gene Tunney, John Durant and Brig. Gen. A. C. Critchley. George Vanderbilt, Milton W. Holden of New York, Harpo Marx, the comedian, and Grover Loening of New York were on the Philadelphia team.

Miss Dorothy Fell of New York wore dinner pajamas of the palest blue satin at a supper club recently. The sleeves were long and full, and slit from shoulder to elbow. Miss Eileen Gillespie of New York is partial to pink. At a tea recently she wore a charming frock of dusty pink crepe, with full sleeves shirred at the shoulder and codets set circularly in the skirt. The dropped shoulder line also featured a frock worn by Mrs. William W. Forrester of Chicago. The gown was of black mousseline de soie, embroidered with tiny sprays of white flowers. The skirt flared smartly at the hemline.

St. Louisans in Paris

PARIS, March 6.

THE usual quiet Lenten season in Paris has become quite gay since all social events scheduled for the early part of February were moved to a later date because of the taxicab strike and riots. They are all being crowded into the calendar for March.

Tomorrow night the American colony, led by Ambassador and Mrs. Jesse Isidor Straus, is attending the gala performance at the Lord Byron Theater of the film, "Roman Scandals," starring Eddie Cantor. The proceeds of this benefit are to go to the American Hospital of Paris. This institution has cared for American soldiers, American residents and American travelers for many years. The late Dr. Harvey G. Mudd of St. Louis was a member of the advisory board of directors from America. A group of nurses from the hospital will sell programs, and prizes for the tombola have been donated by the leading Paris houses. Among those who have taken tickets for the show are Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Dean Jay. Other former St. Louisans who will attend are Miss May Birkhead, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Farish, Paul Farish and Miss Alice Mizner.

On board the Majestic, which arrived March 2, were Mr. and Mrs. J. Hamilton Colket, the latter formerly Gladys Kerens of St. Louis. They disembarked in England for a visit before coming to Paris, where they will occupy their apartment at the Hotel Royal Monceau.

Miss Jane Allen Connett and Miss Jessie Connett, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Carroll Connett of Lindell boulevard, are expected in Paris in a few weeks. They have been studying at the University of Edinburgh since October, and are now in Rome for a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Burkham of St. Louis, who were passengers on the Majestic, landed in England. They will join their daughter, Miss Lois Burkham, who has been in Europe several months.

The junior year group of American students in Munich has completed the first semester's work and left Sunday for a fortnight's vacation tour of Italy. The party is conducted by Dr. Waagen of Munich, and will visit Verona, Milan, Florence, Rome and Venice. This year the University of Delaware is sponsoring the group, and Miss Susan Fitzgerald of Boston and Bryn Mawr is councillor for women. Miss Marian R. Ewing, daughter of Nathaniel Ewing of Kingsbury place, St. Louis, is a member of the party, and is taking her junior year's work from Smith College in Munich.

Social Life in the National Capital

WASHINGTON, March 17.

EASTER is only two weeks away, and regardless of the weather, the spring season in Washington begins then.

Since Mrs. Roosevelt has been out of Washington the city has seemed dull, but she is returning from the West Indies in time to be with the President for their twenty-ninth wedding anniversary tomorrow.

There will be no formal celebration of the day this year, as there was last, when the President and Mrs. Roosevelt gathered about them many who had been present at their marriage. But James Roosevelt and his wife are coming from Boston, and the other two sons, Franklin Jr. and John, are spending their spring holidays here.

The annual frolic of the Women's National Press Club will take place Monday night at the Willard. It's to be a dinner, enlivened with feminine variations on the satire in which the Gridiron Club indulges periodically.

Mrs. Roosevelt is to be the guest of honor, and there'll be many distinguished women—Mrs. Garner, Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Rainey, Ambassadors' wives, the lone woman Cabinet officer, the lone woman Senator, the "gentlewomen of the House" and women who have achieved distinction in many lines.

It is unusual for Washington to have a spring debutante as the Capital season for debuts is the late fall and early winter. This year, however, the gayety of the Easter holidays will be augmented by the numerous parties to be given for Miss Mary Dwight, daughter of Mrs. John Dwight and the late Mr. Dwight.

Miss Dwight was to have been presented to society this winter with several of her close friends, but mourning intervened, and, though she took part in many of the debutante activities, she will not be presented until March 31. Mrs. Dwight will give a tea dance for her at the Sulgrave Club, where many smart and interesting parties of the season have been held.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams have sold the house at 2221 S street, which was their home while Mr. Adams was Secretary of the Navy in the Hoover administration.

Mrs. Adams has been in town recently visiting Mr. and Mrs. William R. Castle Jr., but has returned to her home in Boston. She came to break up housekeeping, taking away the family's most prized possessions and, of course, the famous Adams family portraits, which had graced the drawing room here.

The new owners of the Adams house are Mr. and Mrs. F. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart. However they do not expect to move into their new home for several months.

MIDDAY BARGAIN CARFARE IS EXTENDED INDEFINITELY

Heretofore Receiver Kiel Has Had to Get Orders at Brief Intervals.

An order authorizing indefinite retention of the bargain midday fare of the Public Service Co.—two rides for 10 cents between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m.—was entered yesterday by Federal Judge Davis.

Heretofore Receiver Kiel has obtained such authority for a month or two at a time, the last such action running to April 2. Kiel has regarded the bargain or shopper's fare as successful in attracting more passengers.

The Court sets no limit on the time for this rate, except that it shall remain effective "until such time as it may, in the light of subsequent developments, become advisable or necessary to modify or abrogate it." This fare has been in force since last July 10.

Judge Davis also directed the receiver to file a report of claims and demands against the company which have been settled or compromised since he took office April 15, 1933. This will give opportunity for objectors to file exceptions.

EXPANSION URGED FOR BOARD OF CHILDREN'S GUARDIANS

Community Council Issues Statement in Support of Pending Bill.

Reorganization of the Board of Children's Guardians along the lines which would be made possible by passage of a pending bill to appropriate $472,542 to the organization for next year, is desirable to enable the board to serve properly about 2200 children under its care, the Community Council holds in a statement issued yesterday.

The salary of the Board's agent now, $180 a month, is considerably less than that paid its agent in 1914 when there were only 50 children to be provided for, and salaries of other members of the staff, between $75 and $100 a month, are an increase of only $12.50 a month over the 1914 average, the statement says.

The proposed ordinance, recommended by the Welfare Plan Committee, would increase the personnel of the staff from 13 to 51, and would provide for increases in compensation to secure more competent workers. The Board hopes to employ an agent for $350 a month, a sum which the Council describes as reasonable for the administrative head of one of the largest child care organizations in the country.

Naturalist to Lecture.

"Romance in the Commonplace" will be the subject of an illustrated lecture by Norman McClintock, naturalist, before the Washington University Association at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday at Soldan High School. McClintock has made studies of insect and plant life.

TRAINING COURSES FOR SCOUT LEADERS

First of 1934 Spring Classes Will Be Opened March 26.

The 1934 spring program of training courses for Boy Scout leaders will get under way next week, according to an announcement by Roy Wenzlick, chairman of the Educational Committee of the St. Louis Council.

The courses are designed both for men now in scout work and for those who have never been engaged in it. The only requirement for the "Elements of Scoutmastership" course, which opens Monday, March 26, at 7:30 p. m. at the Stix School, 226 South Euclid avenue, is that those enrolled must be at least 18 years old. The course will last 12 weeks.

A first aid course, given in cooperation with the American Red Cross by H. Max Nusser, field executive of the North District, will open at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, March 27, at Washington University Medical School, Scott and Euclid avenues.

Specialization courses include a "Swimming and Water Safety" course at Irondale Reservation, May 19 and 20; "Nature," by William J. Puffer, director of the education department, at Soldan High School Thursday nights at 7:30 o'clock from April 19 to May 26; "Troop Camping," by Merle D. Shippey, camping director, and Prof. Eugene Stephens of Washington University, at Stix School Tuesday nights at 7:30 o'clock from April 17 to May 6; and "Astronomy," by C. H. Laemmli, field executive of the South District, at Stix School Monday nights at 7:30 o'clock from April 2 to May 7.

Courses for troop committeemen, field commissioners, and Cub leaders will be offered also.

There are now 77 former scouts enrolled as scoutmasters, 156 as assistant scoutmasters, and 378 are participating in the movement as troop committeemen and commissioners.

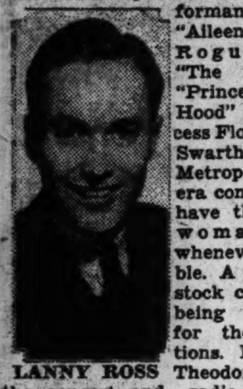
Here and There on the Air

By J. L. S.

Changes in KSD Program Schedule.

LANNY ROSS has returned to New York from Hollywood, and is really with the Capt. Henry's Show Boat cast when this program goes on the air from Radio City overKSD. Ross has been chosen as a Wampus movie star.

KSD will carry the elaborate hour-long operetta broadcasts scheduled at 9 o'clock Tuesday nights, beginning April 3. "The Vagabond King" has been definitely chosen as the bill for the opening broadcast. Other operettas listed for performance are "Aileen," "The Rogue Song," "The Student "Prince," "Robin Hood" and "Princess Floria. Gladys Swarthout, the Metropolitan Opera contralto, will have the leading woman's role whenever possible. A permanent stock company is being rehearsed for the productions. It includes Theodore Webb, the concert and radio baritone; Frank McIntyre of the old vaudeville team of McIntyre and Heath; John Barclay, baritone and Broadway actor; Peggy Allenby, Leona Hogarth of the Theater Guild, Georgia Backus and Minervia Pious. William A. Bacher, a widely known radio director, will have charge of the broadcasts. Artists of note will be used from time to time in important roles.



LANNY ROSS

George Erdmann's quartet is playing over KSD at 4:30 Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, 5 o'clock Thursdays and Saturdays, and 9 o'clock Sunday nights. Erdmann is the pianist of the quartet; Francis Jones, violin; Arthur Otto, guitar, and Richard McFarlane, saxophone and clarinet.

Fred Allen's Revue and the Troubadours program, which occupy the hour between 7:30 and 8:30 on the WEAF chain Wednes-ETAOIN7890$.. day nights, are to be merged into one radio show, starting next Wednesday. It is probable that KSD will carry the whole show, which will be called "The Hour of Smiles."

FRED ALLEN

Allen will be master of ceremonies and will be featured in the comedy interludes with Portland Hoffa, Jack Smart and others. Lennie Hayton's orchestra will carry the musical burden. Theodore Webb, the baritone, will be the new "Troubadour." A glee club of 12 voices, a chorus of eight voices and a male quartet also will be used.

B. A. Rolfe's orchestra is supposed to sign off KSD's Saturday night hour-long show on March 24. He is reported to have insisted that his orchestra be given more time during the 60-minute broadcasts. Two half-hour shows probably will be substituted.

Miss Ponselle will be the soloist at 8 o'clock Monday nights; Martini at the same time Wednesday nights and Miss Stueckgold on Saturday nights. They will sing familiar songs as well as the better known operatic arias. They will be assisted by an orchestra and a chorus of 16 voices directed by Andre Kostelanetz. Of the 40 pieces in the orchestra, 23 will be stringed instruments. Kostelanetz has prepared special arrangements of danceable melodies to be played in smooth, rhythmic style. The programs will come from the CBS chain's Radio Playhouse in New York, which has been equipped for unusual fidelity of reproduction.

WLW to Use 500,000 Watts in Daytime Tests.

THE Federal Radio Commission has authorized WLW, Cincinnati, to use the full 500,000 watts power of its new transmitter in daytime tests on its 700 kilocycle channel. At the conclusion of these tests, application will be made for permission to use full power on WLW's regular day and night schedule. The 500,000-watt transmitter, by far the most powerful actually in operation in the world, has been tested for many weeks between midnight and 5 a. m. on an experimental license. It is capable of a 2,000,000-watt peak of modulation with virtually no distortion and a tonal range from 30 to 10,000 cycles.

Reports of Chain to Link Big Stations.

WLW, Cincinnati; WGN, Chicago, and WOR, Newark, N. J., the most important of the independent stations in this country, have combined to broadcast a program by Will Osborne's orchestra. It is reported that they are likely to become the nucleus of a network of considerable proportions. WLW and WOR some time ago worked together in broadcasting some programs. WGN for a while was the outlet for the CBS chain in Chicago. WLW carries many of the more important sponsored programs on both the WEAF and WJZ networks.

SURVEY OF MISSOURI'S HISTORIC BUILDINGS

What Has Been Done by HABS—Several in St. Louis Included.

Eight buildings in St. Louis, three in Kansas City and two in Independence, Mo., have been measured and recorded in the HABS—Historic American Buildings Survey.

Wilbur T. Trueblood, St. Louis architect, the HABS director for Missouri, is considering the inclusion of other structures elsewhere in the State.

A page of photographs of the eight St. Louis buildings is published in today's Rotogravure Section.

The structures here which have been surveyed are:

Old Courthouse, Broadway and Market street. Built in 1839, with an addition in 1862. Besides its close connection with local history this place, now used for art display and Justice of the Peace offices, is known as the scene of slave sales and the original setting of the Dred Scott case.

Old Cathedral.

Old Cathedral, 213 Walnut street, officially known as the Church of St. Louis of France, former seat of the Catholic diocese. Built in 1834, notable for its Doric columns, its richly simple design and decoration and as an example of the Greek revival in architecture.

Childhood home of Eugene Field, the children's poet, 634 South Broadway. Called his birthplace on a bronze plaque on the wall although the best available data now shows this was not the case. Built before 1850, probably about 1843. A movement is under way to preserve this place.

Grant-Dent House, southwest corner of Fourth and Cerre streets, where U. S. Grant and Julia Dent were married. Built in 1845.

Oldest Building in City.

Old Rock House, southwest corner of Wharf and Chestnut street, under the shadow of the elevated railway tracks. Built in 1810. Marked by the Historic Sites Committee of the Young Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce as follows: "This building, the oldest in St. Louis, has stood for over a century and has served as a City Hall, later as the schoolhouse of Jean Baptiste Trudeau, the first schoolmaster, then as a fur storehouse of Manuel Lisa, partner of Laclede; later as a slave billet, then a tavern frequented by Mark Twain and Eugene Field; later as a jail and then as a restaurant." Now used as a restaurant.

St. Mary of Victory Catholic Church, 748 South Third street. Built in 1843.

Country house of Henry Shaw, founder of Shaw's Garden and Tower Grove Park. It stands in the garden and is used now for a museum and garden offices. Built in 1849, with a tower typical of the period.

Home of Capt. Chalmers D. Blossom, steamboat operator and insurance man, 829 North Union boulevard. Built in 1824; another tower type. Now used by a nursery school.

Other Surveys Under Way.

Other structures thus far included in the survey are: Original log courthouse at Independence, built in 1827; Gentry house at Independence; a Presbyterian church, Kansas City, built in 1857, the second church there and the oldest one standing; Harris house, Kansas City, built in 1845 and used as a Civil War barracks by Union soldiers; Wornall house, Kansas City, built in 1855 and used as a military hospital after the Battle of Westport. Measurement of the first Missouri capitol, at St. Charles, is under way.

Among buildings Director Trueblood would like to include in the survey are: One or two old homes in St. Charles; Mark Twain home at Hannibal; residence of the Spanish commandant, built in 1785; Balduc house, erected the same year; home of Alexander McNair, last territorial and first State Governor of Missouri; Rozier house, and St. Joseph's Convent, all at Ste. Genevieve; Arrow Rock Tavern; courthouse at New London; the church and other buildings at Westphalia; homes at Lexington, Glasgow and Boonville; one or two old log houses; old water mills; covered bridges, and possibly other objects. A start may be made soon at Ste. Genevieve.

Records to Be Preserved.

The measurement and recording is done with great fidelity to detail. The plans of each structure that have been prepared would enable a future builder to reproduce it. The architects of the HABS have gone so far as to use flexible lead strips to get the exact outlines of mouldings. The records will be deposited in the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, together with photographs. The HABS is intended to cover the period prior to 1860 throughout the country.

Trueblood will list and index notable structures which he may be unable to record in detail. He has recommended that some means be found to continue the undertaking after the CWA expires May 1. He was to have had 32 CWA assistants, but got 20 and the number since has been reduced to eight. However, 13 of the previously unemployed architects agreed to share the pay of eight and drew lots to determine their progressive retirement from the list.

Pabst-ett is a scientific cheese food as easily digested as milk, with the tang and flavor of cheese, the smoothness and spreadability of butter—all in one. It is so digestible any member of your family can eat all he wants, at any time. It is an ideal food for children. Contains Vitamin A in abundance (same vitamin found in cod liver oil, cream, butter, spinach). Also contains valuable milk sugars, milk minerals (such as calcium), and milk proteins of whole milk. It is called "the all purpose food"—because of its convenience. Spreads like butter—yet slices when chilled. Melts quickly and easily, doesn't get stringy. Ideal for cooking.

It comes in three varieties, all in the familiar, round packages: Standard, Pimento, Swiss.

Read rules carefully. Send in your entry and box top (or facsimile) to Pabst-ett, P. O. Box 3, Madison Square Station, New York City, New York. Send it in right away. Send in as many entries as you wish. The more you send, the better your chances.

Details in every package of Pabst-ett.

If not obtainable at your dealers, facsimile of box top will be accepted. Send in as many answers as you wish. Box top or facsimile must be enclosed with each answer.

2. Write in your own words, your answer to the question: "Why do you like Pabst-ett?" We want to know your own personal experience with Pabst-ett, your own reasons for liking it.

3. Send answers to Pabst-ett, P. O. Box 3, Madison Square Station, New York City. Be sure name and address are clearly written.

"HE WAS VERY THIN—HAD NO APPETITE . . ."

says DR. SAMUEL DE LANGE,
Physician-in-Chief of the Boerhaeve Clinic, Amsterdam

HERE IS A CASE right from the records of a great physician . . . a case that might throw new light on yours!

"J. K. was suffering from chronic constipation," the eminent Dr. de Lange reports.

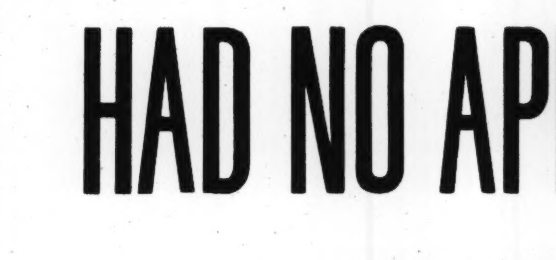
"The X-ray revealed delayed evacuation . . . stagnation of food in the intestines. Constipation had made a wreck of this patient.

"I told him he must eat yeast three times each day. Soon his condition was a thing of the past. In a month's time there was an extraordinary change.

"My experience is that yeast has a marked cleansing and tonic effect on the system."

"TO OVERCOME CONSTIPATION AND THE ILLS THAT ATTEND IT—INDIGESTION, HEADACHES AND SKIN ERUPTIONS—I ADVISE YEAST."

Internal specialist and expert on nervous diseases, Dr. de Lange is author of four important medical works.



"J. K. HAD SPENT A FORTUNE in treatments—had suffered from constipation for years. The man looked miserable. Was very thin, had no appetite. I told him to eat yeast three times a day," reports Dr. de Lange . . .

"A VAST IMPROVEMENT"

"AFTER HE HAD EATEN YEAST as I advised, he gained normally in weight, his appetite was excellent, he felt vigorous, and really looked fine. He continues with his yeast program, and has normal evacuations daily."

YEAST WORKS TWO WAYS IN YOUR BODY. It strengthens the muscles which move food through your stomach and intestines, and stimulates the secretions. Poisons are not allowed to loiter and be absorbed by your blood. Hence it relieves skin troubles, headaches, run-down condition in a natural way. Fleischmann's Yeast also gives you the healthful benefits of Vitamins B, D and G.

PERHAPS you are like the patient the eminent Dr. de Lange describes . . . tired, "washed-out" looking, constipated. Perhaps you've tried all kinds of remedies.

Well, he found relief in yeast. We think you can, also. Think carefully about what Dr. de Lange says:

"The beneficial action of yeast on the whole system is soon evident. Headaches and indigestion usually disappear. Bodily energy and mental initiative are amazingly restored."

Unlike habit-forming cathartics, Fleischmann's Yeast acts naturally on your bowels. It is not a drug, remember, but an amazing food.

Start feeling better! Eat three cakes a day! Go to the nearest grocer, restaurant or soda fountain right away for your first supply! (Directions on label.)

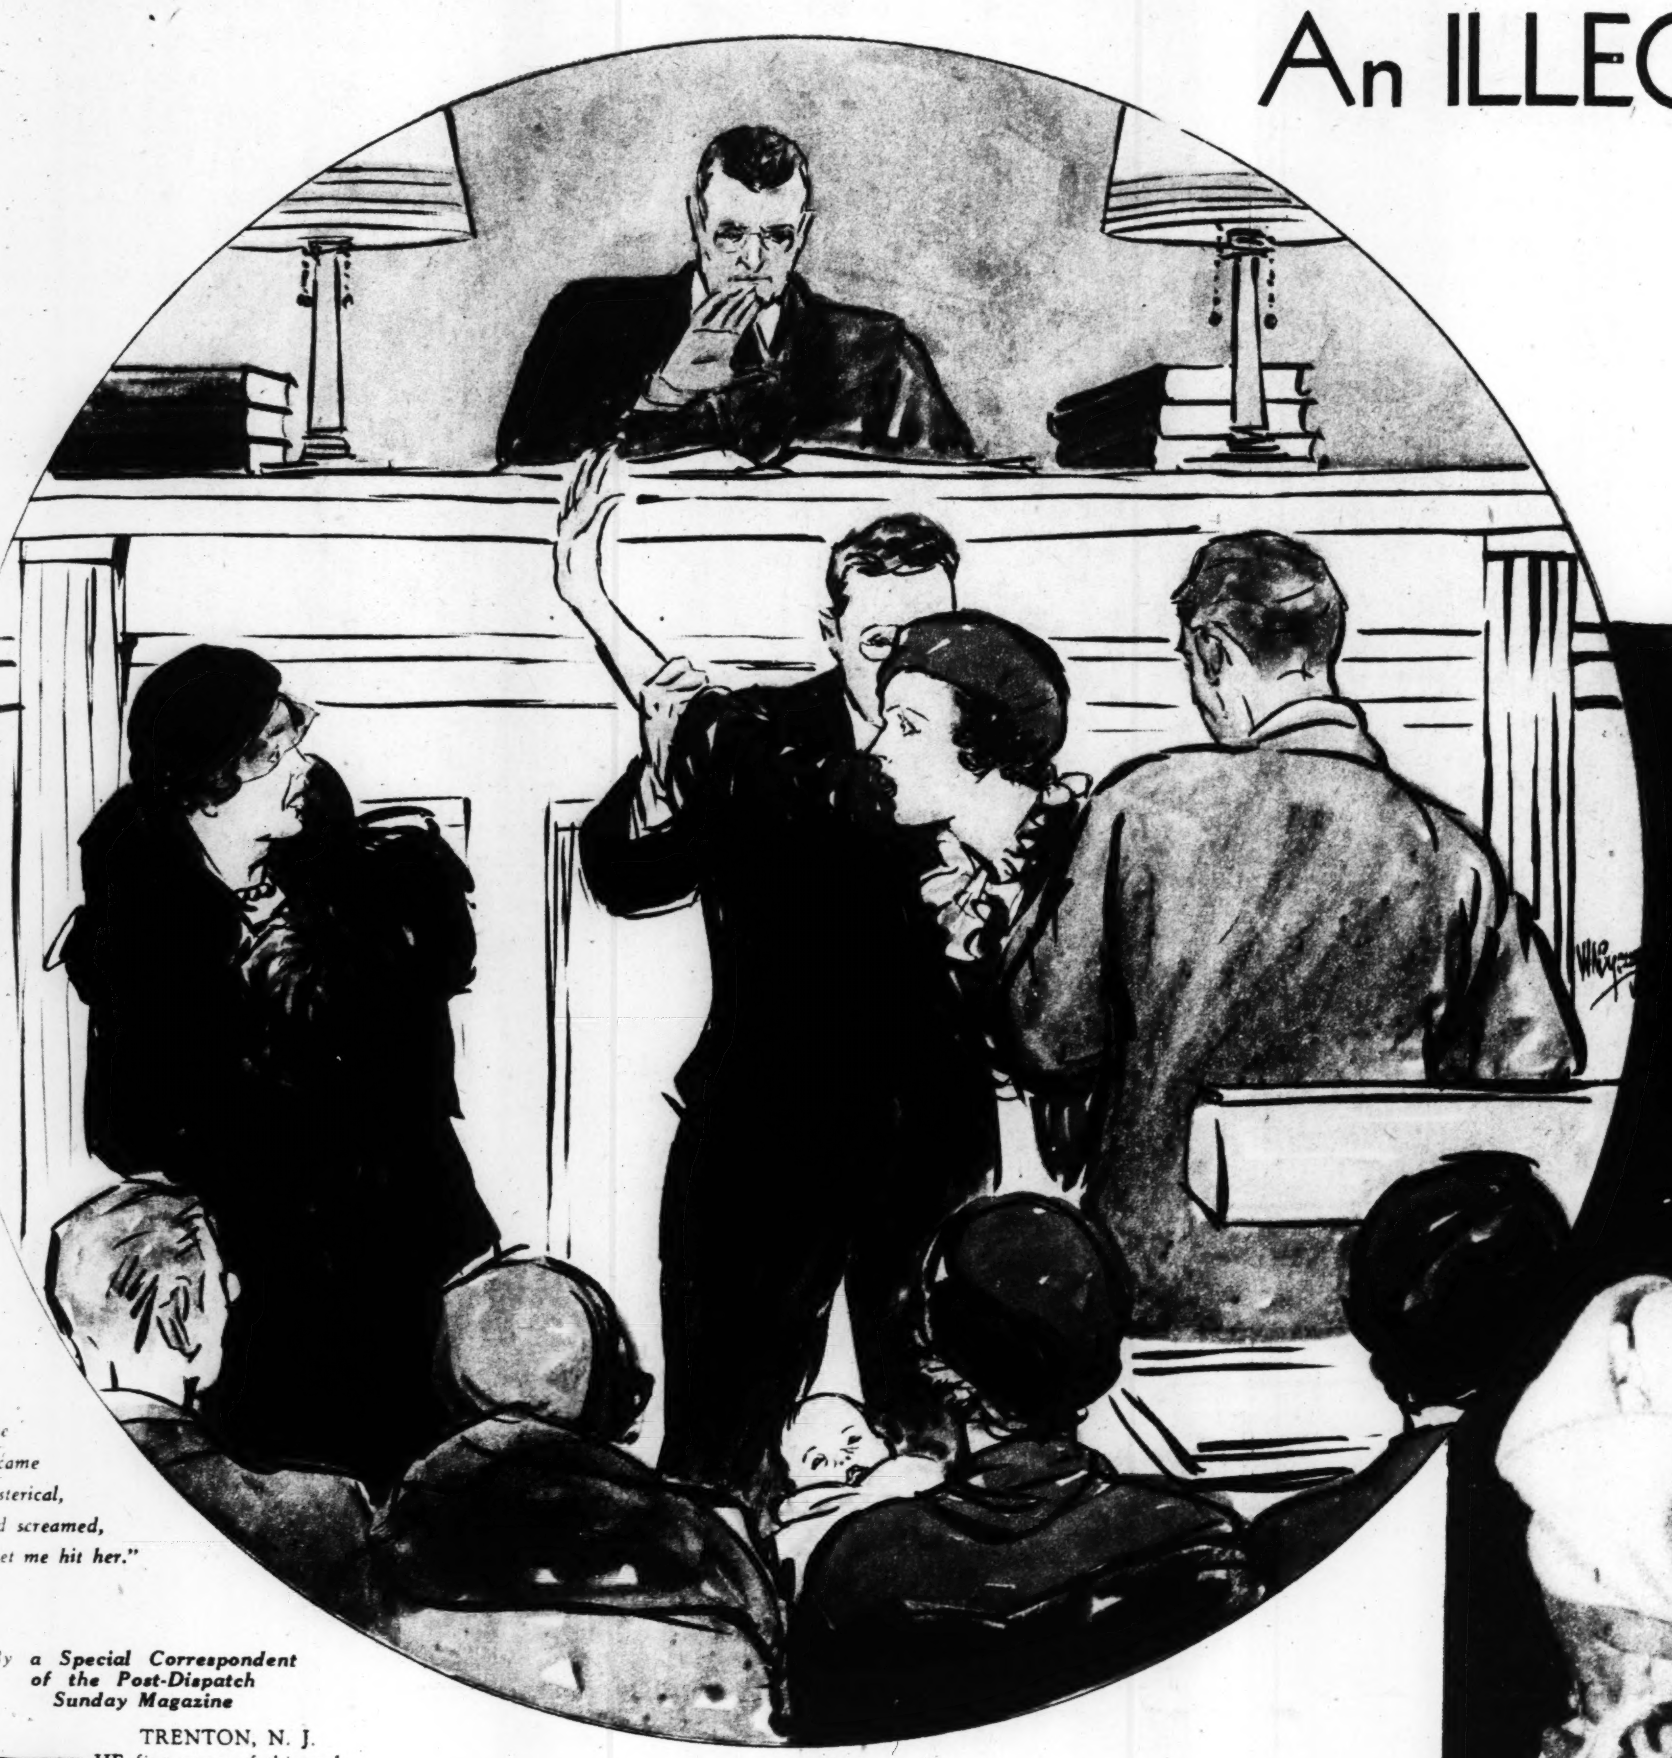
An ILLEGAL MARRIAGE but with a LEGAL CHILD



She became hysterical, and screamed, "Let me hit her."

The Paradoxical Situation in Which Blanche Carson Found Herself as a Result of a School Romance and How It Brought About a Change in the Laws of New Jersey.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

TRENTON, N. J.

THE first scene of this real-life drama is set in a crowded courtroom in Camden, New Jersey.

The chief dramatis personae are two mothers, one more than twice as old as the other, both fighting, in accordance with their own deep-felt emotions, for what they believe to be the protection of their sons.

The climax arrives when the presiding Advisory Master in Chancery of the Camden County Courts decides in favor of the older mother and her high school boy and against the girl-mother and her five-weeks-old baby.

The galleries are crowded with eager, interested spectators who cheer loud and long when a measure, proposed by Mrs. Isabella C. Reinert, a mother herself and the first woman Assembly member from South Jersey, is added to the laws of the State, making it impossible for an annulment of marriage to be granted on the grounds of under age when a child is born either before or after marriage or is likely to be born, unless the court is of the opinion that such action would not be detrimental to the best interests of the child.

Though the new bill is not retroactive and does not therefore alter the status of the distracted, 20-year-old Blanche Virginia Carson, who was Mrs. William Arthur Faragher until that day in November when her marriage was annulled, she can feel, nevertheless, that the wide sympathy which her tragic plight incurred will prevent other girls from suffering in a similar manner. And she does know that her infant son is a legitimate child in the eyes of the law, entitled to bear his father's name.

The wedding which brought Blanche Carson little joy and much sorrow grew out of a girl and boy romance which flowered at Woodbury, New Jersey, High School. There Blanche, a pretty, blue-eyed, dark-haired senior, met young and handsome "Bill" Faragher, who was just completing his first year.

That was in 1931. The two of them had many interests in common. Blanche was the star hockey player of her school and an extremely popular girl. "Bill," tall, blond, curly-haired, showed promise of becoming the star tackle on the high school football team. Blanche and "Bill" made a good-looking pair, but their classmates thought it was just another case of puppy love.

In June of 1931 Blanche was graduated from high school. Since her mother had died ten years before, she assumed the job of keeping house and acting the part of "little mother" to her father and her two younger brothers, Donald and Gordon Carson, who both attended Woodbury High.

Blanche and "Bill" lived near each other in Woodbury and they kept up their close friendship even after she finished school. Finally, in February of 1933, they eloped to Elkton and there Blanche Carson became Mrs. William A. Faragher. Back in Woodbury, Blanche returned to her father's home and "Bill" returned to high school, the football team and the home of his parents. He came to see Blanche regularly until April, but after that, for some reason that she could not understand, he put an end to his visits.

On October 6, 1933, Blanche gave birth to a child, whom she named Donald Gordon Faragher. Even after the advent of the baby, according to her statement, her husband made no effort to see her; he did not call her at the hospital; he made no inquiries about his baby son.

THE next thing Blanche knew was that she was confronted with her husband in court. With him were his mother and father. With her was her child, just five weeks old. Humiliated, enraged and startled, she heard her young husband tell the judge that he had been under age when he had married her, that he had done so without the consent of his parents, that he could not get along with her and that he wanted the marital bonds annulled. Blanche firmly answered that she did not want an annulment; that she wanted to remain married; that she needed her husband as the father of their infant.

On the witness stand, Blanche Virginia Carson Faragher stated that "Bill" Faragher had met and wooed her while they were both attending high school. She admitted that she had been intimate with him before they eloped because he had pleaded with her so consistently and had promised faithfully to marry her. She declared that he had told the marriage license clerk in Elkton that he was 19 and that she had believed him because she had seen no reason for doubting the truth of his statement. She herself was 19 at that time.

While Blanche was being questioned, she held her wailing infant, wrapped in blankets, on her lap. Her husband stood, made no effort to see his baby.

Mrs. Warren Faragher, with her son, William Arthur Faragher.

When the lawyers had finished cross-examining her, Blanche made an appeal to Advisory Master William B. Knight, and asked him not to grant the annulment, if only out of pity for the child, who would otherwise grow up without a father. Shaken with sobs, the girl-mother left the stand.

"Bill" then joined his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Faragher. When he came to the stand, wearing a black sweater, with a large school letter "W" upon it, he looked like anything but the father of an infant. He told the court that he could not get along with his wife, and that he had not lived with her since the night of their elopement.

Mrs. Faragher, "Bill's" mother, showed the court her son's birth certificate which proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that "Bill" had been born in April, 1915, and that at the time of his elopement he had been under age, not yet 18.

Advisory Master Knight declared that he had no alternative but to grant the annulment, since under the laws of New Jersey all marriages in which one or both of the parties are below 18 and are entered into without the consent of the parents are invalid. When Blanche heard the verdict, she fainted. When she regained consciousness, she began crying bitterly and then started to make a dash for Mrs. Warren Faragher, yelling: "You—you call yourself a woman! You'll get yours some day if there is a God!" She became hysterical and screamed: "Let me smack her! Let me hit her!" and had to be taken out of the courtroom by her friends.

Warren Faragher, a chemist by profession, expressed his sympathy for his ex-daughter-in-law by promising to pay $6 a week for the support of the infant; he also said that since she had been hasty in getting married she would have to bear the responsibility for her actions.

The decision of William B. Knight caused an unusual public discussion. Legal authorities declared that since both Blanche, who had had intimate relations with "Bill" before her marriage, and "Bill," who had lied about his age to the Elkton clerk, had entered court with what is legally known as "unclean hands," the only person to be considered was the only party with "clean hands," the baby. They advised that a divorce would be far better than an annulment since it would prevent any stigma from falling upon the innocent infant. Other lawyers suggested that the decision was a paradoxical one, since it declared non-existent a marriage from which a legitimate baby, entitled under the laws of New Jersey to bear its father's name, had been born.

Many private persons became interested in the crusade for Blanche. The Reverend Harold Paul Sloan, pastor of the Haddonfield Methodist Episcopal Church, told his Bible class that laws which permitted a man to take a wife and then cast her aside were sinful.

HE went on to deplore the alleged activities of "Bill's" mother in turning her young son against his bride and the mother of his child. Donald Carson, Blanche's brother, took up the cudgels for his sister by having a fight with his ex-brother-in-law after football practice. The score was a broken thumb for "Bill" and some scratches and cuts for Donald. The alumni of the Woodbury High School were opposed to allowing "Bill" to keep his place as star tackle on the team, but in view of the fact that he is due to be graduated this coming June, they dropped the matter.

Blanche herself, when she regained some of her composure, was willing to talk. She said: "I am through forever with heroes of the gridiron. They may sound brave and courageous but they are really the worst kind of cowards, tied to their mother's apron strings.

"Look at my plight. Imagine—I married the star tackle and what happened? Think of the brave way in which he treated

AMES, Iowa.

A PSYCHOLOGIST has looked into the difficult and complicated process of driving a motor car and from out of his laboratory there have just come some quite startling conclusions. Dr. Alvhh R. Lauer, associate professor of experimental psychology here at Iowa State College, has not confined himself to the laboratory. He has gone, literally, into the highways and byways of America in an effort to find out why the annual toll of motor fatalities should mount each year to an ever more appalling figure—an estimated 33,000 in 1933—exceeding the death total from what were once regarded as the most deadly diseases.

At least seven per cent of the persons driving cars today are unfit, for one reason or another, to drive a car in traffic. And what is more, many of these drivers do not realize that they possess a serious handicap which makes them a hazard on the highway. This class constitutes the gravest danger of all, for if a driver knows that he has a handicap he will try as hard as possible to compensate for it, says the psychologist.

What Dr. Lauer has done is to work out a series of tests that for the first time go behind the superficialities of the ordinary driving tests to discover all sorts of "blind spots" and physical and mental quirks—defects that are a serious menace to all who drive. Already Dr. Lauer and his assistants have tested, with the aid of funds from the National Research Council in Washington and from other sources, 3000 drivers with results that confirm the validity of these new tests. In fact, Dr. Lauer says that an employer may learn more about the degree of a driver's skill in a half-hour test than through the driver's record over four years' time. And he may learn it without the cost of a serious accident.

For example, the tests were given to the expert test drivers employed by one of the large Detroit motor corporations. In each instance the men who received low ratings were those who had had accident records. Some of them had not had as many accidents as the results of the test indicated they might have had, but that could be put down to good luck, in Dr. Lauer's opinion.

"It's a problem which we simply have to face," he says. "A locomotive engineer must have several years of training and experience before he is allowed to drive a locomotive. And that runs on fixed steel wheels. Yet anyone, regardless of training, experience or physical condition, may drive a car."

The vision of the ordinary driver may be even exceptionally acute. He may be able to read all the little letters on the chart at the doctor's office. But nevertheless he may have serious sight defects.

The field of his vision, for example, may be so narrow that it is as though he were driving with blinders on, or in a tunnel, with little or no ability to see to right and left at the same time that he looks ahead, as the person with a normal field of vision can do. He fails to see the car which is passing around him, he doesn't see the machine which approaches the intersection at a high rate of speed, he misses most of the road signs.

A PERSON with normal sight has a total field of vision of from 185 to 195 degrees. Dr. Lauer has found that a field of less than 140 degrees is dangerous. He measures the field by placing a large cardboard protractor in a horizontal position in front of the driver's eyes with the center of the flat edge at the bridge of the nose. While the driver's gaze is focussed straight ahead, the psychologist moves a pencil along the curved edge of the protractor from front to back until it passes out of the driver's sight. He does this on both sides and points of disappearance give the measurement of the field.

Even more striking are the tests of vision that disclose the fact that certain persons—who have never been aware that anything was wrong with their eyesight—cannot see depth or distance. This deficiency is responsible for many types of accidents. For example, in passing a line of cars on the highway or in a crowded street, the driver without depth perception is very liable to a crash. Dr. Lauer uses an old-fashioned stereoscope to test depth perception and he advises drivers who lack this faculty to be extremely cautious about passing cars.

Strabismus is another defect that the Lauer test reveals—the inability to focus, or approximately focus, both eyes on the same object, that is extreme "ocular dominance," so that one is left-eyed or right-eyed to a pronounced degree. This produces strain, and often headache in the driver and sometimes explains why people go to sleep at the wheel.

Then there are the various forms of phoria in which the eyes tend to turn out or in or up. The extreme case is the person who is cross-eyed. But the individual need not be cross-eyed to suffer from double vision so that he might very well see four headlights where there were only two.

With a glareometer Dr. Lauer tests the individual's resistance to glare. He has found that many persons have little resistance, which may explain the fact that so large a number of accidents are attributed to "blinded by the sun" or "blinded by bright headlights."

For color blindness Dr. Lauer uses the Ishihara test which consists of a series of circular areas made up of a patchwork of different colored dots so arranged that one numeral in colors is visible to the normal eye while a different one is apparent to the person suffering from color blindness, the most frequent form of which is red-green blindness. This test is not entirely satisfactory and Dr. Lauer is now working out another one. Ten per cent of male drivers and one per cent of female drivers are color-blind, Dr. Lauer has found.

Of course, in addition to these special eye tests there is the standard test for acuity of vision. Dr. Lauer has discovered that some drivers have as low as 15 to 20 per cent of normal vision. Others have the most extraordinary defects and yet are driving every day.

One of the most complicated of the testing devices is that which measures a driver's nervous stability. A small electric current is passed through the driver's body and connected with a galvanometer. A horn is blown suddenly behind him. If he starts nervously his body resistance to the current is lowered and this is registered, in varying degrees, on the galvanometer.

In addition to these laboratory tests, and several others which have not been described, Dr. Lauer puts the driver over a test course which in five-minutes' driving time subjects him to virtually all of the situations which he must face in actual driving. In the seat with the driver being tested, is one of Dr. Lauer's assistants who keeps score. This maze through which he must drive, shown on this page, is complete with stop lights, filling stations and difficult parking spaces. The markers and other equipment to outline the maze may be loaded onto the special truck that Dr. Lauer and his staff take from place to place, and they have made these tests in various parts of the Middle-West.

An open area of 200 by 500 feet is required for the driving maze. When this is not available, as in congested city areas, Dr. Lauer employs another and highly ingenious driving test that is in many ways more difficult than this full-size maze.

The driver who is being tested sits at the wheel of a dummy car, with regulation steering wheel, horn, pedals, gear-shifting lever, and accelerator. Through the windshield and over the dummy hood he sees instead of a roadway a miniature stage about four feet wide and three feet deep. Across the front of the stage several inches from the floor is an iron bar and to this bar is fixed a ten-cent toy automobile.

The floor of the stage is an endless leather belt, operated by an electric motor, on which is painted a country road with trees, houses, filling stations, barns, fences, turnings, intersections and railroad crossings.

The driver who is being tested turns the dummy steering wheel and the toy auto swerves to right or left on the shifting road. He must during the test keep it directly over on the right side of the road as the road moves under. But also he must obey the instructions contained on placards that appear at the back of the stage. "Slow down and sound horn at 6." "Observe railroad at 4." Further, the driver must observe the signals given in a stop-and-go sign at top of the stage.

Dr. Lauer concedes that this is more difficult than actual driving.

Men do about 50 per cent better than women in these tests. But Dr. Lauer gallantly provides an alibi for the ladies. Customarily, he explains, they do not begin to drive as early as men, nor do they have, ordinarily, as free access to a car as do men. What is more, a great many of the men examined have been commercial drivers.

"One thing cannot be emphasized strongly enough," says Dr. Lauer. "In our researches the driving performance of intoxicated persons has been studied. When a man gets about so much alcohol, his driving efficiency drops to near zero. In one test where the number of errors registered is used as a measure of driving it was found that the average of all drivers was around five or six errors. Extreme cases of 14 or 15 errors were made by amateur or non-drivers when sober.

"THE errors for a driver when intoxicated increased to 20. His other scores changed accordingly. One urgent need in the way of emergency legislation at the present time is a law making driving when intoxicated punishable by a penitentiary sentence of not less than 20 years. In case of accident when driving while intoxicated this should be increased to 30 to 40 years. By using new techniques of blood analysis the presence or absence of alcohol in the blood can be determined to a fine degree of accuracy.

"A first class highway patrol would carry equipment for taking blood samples of drivers to prove or disprove the presence of alcohol and the amount which the driver had imbibed. Every thinking person should get up and fight for safety on this ground alone. Enough poor drivers are at large on the roads without having their efficiency decreased by drugs."

An accident Dr. Lauer defines as any collision which necessitates first aid for the drivers or any passenger or which necessitates repairs to either of the cars. His statistics show that a person who drives consistently from day to day will have approximately one accident every 4.6 years. Further, he holds that from the psychological point of view there are very few accidents in which both drivers must not share the blame. Legally one driver may be exonerated but from the stricter point of view of the psychologist every driver should drive in such a way as to be able to avoid an accident that might be caused by the carelessness of another driver.

Many curious and seemingly paradoxical facts about driving have come out of Dr. Lauer's laboratory. Persons with the fastest reaction time—that is those who react most quickly to stimulus—are not as good drivers as persons with slower reaction time. Neither are persons of superior intelligence as capable at the wheel of a car as

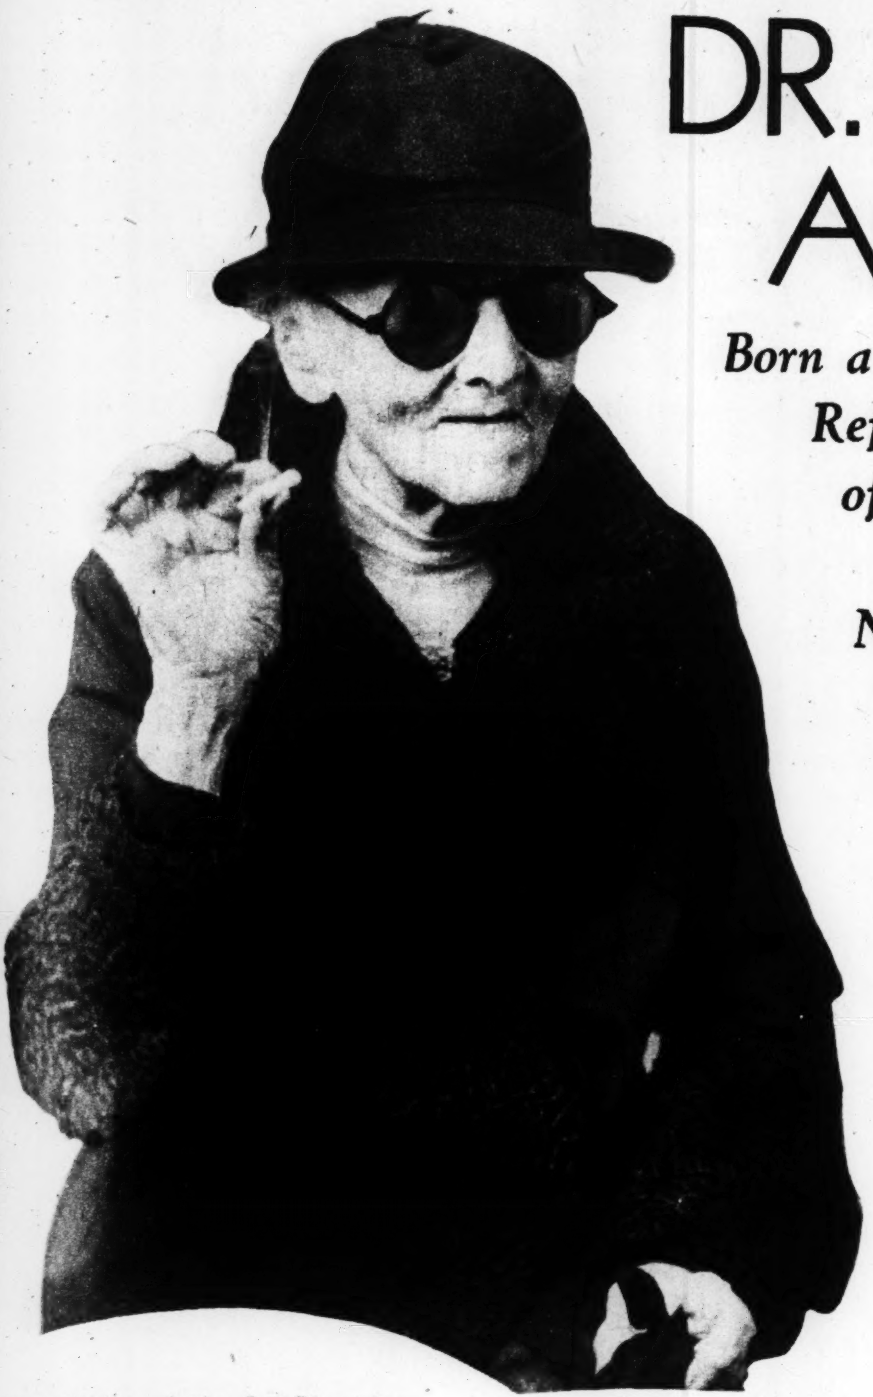
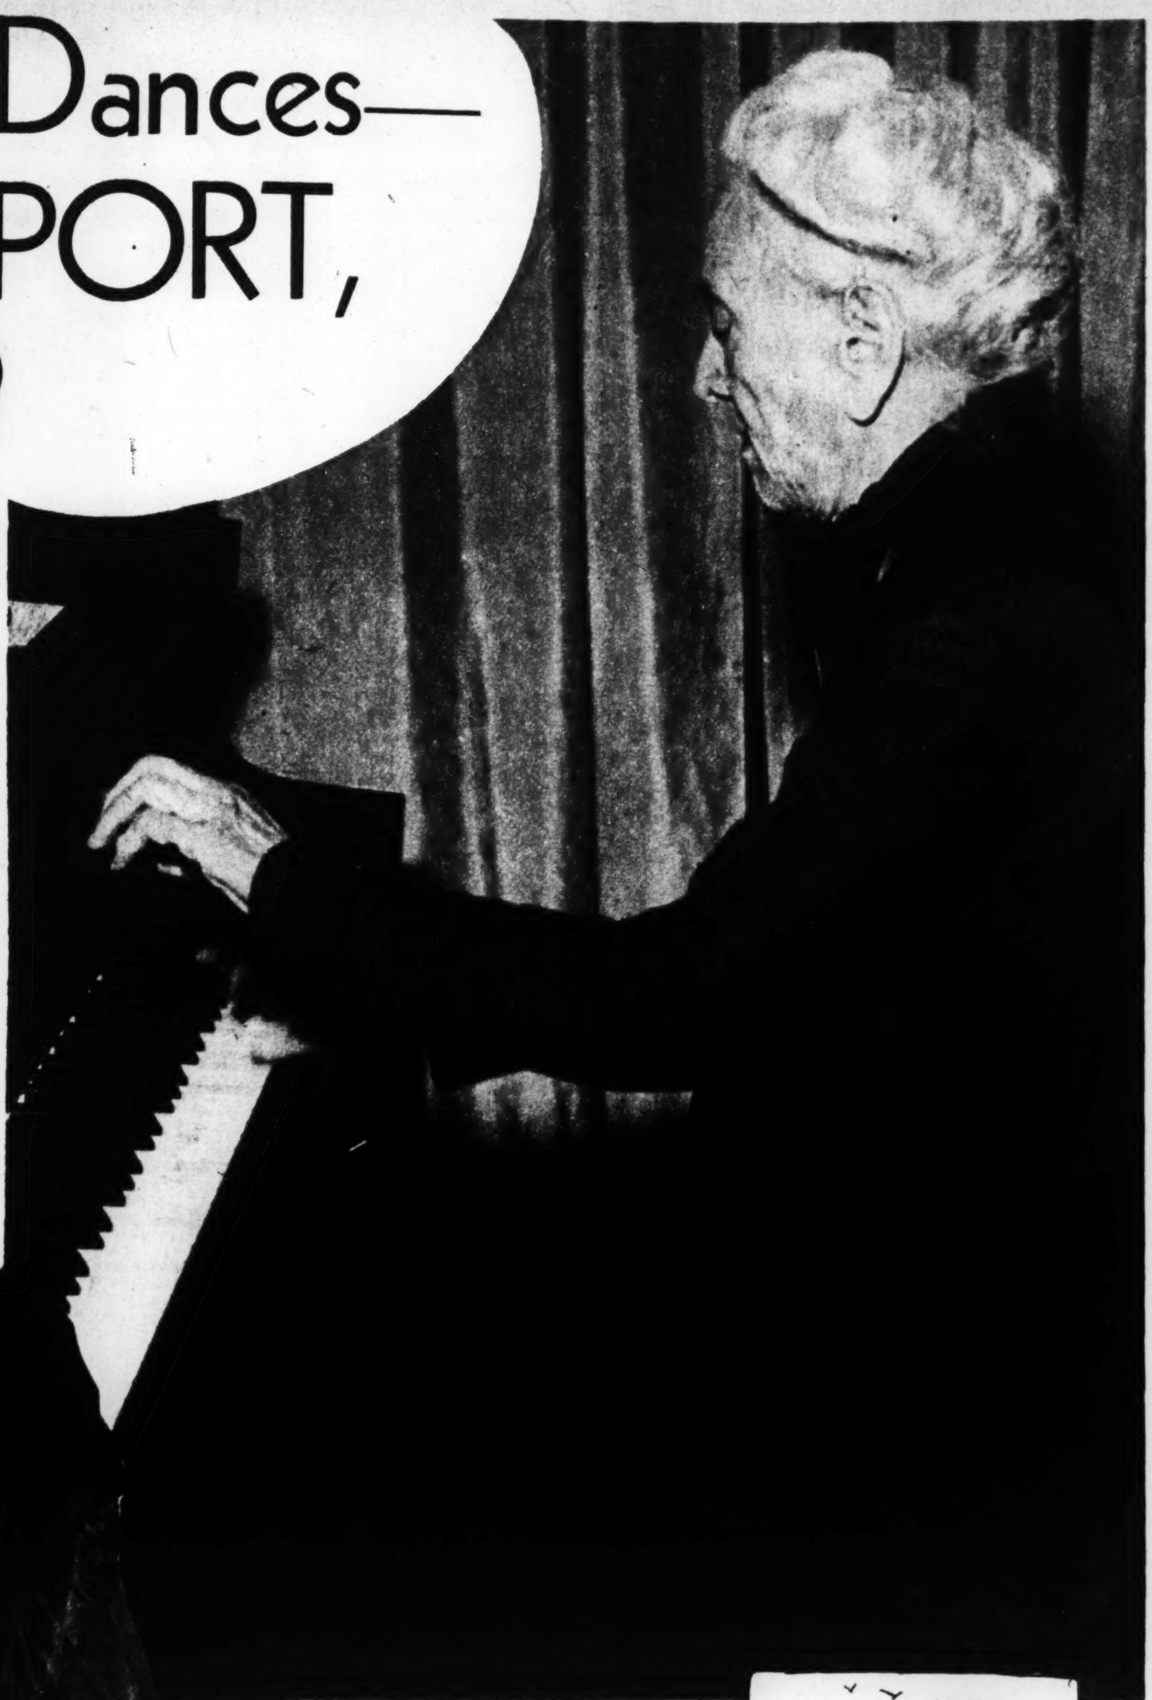
She Wines, Smokes and Dances— DR. DAVENPORT, AGE 109





Born a Russian Princess, She Refused the Attentions of Franz Josef of Austria, and Is Now Married to a Man 47 Years Younger Than Herself.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

BACK in 1826, when Abraham Lincoln was still a farm boy in buckskin, little Princess Marie Charlotte, two-year-old daughter of the Russian Prince Pazkoff, was pronounced dead of cholera. Today the same Marie Charlotte, now known as Doctor Davenport, is casually looking forward to her hundred and tenth birthday. Charming, witty and dynamic, she still travels around the world, giving lectures on hygiene; smoking, drinking and dancing. Wherever she goes she leaves her hearers enchanted, mystified —and she goes everywhere. She thinks that some day she will die, but thus far she simply hasn't found time.

"Someday, perhaps, I shall just walk into the water," she muses, "I feel that I have escaped natural death so many times that I have the right to go now when I wish."

Although one of her eleven sons is said to be the wealthiest man in Buenos Aires, Dr. Davenport refuses to consider being supported by her family. Instead she gives out information on the sources of her longevity and allows herself only a small part of every year to vacation in the Long Island cottage she shares with her 62-year-old husband. Ordinarily she is in transit from city to city, from continent to continent. And her travels are far from restful. When she was in St. Louis last year, she walked into the Junior League one day and announced that she wanted to meet all the members—individually. In Philadelphia she carried her own bag into the hotel and puffed at a cigarette as she registered. "Come up and see me some time," she said to a photographer who was getting her picture in that pose. For her soul's sake, however, she manages always to spend three months a year in retirement and solitude telling no one her whereabouts.

It is almost futile to attempt to choose from the stack of anecdotes she has accumulated in her long and diversified experience. In all the stories, it is not the incident that stands out so much as her own reaction to it.

Once, when the late Emperor Franz Josef of Austria-Hungary asked her to be his morganatic wife, shortly after the death of one of her three husbands, she stiffened and laughed with her eyes.

"Your Imperial Majesty," she said, "it cannot be. My people were princes when yours still were peasants."

Dr. Davenport's family were the distinguished Tarnowskis who owned most of the town of Tarnow in Cracow, Poland. On a hill near the town still stand the ruins of their ancient castle and a church more than 800 years old. Her most distinguished ancestor was Jan Tarnowski, called "Magnus," who was created a count of the Holy Roman Empire by Charles V for his excellence as a general.

Born in St. Petersburg, the daughter of a prince whose democratic proclivities made it impossible for him to stay in Russia, Marie Charlotte was taken to Switzerland (after surviving the cholera) at the age of two. Her paternal grandfather, not so fortunate, was sent into Siberian exile, where he later died.

Marie Charlotte received her early education in a Swiss convent. At 16 she was married to a Russian prince, a dashing, handsome fellow whose weakness for the ladies led him into a duel. He was killed about a year after the wedding, just before the birth of their first son.

The latter is now living in Madrid. He is 93.

A year after losing her first husband, the Princess married again, this time a more proficient duelist. The Marquis de Golier, then a talented young officer, was said to be one of the greatest swordsmen of France.

During the seventeen years of their marriage, the Marquise bore ten more sons, all of whom are now living in various parts of France, Spain, Argentina and China. The eldest was only 17 when the Marquis de Golier died in the hunting field. It was soon afterwards that the Emperor of Austria began his suit for the Marquise's hand.

Recently she was asked to tell more about this episode.

"What did he say?" she was asked in reference to Franz Josef's reaction to being told his ancestors, the Hapsburg monarchs, had been peasants.

"What could he say!" answered Dr. Davenport. "It was the truth. He knew it."

THE widow's life during the long period which followed was one of insatiable activity. She seems to have been almost everywhere, to have known everybody of any consequence and myriads who were of no consequence. In Tahiti she spent a month with her good friond Robert Louis Stevenson. She knew Admiral and Mrs. Dewey intimately. In Simla, India, she chatted at length with Rudyard Kipling. She took piano lessons from Liszt. Once, much later, she was interviewed in Marion, Ohio, by a young reporter named Warren G. Harding.

And sometime during this period before her third marriage, she found time to take two degrees, one from the University of Vienna, one from the Sorbonne, in Paris. In Vienna she studied medicine. She practiced there for some time, but eventually gave it up because she found she did not like sick people very much. Ten years ago she was arrested in Kansas City for practicing without a license. She was released on bond, and apparently the charges were never pressed. She still hates the thought of disease.

As a matter of fact, Dr. Davenport has been ill very little in her long life. She once lost the sight of an eye, but she regained it, she says, by healthy living. It is this faith in natural living which is the predominant feature of Dr. Davenport's thinking. She has preached a code of good living for forty or fifty years, but her theories are never dogmatic, never extreme. She likes wine and tobacco, sometimes takes a nip of brandy with her tea. She eats little meat, drinks coffee and sour milk. Even in these things she feels little obligation to be consistent. And she doesn't insist that her methods are right for everyone. She is only consistent in principle, never over-eating, never getting too little sleep—or too much sleep.

Even today, the adherence to habits of self-discipline and rigorous exercise enable her to lead a more active physical life than most ardent "outdoor" enthusiasts. She walks three miles a day—says she could walk ten without tiring. She fences, swims, dives, rides horseback and dances whenever she gets a chance. Every morning on arising she goes through a complicated program of calisthenics, beginning with an exercise in which she lies down and forces her legs over her head fifty times.

Dr. Davenport's regimen is hardly of an orthodox sort. Sometimes, for days, she gets all her nourishment from concentrated vitamins. What she does eat is an odd diet: raw grated carrots, a quart of orange juice, berries and rich cream. Once she was asked whether she ate three meals a day.

"AM I a horse or a cow?" she answered. In her opinion most people gorge themselves "like things in a menagerie." She eats only when hungry and thinks a full stomach an impediment to mental clarity.

Despite her knowledge and experience in medicine, Dr. Davenport has a horror of surgery. She has never had an operation and considers them a process of "dying by inches."

Once, however, she was forced to part with four teeth. Her saddle horse kicked her in the mouth when she was 91. Aside from this and the fact that she is gradually having difficulty with her hearing, she is as sound as an acrobat. She is tiny and agile, weighs only 89 pounds and has a 19-inch waist line.

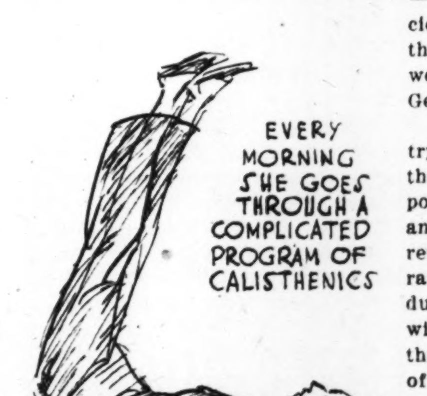
It was about the time of her third marriage that Dr. Davenport first came to America. Her husband was only 21, a Virginian writing for The Times in London. She was 69. "A platonic marriage," she calls it, but they have been famously happy together for four decades. She has only one complaint to make of her husband. Mr. William H. Davenport has, she claims, no sense of humor. For this reason they never sit together on trains or trolley cars. He hates it when she talks to all her fellow passengers.

When she came to this country, physical exercise had not yet become a popular fetish. She was a sensation. She made the acquaintance of prominent women and was quickly taken up and allowed to preach her doctrines. Among her pupils have been such well-known leaders of society as Mrs. Phoebe Randolph Hearst, mother of the publisher; Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt. She gave advice to Sarah Bernhardt, the late Dowager Queen of England, the Duchess of Sutherland. And she taught Alice Roosevelt, the present Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, how to hold a cigarette.

The methods Dr. Davenport employs in her teaching are unique, to say the least. She has always been bluntly outspoken and intolerant of avoidable stupidity.

A flat-chested woman will ask, "Oh, Dr. Davenport, won't you tell me how I may develop my bust?"

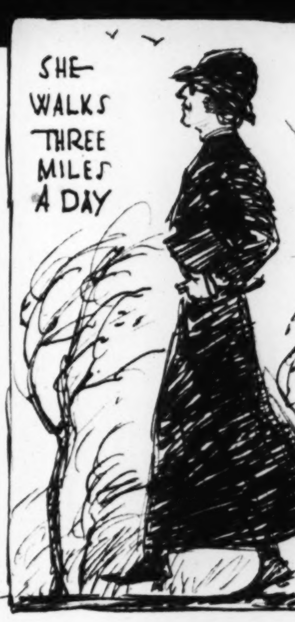
The answer comes back like a ricocheting shell: "Develop your brains first!" And then, more kindly, "My dear woman, there are too many legs and busts in the world; too little intelligence. Don't you see? Develop your mind. Is not intelligence far more attractive than a painted image?"



EVERY MORNING SHE GOES THROUGH A COMPLICATED PROGRAM OF CALISTHENICS

"Now I tell you," she will say. "Develop vision. The whole yardstick of life is the state of mind. The time will come when people will live as long as they want to.

"You grow old simply by deserting your ideas. Get up on a horse and gallop after adventure."



SHE WALKS THREE MILES A DAY

"Try to outlive your ancestors, mentally as well as physically. Travel if you can. But always read. Movies are stupid. Life is the real stage." Dr. Davenport's favorite author is the philosopher Spinoza.

Good advice is said to be seldom popular, but Dr. Davenport has certainly found how to make it so. Her lectures and classes have frequently netted her upwards of $100,000 a year. She never was able to use that much money, so she gave much of it to her friends. She thinks she must have spent nearly two million dollars in American hotels alone, during her trips through this country.

IN HER younger days, ten years ago, when she was perhaps more severe a critic than she is today, she decided to write her memoirs. She thought that she hated America. She would go back to her childhood home, Geneva.

"I shall teach no more in this country where I have worked so long," she then confided to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "There is no democracy here and too much plutocracy. In my life remaining I shall not see any more the rational mind succeeding, but the pendulum will swing back again and you will see great things emerging from this seeming restlessness and horror of life now."

But retirement was still impossible. She was still too much engaged and intrigued by the present. The possibilities of the future still seem alluring to her and she looks forward to a time when America and Russia will share the power of ruling the earth.

"I don't live in the past," she exclaimed a year ago, "for yesterday is gone as though it were a thousand years and today is my day."

In this spirit she approaches her hundred and tenth birthday, declaring herself unafraid "of poverty or any physical thing," captivated by "the joy of the game of living."

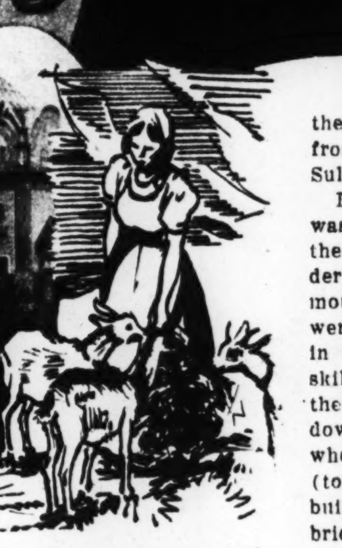
SEEING AMERICA ANEW FROM JUGOSLAVIA

Why the Immigrant Boy Who Came to the United States Only to Become One of Its Severe Critics, Now Believes It Contains the "People of the Future."

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Adamic.

Dalmatian peasant girls.

City Hall in Subatica, a town in Jugoslavia.



By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

LOUIS ADAMIC came to America as a young boy from his native Jugoslavia more than 20 years ago. He was an atom, a fragment, in the great tide of Slavic immigration that poured into this country. The son of peasants, with only a slight education, it was in the cards that he should become a track-walker, a section hand, a laborer in some part of America's vast industrial machine.

But he became, instead, under a handicap that appears from this distance to have been all but insurmountable, a successful writer, using the language he adopted when he arrived in New York at the age of 14. He came to know America far better than most Americans of native stock. So well, in fact, that he grew highly critical of his adopted land.

In the course of his difficult struggle upward Adamic had seen many bitter, grim aspects of American life. As a transient laborer he saw the violent, ruthless warfare of the gangster and the racketeer, with the law all too often bribed or impotent. Serving with the American Merchant Marine as a common seaman, he saw sabotage and class hatred.

He wrote two books, "Dynamite," an account of labor and class violence as he had seen it, and "Laughing in the Jungle," a more or less autobiographical narrative, America being the chaotic jungle in which, for all his struggle, he had been able to laugh with the strong peasant laughter that was his inheritance. It is perhaps not too much to say that—idealist that he is—he despaired of ever seeing a better way of life in his adopted country.

Then a sudden stroke of extraordinary luck befell this young writer. He was given a Guggenheim Fellowship, $2500, to enable him to take a year of leisure for writing and study in Europe. It was not only a great honor, for the Guggenheim award carries a high prestige, but it was the long-looked-for opportunity of every writer who hasn't a private income.

With his American wife, Stella, he sailed for Europe, planning to spend a year in some out-of-the-way spot in Austria or Italy, working on a book about America. But first he went to pay what was to have been a brief visit to Jugoslavia, the country of his birth. What he found there proved of such absorbing interest that he remained nearly a year, making a thorough study of the people and their ancient folkways, the government with its cruel dictatorship, every phase of the economic and social situation.

And out of this study, curiously enough, came certain very interesting conclusions about America, his country by adoption. America was after all, he writes in his new book, "The Native's Return" (Harper and Brothers publishers), the country where he belonged, the country that, with Russia, would be the most important factor in the future of the world, the country that was able to stand outside the hatreds and passions that beset old Europe.

He records in "The Native's Return" the conversation he had with his wife as they stood on the deck of a steamer approaching New York on the homeward voyage:

"AS I've said before, much of our immigrants' energy is frozen in America's present-day greatness; in the bridges and railroads throughout America; in nearly everything that is important in her material equipment. A thin, imperceptible thread of our Slavic energy runs in every track of America's railway system. Perhaps more than any other group, native or immigrant, we have contributed to the upbuilding of the country. We have always been constructive in America.

"We have contributed to America's greatness not only with out brawn, but with our brains as well; our genius. Nikola Tesla and Michael Pupin are Jugoslavs. Their inventions doubtless are the most important factors in the modern life of the United States. Tens of millions of electrical horsepower are generated in the United States by the Tesla motors every year; and but for Professor Pupin's inventions, our telephony would be less efficient.

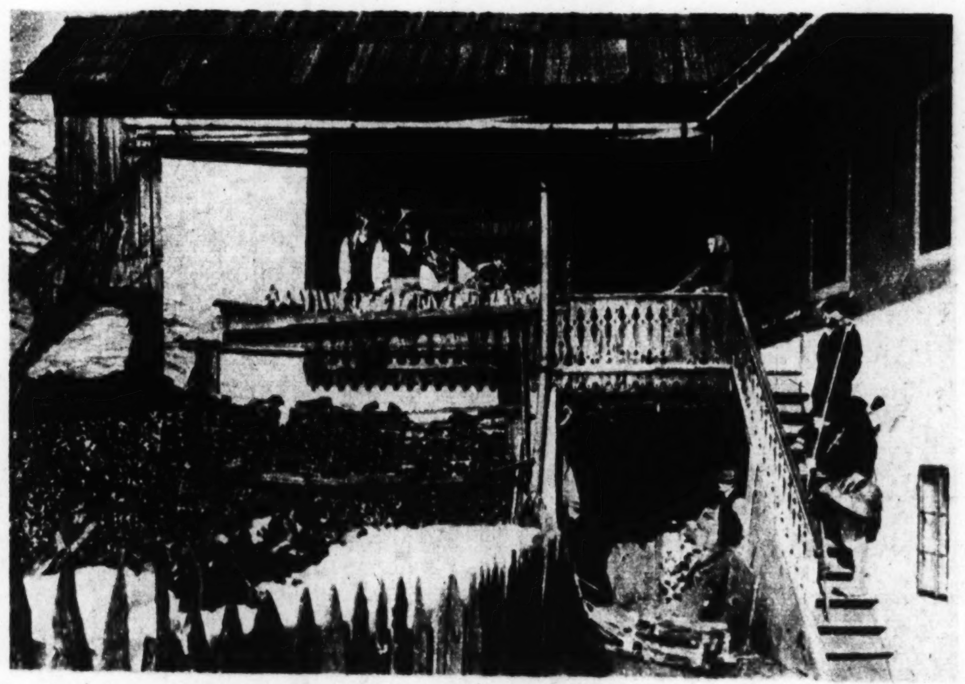
"At this moment I find it very pleasant to think of these things. Most of us Jugoslavs have been workers, and, as such, of course, have been terribly exploited; individually, many of our people in America today have nothing to show for their labor—but, while I do not forget that fact, I admit that America, with all her faults, gave my people who came here an opportunity to function, at least in part, according to the basic urge of their Slavic vitality, which is to produce, to be socially constructive. Tesla and Pupin could not have done in the old country what they have accomplished here.

"We have worked hard, millions of us, and our achievements remain. There are the Tesla motors and Pupin's system of long-distance telephony. All that is good. It is a permanent contribution to America and the rest of the world. Eventually it will even benefit Jugoslavia, perhaps by way of Russia, which now worships our American motors and other machinery. . . .

"Bearing all this in mind, it's grand to be a Jugoslav-American and to come back after a visit to the old country. I love America. I think that, with Russia, she will be the most important factor in the future of the world and mankind. . . America will have to go Left. If nothing else the vast industrial equipment which we Jugoslav immigrants have helped to create in America will make her go Left and revise her social system. She will go Left, too, because Americans, like Slavs, are essentially constructive—people of the future."

This, of course, was Adamic's final reaction. In the first weeks that he spent in Jugoslavia, he was enchanted with the picturesqueness and the great beauty of his native land, with the simplicity and genuineness of his people, their kindness, their warmth and deep, unpretentious charm.

Only occasional letters had told Adamic of the events that had taken place in his large family in Carniola, a province of Slovenia, one of the many small states, each with its separate nationality, included in Jugoslavia. Yet he discovered that his fame as a writer had preceded him. He was met on shipboard at quarantine by a representative of the governor of the province who showed him newspapers from all over Jugoslavia with editorials and news stories devoted to his success and his homecoming, all of which surprised him very much.



A peasant house in Dalmatia.

The Adamic family overwhelmed their distinguished son and his wife with kindness. The two visitors from America were taken into the family without any self-consciousness or formality. They participated in the rituals of family life. Cousin Tone was married and great-uncle Yanez died.

Uncle Yanez was 78. He had been gravely ill for several weeks. But he wouldn't die, so Adamic's mother told him, until the visitor from America should come with his wife to make a call. Uncle Yanez lived in a neighboring village and it was some time before Louis and Stella could go there. Uncle Yanez waited for them. He shook hands with them, said a few words, blessed them and then he died. One of the things that impressed Adamic most about his great uncle's death was the way in which the peasants accepted it, as a natural occurrence, a part of the cycle of birth and growth, without any of the dread and horror that attends death in a more urban civilization.

From Carniola the Adamics started out to discover the rest of Jugoslavia. Again they found, in the remote mountains of Herzegovina and Montenegro, a startling picturesqueness and beauty, a people tempered to a steel-like toughness, and philosophic courage, by the conditions of their life.

Among other things they found were mountain villages where the women are grass widows for eleven months of the year. One of these was Galichnik where the Adamics visited. The origin of Galichnik and the other villages like it goes back five hundred years to the time when the Turks conquered the medieval Serbian Empire and many Serbs were under the necessity of taking their women and children to a refuge where they would be comparatively safe from the cruelty and barbarism of the Sultan's officers and troops.

But the men soon realized that it was virtually impossible to exist on the meager crops and with the slender herds that the rocky patches of mountain earth would support. They went out into the world and became in the course of the years highly skilled artisans in various phases of the building trade, handing their skill down from father to son. These men who call themselves "pechalbari" (toilers of the world), have helped to build the palaces of Versailles, the bridges of Budapest, the Cathedral of St. Stephen in Vienna, the great hotels facing the Bay of Naples, the royal palaces in Belgrade and Bucharest, the Mormon Temple in Utah, the colossal Dnieperstroi in Russia, the Empire State Building in New York, according to Adamic.

Except for one month of the year the village of Galichnik is inhabited by women, children and old men. When a boy is fourteen or fifteen his father or brother takes him out into the world to learn the family trade.

THE women look happy and contented, Adamic says, and they are noted for their virtue and integrity. They explained to him that they were too busy to be unhappy. One thing on which they put paramount importance is preserving their good looks so that their husbands will find them attractive when they return from the great world where they have seen many other women. The return of the men is the occasion for great rejoicing. Here is Adamic's description of the women:

"Most of them are of medium height, graceful in their movements, almost swanky in a restrained way. Watching them for days, while we were there, it occurred to me that their beauty was less individual or personal than a part or characteristic of the harmonious whole called Galichnik and the mountains about it. Both Stella and me they impressed as something perfect; but perfect, we thought, only as long as they stayed where they were.

"Resting or even while working at their looms, they sing old, rather melancholy songs, full of longing, about their loneliness and their husbands' and sons' labors in far countries. But actually they are not what one could call unhappy women. Certainly not miserable. The loveliness of their faces, like the songs, has a touch of sadness, which, however, is not individual or acute on a personal plane. It is a communal, traditional, almost formal sadness—a matter of centuries and of a common lot, which the women understand and accept."

How 'Little Augusto' Became a World Figure

Though Often Defeated, Sandino the Nicaraguan Revolutionist and Patriot, Was Never Conquered Until Assassins' Bullets Brought Him Down.

Senora Sandino, wife of the Nicaraguan leader.

Augusto Cesar Sandino.

By KEITH KERMAN

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

NOW that Augusto Cesar Sandino is dead, removed by assassins' bullets as a factor in Nicaraguan affairs, the question of his place in Central American history presents itself. Does this deadly little fire-eater, who defied the United States and its famed marines and the government of his own country for more than five years, deserve to be recorded as a high-minded patriot, a lesser Bolivar or San Martin? Or was he merely a bandit, a robber and killer, who feigned devotion to political principles as a screen for his depredations?

Both views have been strongly presented. The rank and file of Nicaraguans are said to have considered him their champion. Many liberals in the United States and other countries regarded him as a hero, a fighter for liberty. In support of this estimate of the man they are able to point out that when the condition against which he chiefly protested—the presence of United States marines in Nicaragua—ended, he ceased fighting; a few weeks after the departure of the last marines, he disbanded his army and became a peaceful farmer.

The State Department of the United States in the Coolidge and Hoover administrations looked on Sandino as a bandit—"common outlaw" was one of the terms applied to him once by Secretary of State Kellogg—and with this judgment Conservative leaders in Nicaragua agreed. Even some of the Liberals of that country who had found it expedient to come to terms with the Colossus of the North condemned Sandino for keeping up the fight. Government officials cited his raiding of mines and ranches and seizure of supplies, his savage attacks from ambush, his private seal depicting a Nicaraguan about to decapitate a marine, his own description of himself as a "wild beast of the mountains."

Both friend and foe agreed that Sandino was brave, a skillful warrior, a man of flaming spirit. And it can scarcely be disputed that this little Nicaraguan—Augustino, "Little Augusto," his men called him—who was sometimes defeated but never conquered in his warfare against the marines and the soldiers of his own country and who achieved the importance of a national issue in official Washington, was one of the most picturesque figures of the twentieth century. Patriot or bandit, depending on the personal viewpoint, he was able, from his remote jungles, to impress the world with his vivid, dashing personality.

Sandino was born in May, 1893, at Niquinohomo, a village not far from Managua, the capital. His father, Gregorio Sandino, owner of a coffee plantation and a Liberal in politics, had the boy educated in the primary school in his home village and at the Granada Eastern Institute. After leaving school Augusto returned to his father's coffee finca and worked there for a time. Then he went into business for himself as a produce merchant and did well. His earnings he invested in a farm—only to lose it after American financial interests acquired a dominating position in the Nicaraguan credit system. The seed of his animosity toward Yankee influence in his country may have been sown then. In following years he worked at a variety of jobs—at an American-owned mine in Nicaragua, at another mine in Honduras, for banana companies in Guatemala, and in Mexican oil fields at Tampico.

A typical group of guerrilla warriors in the "army" which Sandino commanded as a revolutionist.

Sandino as he looked in the field.

The story has been told that before he went to Mexico, certain politicians sought his support, offering him a seat in the Chamber of Deputies and money with which to regain his farm. When he rejected these overtures, he was marked for assassination. Men were hired to pick a fight with him and kill him in a saloon. "Little Augusto" wounded one of the bravos and escaped from the trap. There was no prosecution.

SANDINO returned to Nicaragua to join the revolution headed by Dr. Juan Sacasa and General Jose Maria Moncada, Liberals, against the Conservative Emilano Chamorro, who had become dictator by a military coup. That was in 1926. Sandino raised a band of followers, received a small supply of guns and ammunition from the revolutionary leaders, and took the field with success against the Conservative forces. He operated principally in Nueva Segovia, virtually independently of Moncada, whom he distrusted.

In the meantime there had been another change in the Nicaraguan government. General Chamorro, the dictator, was denied recognition by the United States, so he stepped down and let his ally, Adolfo Diaz, be elevated to the Presidency by what was called an election in the Nicaraguan Assembly. President Coolidge recognized Diaz. So toward the end of 1926 it was Diaz who was in danger of being run out of the presidential palace by the Sacasa revolutionists. Sacasa had set up a government, which he called the "constitutional" government, at Puerto Cabezas; he based his claim to the presidency on the fact that he had been Vice-President when President Solorano resigned under pressure of the Chamorro revolt.

The Sacasa forces were gradually closing in on the Capital, and things looked pretty dark for Mr. Coolidge's protege, Diaz, when the United States sent Marines to take a hand in the situation, at the earnest, almost prayerful invitation of Mr. Diaz. In fulfilling their mission of protecting American lives and property, the marines created neutral zones and managed, the Liberals charged, to prevent the Sacasa men from carrying their revolution to a successful conclusion. Then Henry L. Stimson, later Secretary of State, went to Nicaragua as the representative of President Coolidge and engineered an agreement under which the Liberals were to lay down their arms, leaving Diaz in office until the next year—1928—when an election would be held under the supervision of the United States. Sacasa and Moncada accepted the terms, feeling it was useless to resist the power of the United States.

But one of the rebel generals refused to be guided by expediency and lay down his arms. Unawed by Yankee might, Little Augusto called his colleagues cowards and traitors and retired to his mountain fortress, El Chipote, in Nueva Segovia. There he gathered his followers—about 1200 men—and gave permission for all who were married and needed at home to leave. About 500 left the camp. With the rest, he prepared to make the stay of the Marines—the "invaders"— in Nicaragua as unhappy as possible. He called his command the Army of the Defenders of the National Sovereignty of Nicaragua in an Imperialistic War in Nicaragua.

THE General of this army with the impressive name was a slender fellow and short—about 5 feet 5 inches in height. He had a sharp face, quick black eyes and straight black hair; there was Indian blood in his ancestry. He wore a brown uniform, shining puttees, a shovel-shaped sombrero and a red and black neckcloth. Often there was a flower in his hat, making an odd contrast with the two pistols at his sides and the heavy cartridge belts strapped around him. He frequently rode a white mule.

Sandino set up a sort of republic of "the mountain people," made laws, including a very stringent prohibition law, and issued currency. The flag of his Government was red and black.

In July, 1927, Sandino lashed out at the enemy with an attack on Ocotal, garrisoned by marines and native constabulary. At the head of some 400 men he swooped down on the town at 1 o'clock in the morning. The garrison, comprising fewer than 100 men, commanded by Major G. D. Hatfield of the Marine Corps, made a gallant defense. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, with the battle still going on and the outcome in doubt, five Marine airplanes, under the command of Major Ross E. Rowell, appeared and bombed and machine-gunned the attacking force. One plane was brought down by the Sandinistas, but its pilot managed to land it in Ocotal without injury to himself. Within an hour after the aerial bombardment began the surviving Sandino men scattered and fled, leaving, according to official reports, some 300 casualties on the field. One marine and a member of the constabulary were killed.

Sandino and the remnants of his force took refuge in the mountain fastnesses they knew so well. Marines and Nicaraguan guardsmen hunted them on foot, on horseback and in airplanes. But Sandino was as elusive as a drop of quicksilver. Time and again the pursuers thought they had him cornered so that there was no escape, but he always slipped away—to reappear some place else in a sudden slashing attack. For more than five years the hunt went on and a good deal of blood was shed on both sides, but they never caught Augustino. He was one situation the marines were unable to get in hand.

Many times the insurgent chief was reported to have been killed, and he was wounded once, in a fight with national guardsmen. In 1929 he quit the field and went to Mexico, where he lived quietly at Merida, Yucatan, but some months later he was back in Nicaragua leading fresh forays against the marines and their allies of the constabulary. Early in this troubled period, despite the danger and uncertainty of his position, he married. His wife was Blanca Arauz, a government telegraph operator at San Rafael del Norte. She continued to work at her job while her husband fought and hid.

FROM time to time Sandino sent letters to various authorities defining his position and setting forth the merit of his cause. One was to the Senate of the United States. It said:

"Honorable Senate of the United States:

"In the name of the Nicaraguan people I protest against the continued barbarism of your forces in my country, such as the recent total destruction of the town of Quilali. I shall never recognize a government imposed by a foreign power. I demand the immediate withdrawal of the invading troops. Otherwise from this date on I cannot be responsible for the safety of any North American official resident in Nicaraguan territory.

"For Fatherland and Liberty,
A. C. Sandino."

The letter was delivered through Carleton Beals, correspondent for the magazine The Nation, who visited Sandino and interviewed him after a long and dangerous trip. Sandino told his visitor that he would continue fighting as long as marines were kept in Nicaragua. He said the people of the district in which he operated were supporting his cause, making voluntary contributions of food. From the enemy he had obtained, by force, clothing and ammunition, he declared. He insisted he and his men did not engage in banditry, but remarked: "Today I gave Colonel Colindres $15, all I had at the moment, to buy clothes for five of his soldiers. I suggested to him that he tell the shopkeeper we are good and that he make the money go as far as possible—and

When he married Ruth, I was best man, and when Isabel and I took the plunge Jack and Ruth were the only people we asked to stand by, outside of Isabel's folks.

Isabel and Ruth didn't get along so well at first, but after a while, they clicked, and the four of us used to have some swell times.

There was one man on the club nobody could stand. That was Chick Kelsey, the coach. Nobody would room with him; they wouldn't even eat with him, or talk to him. Brad Smith, the Old Master, was the manager then, and he kept Chick on for years, and nobody could figure out why, until the Old Man stepped down, and Jack Moran took his place.

"I can't see it," Jack used to say. "Here's a club that's noted for its harmony, and Brad keeps a sour note like Kelsey."

"Maybe he's got something on the Old Man," I suggested. "Maybe he knows where the body is buried or who's got the papers."

"It must be something," Jack said seriously. "Take that day in Boston, last month. I triple off the right field fence with two men on, and win the old ball game. Luigi singled me in, and when I came back to the bench, Kelsey made a crack about nobody but a dope would have tried to hit that pitch to right field, and if I wasn't hung with horseshoes, I'd be back where I belonged, in the Blue Ridge League."

So you poked him one, and Brad fined you fifty dollars," I nodded.

"Well, was that any way to act? After I win the ball game?"

"What ball game?" I asked him. "You were playing Boston, weren't you?"

"Go ahead," he growled, "but just the same, I'm telling you. The first thing I do, when Brad quits, is fire Kelsey."

Two weeks later, with the team only two games behind New York, the Old Master resigned and handed the job over to Jack. The first thing Jack did was to fire Kelsey, in the interests of harmony. And then the trouble started.

The Sparrows went over to the Big Town for a four-game series, one of those crucial affairs. New York was just staggering along, and Jack had five pitchers—all hot—to use as he pleased. They'd just come back from the West, and none of the regulars had worked for three days. I couldn't see how they'd lose a game.

Ruth didn't go over with Jack, and my wife was still down at Schooner Beach, with her folks, so Jack and I used to spend our evenings together, and go over each game as it was played. Before the series was over, I was afraid he'd go crazy.

The first game was just one of those things. Seventeen innings, and they lose, 3-2. Brown, pitching for New York, had the Indian sign on the Sparrows. At that, they should have won, because Jack used Lefty Rawlins, and he was just a little bit better than Brown all the way.

He didn't pass a man until the seventeenth, and that's when the trouble started. The next batter tried to sacrifice, and Lanier, playing third, made a two-base throw. That put men on second and third, with none out. Lefty bore down and struck out a pinch hitter, but a long fly brought in the man on third and the game was over.

"But that's all right," Jack said, at dinner. "I'm not worried. It was just the breaks of the game. Lanier wouldn't make another error like that all season. What I liked was the way the boys took it. Why, in the dressing room, afterwards, Lefty slapped Lanier on the back. 'O. K., kid,' he said. 'We all make mistakes.' You wouldn't believe that, would you?"

"I not only wouldn't, but I don't," I told him. "You take a pitcher like Lefty Rawlins, working against a bonus, and any time he likes to lose a 17-inning game on an error, I'll buy you a case of Scotch."

"It's true," he insisted. "They're just like one big happy family."

I don't like to think about the second game, even now. After a tight contest like that 17-inning affair, both teams let down. New York deserved a lot of credit. They did their best to give the game to the Sparrows, but they just didn't have that extra ounce of cheese. I never saw so many grounders kicked away, and flies misjudged, since the days of the players' strike.

If the fielders were bad, the pitchers were worse. They must have forced in at least six runs. The final score was something like 17-13.

"Had a little trouble today," Jack said to me that night.

"I don't mean the game," he explained. "I mean, in the dressing room, afterwards. Smitty passed a remark to Lanier about that fly he muffed. He said it was too bad Lanier wasn't suspended, so we could win some ball games. Lanier got sore and busted him one."

"SMITTY and Lanier! Why, they've been buddies ever since Lanier joined the club," I said.

"Sure," he told me. "It'll blow over all right. I'm not worried. We're not so bad off. New York's only four games ahead. After tomorrow it'll be three, and then we'll get going."

The next day the Sparrows got a break when the game was rained out. I hung around the hotel with Jack, and from what I saw, the harmony he was talking about had gone sour. Half the team was lined up with Smitty and half with Lanier, and Jack was up in the air because he couldn't side with either. He spent the whole day trying to smooth things out, and got nowhere.

That last game in New York was the worst of all. Jack put Hinkel in to pitch, and he blew up in the second inning. Before they got the side out, he had to use four pitchers, and the score was 10-0. It looked hopeless, but the Sparrows kept picking away at the lead, and Quinlan held New York scoreless until the ninth inning rolled around, and the count was 10-9. Two men on base, two down, and Jack Moran at bat.

They looked like a cinch to tie the score, at least. Jack was a batter like Eddie Collins, who usually came through when he had to. But not that day. I was sorry for him. It wouldn't have been so bad if he'd struck out in an orderly way, but the last one he swung at hit the dirt in front of the plate.

So the Sparrows went home five games behind the leaders. They were a gloomy bunch. I was sorry for Jack. For one thing, he had a black eye.

"What's the matter?" I asked him. "Did somebody slap you on the back after you struck out in the ninth inning? Or just what did happen?"

"Don't try to be funny," he growled at me. "It was nothing but a little mixup in the dressing room."

"What's Jack trying to do, kid us?" One of the boys from New York wanted to know.

"Who was in it?"

"Pretty much everybody," he admitted.

"Just a general meeting of the Harmony Society, eh?"

I could see that he was really worried. After all, he was pretty young for a big job like that, and he wanted to make good. He just couldn't figure out what the trouble was.

"Maybe I'm not cut out for a manager," he admitted, as we started up to the diner.

"You'll be all right," I told him. I didn't believe a word of what I said, and I could see he knew it.

We went into the diner and there, at the first table, were Ruth and Isabel. They had the other two chairs turned up, to save them for us.

"We thought we'd surprise you," Isabel explained. "Ruth and I came over to do some shopping."

"What on earth's the matter with your eye, honey?" Ruth asked.

"Ball hit me," Jack said, delivering the official kiss and sitting down.

I FOLLOWED suit and told the wife what a swell surprise it was, and so forth. But if it had depended on Jack and me to keep the girls amused, they'd have been in tears before we got home. We didn't feel so hot.

Fortunately, there never were two girls that got along better than Ruth and Isabel. They could talk by the hour. Jack and I used to try to figure out what they were talking about, and try to look interested and throw in a remark or two ourselves.

We finally gave up, because we discovered that most of the time, when they weren't talking hats and dresses, they were talking about just one subject. That was a girl named Helen Farr. They both knew her, and they both hated her, but how they loved to talk about her.

Finally, Jack and I got so that when we heard her name we'd just shut up. What was the use? Jack drew three days in the guardhouse once for saying he thought Helen Farr was kind of pretty, and I'll never forget the beating I took when I claimed she looked all right in a bathing suit. Not beautiful, or pretty. I had too much sense for that, even if I did have three highballs that evening. I said she looked all right. And I still say it. But not to Isabel.

In a way, it was a break for us that night, Jack and I ate our dinner, while Ruth and Isabel put Helen Farr on the pan. While we were having coffee, I sat there, half listening and thinking that women are funny, when I suddenly had this idea.

After dinner, we left the girls, and went back to the club car for a smoke, while I tried to sell Jack on this idea of mine. He wouldn't listen to me.

"I think you're crazy," he told me. "If you can explain what Helen Farr has to do with managing the Sparrows, I'll listen to you, otherwise not."

I couldn't make him see it, and if it hadn't been for those two games with Boston, I don't think I could ever have sold him.

The worst of it was that New York lost both days. If things had gone right, the Sparrows would have been three games behind, instead of five.

Anyhow, that's when Jack gave up. He was scared. New York was coming to town for two double-headers and a couple of singles, and the way things looked, the Sparrows were due to drop out of the first division.

"How about it?" I asked him.

"Go ahead and get him," he said. "We couldn't be any worse off."

So I went down to Sailer's Billiard Academy and got hold of Chick Kelsey.

"Jack wants you up at the ball park tomorrow morning," I told him.

The first time they saw him, after Jack took him on again, was at morning practice. Until Kelsey appeared, it was a pretty sad business. Half the club wouldn't speak to the other half, except to utter harsh words, and besides the big division between the partisans of Smith and the followers of Lanier, there were a dozen little feuds working full blast.

I was standing with Jack by the dugout when Kelsey came out of the tunnel. Lanier saw him first. He stuffed his glove in his pocket and came over to Jack.

"I'm through," he barked.

"What do you mean?" Jack asked.

Lanier pointed to Kelsey. "If he's in, I'm out."

"O. K.," said Jack. "You're out."

The rest of Lanier's gang came in then and stood around with him, and then Smitty came in from center field, with the other players, and they started milling around by the dugout. Kelsey was sitting in the shade, off by himself. Finally Smith came over to us.

"Is that straight?" he asked. "Is Kelsey coming back?"

"Kelsey's coming back, and anybody that doesn't like it can turn in his uniform," Jack told him.

"But what's the idea, kid?" Smitty said, looking puzzled.

"The idea is I'm manager of this club," said Jack, in a hard-boiled tone.

Smitty went back and they milled around some more, while Jack and I smoked a cigar in a field box. You could see they were having some kind of conference. I even thought I saw Smitty talking to Lanier, for the first time in almost a week.

Sure enough, Lanier walked across the infield, after about 10 minutes, and stood there glaring at us.

"What's on your mind, Spike?" Jack asked, pleasantly.

"Either you fire Kelsey," Lanier said heavily, "or we quit."

"Who's we?"

"The whole team."

"Well, that's all right," Jack told him, "if you feel that way about it."

"Yeah? And what'll you do about this series with New York?"

"Listen," said Jack. "Go ahead and quit. I'll put nine men in the field if I have to sign up the ground-keepers. The worst they can do is lose, and you'll do that anyhow. Come out in uniform at 12 o'clock, or you're all washed up in organized baseball for the rest of your lives."

With that we got up and went to Jack's office. "A swell psychologist you turned out to be," he said, when the door was closed. "Now look at the mess I'm in. I wouldn't mind if it was anybody else but Kelsey. But I can't look at that gorilla myself."

We spent a bad two hours talking things over. I was afraid to leave Jack, for fear he'd back down, but I had to go to the plant, and by the time I got back it was game time, and I couldn't reach him.

I went up to the press box, and the situation looked bad. "What's Jack trying to do, kid us?" one of the boys from New York wanted to know. "Isn't that Kelsey he has working out on first base?"

I looked down. Jack was at second, of course, but Kelsey was on first, old Pete, the doorman, at shortstop, and a high school boy at third. I swear one outfielder had a gray beard, and the rest should have been in wheel chairs.

"We're using the Rockne system," I told him. "This is our second varsity."

What an inning! The kid Jack had on the hill didn't have a thing, but even so, New York didn't score. Two of them struck out, probably from sheer amazement, and the last man hit a line drive.

The door-keeper was just going up to bat when the regulars gave in. They came out and buckled down to work. After that, it was a swell ball game, with the Sparrows winning 8-3.

I saw Jack after the game.

"Sure, they gave in. They saw I meant business," he said.

"How do they feel about Kelsey now?" I asked him.

"YOU know that play in the fifth?" he said. "When Lanier tried to get White at second and missed him by an eyelash? Well, when we came in Kelsey gave him the bird. 'Nobody but a sap would have tried for two on that play,' he growled. 'You didn't have a chance.' So Lanier busted him in the jaw, right then and there."

"So Lanier busted him in the jaw, right then and there."

"What did you do?" I wanted to know.

"I fined Lanier 50," Jack told me. "He was sore. They're all sore. None of them will talk to me, but what do I care? We're winning again."

"Kid," I said, "you're a manager."

You know the rest. The Sparrows took six straight and went into the lead, and from then on they coasted home.

Sure, psychology did it. Deep stuff. It comes in handy sometimes. That is, if you got seven or eight men that can bust that apple, and four or five good pitchers.

I still can't make Jack see what Kelsey had to do with Helen Farr.

The 'TWO-FACED' Human Race

A German Psychologist Contends the Right Side of the Visage Is Man as He Is, While the Left Side Is Man as He Would Like to Be.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

"I NEED someone who understands me."—"No one seems to understand."—"I want to be understood."—These phrases and innumerable variations on them echo down the corridors of modern life. The movies seem to keep them canned for future reference. They crop up almost daily in the "advice to the lovelorn" columns of the newspapers. They are whispered on a thousand park benches any warm night in spring. They are a source of livelihood to psychoanalyst, medium and faith healer.

In a recent issue of "Character and Personality," published at Duke University, Werner Wolff, a Berlin psychologist who has spent a number of years studying the mental attitude which inspires this everlasting plea, came out with his preliminary results. He has been trying to find out how far it is possible to "understand" one's friends—or one's self even. He has made some rather unique investigations of this "process of the apprehension of character."

The experiments were performed with cameras, speech-recording machines, movies, handwriting samples and unusual scientific instruments. Wolff turned up some interesting facts besides the conclusions which he might have anticipated. When he was attempting to find out, for example, how much truth there is in a judgment of personality based on facial expression, he discovered that the two sides of the face reveal entirely different things. This was perhaps his most startling discovery.

Wolff had found in previous observations that when people attempt to give an analysis of their own personalities from evidence about themselves which they do not recognize, they give a biased criticism despite this failure of recognition. He found that in describing themselves people generally idealize. They give a picture of themselves as they desire to be—not as they are. This he calls a "wish image."

Discussing the wish image and its manifestations in life, Wolff said, "A man judging himself does not follow the view of himself apparent to strangers, but follows his wish image; and it is the latter which prevents him from recognizing the reality. It is this also which forms a man's most secret possession, and in all forms of expression which can be checked by self-judgment it is so thoroughly hidden from a man's surroundings that the people around him fail to perceive it."

In studying the effect of subconscious wish images on one's understanding of self, Wolff came to the conclusion that the most significant clues were those given by facial expressions. He studied faces by taking sections of profiles of his subjects and having them characterized by his group of subjects. Then he took front views of his subjects and split them in two.

Wolff's process here was simple. He took the right half of the front view and had two negatives made from it. One of these he reversed, so that when combined the two right-hand views made one full view. The same thing was done with the left side, so that three pictures were finally obtained.

It has always been known that the human body is not perfect in its symmetry, that hands, feet, eyes, ears and so on, are not exact duplicates of one another. But the differences between the right and the left sides of the face were startling.

For one thing, the composite photograph of the right-hand side was always quite similar to the original front view. It simply intensified the impression created by the original. But the left-hand side was completely unlike either of the other two. This, Wolff says, is owing to the fact that the left-hand side presents the wish image, while the right-hand side is what is apparent to the observer. He found that people were often unable to recognize the right-hand composite of their own faces. The left-hand was a far better portrait, they thought. But strangers "frequently fail to recognize that the left-hand half belongs to the same person."

"To give an example," he continues, "the subject of the experiment was a powerful, well-built man. The picture consisting of two right-hand views produces the same impression. The picture consisting of two left-hand views shows a young man of girlish appearance. The subject of the experiment recognized only the latter picture. This man wears women's dress and looks upon women as ideal beings whom he would like to resemble.

"By making experiments on a considerable number of persons and collecting the descriptions given by them to the various expressions with regard to a large number of right-hand and left-hand views of different structure and type, we discovered that the right-hand view produces an effect of liveliness and individuality, while the left-hand view produces one of remoteness from life. The right-hand view is described as full of vitality, sensual, smiling, frank, active, brutal, social or full of emotion; while the left-hand face is described as being in a state or rigor, dead, concentrated, reticent, passive, ethereal, demoniac, solitary and mask-like."

Wolff goes on to say that this difference in the two "faces" is also characteristic of statues and other works of art, in all ages. It applies also to children and animals. He notes that the idea of the left side (as exemplified in the word sinister) implies mystery and evil, while the idea of the right is embodied in the words right and righteous. This implication he considers a proof that men have always had a half-perceived intuition (a hunch, so to speak) of the facts he brings out.

But the facial studies were only a small part of Wolff's investigation. Going on the theory that people form judgments of one another on the basis of numerous "significant gestures," he went on to study other clues. He made tests with voices, for example.

Here he found that almost none of his subjects could recognize a reproduction of their own voices. They were positive in their identification of the voices of their friends, but confused the voices of strangers with their own. In spite of this, they were generally biased when they were asked to describe the owners of their own voices.

THE same results were obtained when his subjects repeated stories that had been read to them. Their versions were all recorded stenographically. When a number of these versions were read to a member of the group, that member usually failed to recognize his own version, yet gave an idealistic interpretation of it, while characterizing the other story tellers correctly.

The subjects were unable to recognize even their own hands when shown pictures of them which had been taken without their knowledge. They were able, however, to distinguish movies of their gaits, though unable to pick out the gaits of their friends. Even wives and husbands did not recognize each other's manner of walking.

Wolff is convinced that these experiments are important. He thinks they give the psychologist a means of seeing into the hidden personality which is expressed in a person's unconscious attitude toward himself. He shows that a person cannot understand a friend in the same terms as the friend wishes himself to be understood. One cannot see the private desires of which a person is himself unconscious, except by some such method as Wolff employs. He believes he has a valuable method for comparing the inner and outer aspects of personality and that the fact that people do not recognize the clues which they themselves give out makes it possible to compare the value of a self-understanding with the value of strangers' or acquaintances' opinions.

How 'Little Augusto' Became a World Figure

In November, 1928, Moncada was elected President of Nicaragua. There was a lessening of insurgent activities for a time, but after Sandino returned from Mexico he renewed hostilities against the "machos" with vigor. The Sandinistas sallied forth from their mountains and raided along the eastern coast. The withdrawal of marines had begun by this time as the number of Nicaraguan National Guardsmen, trained by marine officers, was growing. Sandino announced that he would lay down his arms when all the marines had gone.

In 1932 Dr. Sacasa was elected President and the United States abandoned its supervision of Nicaraguan elections. By the beginning of 1933 the last of the marines had left Nicaragua. "Our fight is finished," Sandino said then, and in little more than a month his army had been disbanded.

More than 5000 marines had been in Nicaragua in the course of the "Sandino war," and 133 of them had lost their lives. The casualties among the revolutionists ran into the thousands. Despite his heavy losses, men flocked to Sandino's standard and followed him loyally. "Death is but a tiny moment of discomfort, not to be taken seriously," he used to tell them. And: "Death most quickly singles out him who fears death."

Under the peace terms, 100 of his followers were allowed to keep their arms and farm a tract of land along the Coco River on a co-operative basis, the enterprise receiving a monthly bonus of $1000 from the government. This money was used to buy supplies and tools for the colonists. Sandino became the head of this co-operative society, and established a home at Wiwili. The "wild beast of the mountains" settled down as a peaceful agriculturalist. Not long ago he was saddened by the death of his wife.

In making peace last year, Sandino announced to the National Guard: "We are brothers now." But many of the guardsmen did not feel that way about it. The fighting between them and the revolutionists had been too bitter. This animosity was not allayed by Sandino's subsequent criticism of the Guard as unconstitutional. It was predicted that Little Augusto would not live long; he had too many sworn enemies.

Last month the prediction came true. Sandino went to Managua to talk with President Sacasa about means of ending conflicts between his men and guardsmen. As he was returning to the Presidential palace from a dinner at the home of Minister of Agriculture Salvatierra, the automobile in which he was riding was stopped by guardsmen. The chauffeur, Salvatierra and Gregorio Sandino, father of Augusto, were ordered out. Augusto and three companions—his brother Socrates and his former soldiers, Generals Imanzor and Estrada—were left in the car, which was then driven to the outskirts of the city. There the four prisoners were shot to death. It was an ironic end for a man who had fought so fiercely against United States influence—to be taken for a ride in typical American gangster fashion.

Unfit Auto Drivers

persons with average intelligence. But beneath a definite mental line, not far below average intelligence, the driver's errors in the Lauer tests increase to the point at which he becomes a highway menace.

Dr. Lauer also finds there are fewer accidents when the streets are covered with ice and snow than when they are dry because people compensate for the added danger and drive with caution.

What Dr. Lauer hopes is that all states will adopt drivers' license laws requiring tests such as he has worked out. He says that even in those eastern states which now require some form of examination, the tests are too often superficial and unstandardized. It would be difficult, says Dr. Lauer, to forbid persons who had driven for several years to have a driver's license. But if the tests showed they were defective drivers then they could be given restricted licenses. That is a person who was found to have serious defects of vision might be given a license which would permit him to drive in his own neighborhood or small town but never in heavy traffic or on main highways. Should he have an accident, his license could be taken away.

Dr. Lauer believes that a Federal highway patrol is necessary since it is difficult or impossible to get uniformity from the states. He is aware, of course, that there might be constitutional difficulties in the way of Federal laws restricting automobile drivers.

BUT apart from restrictions and restraints, he is of the opinion that a great deal can be done through education. He believes that people should be taught how to drive in a thorough course. Such a course might be part of the high school curriculum. Every person applying for a license for the first time should be made to show that he had taken such a course. And incidentally Dr. Lauer's researches show that any one below the age of 20 is a bad driving risk.

That is what Dr. Lauer's tests really disclose. He does not say that Jane Doe or John Doe will or will not have an accident, within any specific time. But he can tell with considerable accuracy who is and who isn't a good driving risk.

Illegal Marriage — Legal Child

me! He never even came near me when I was in the hospital when Donald was born. He never called me, wrote me or tried to see me since the baby came. And in court he never even asked to see the baby.

"I certainly would have let 'Bill' see the baby, but his mother shall never be allowed to see Donald. I cannot understand her. Before we eloped, she was very sweet to me. Several times when 'Bill' and I quarreled, she even came over to my home in her car and persuaded me to patch things up by telling me how miserable 'Bill' was when we were on the outs.

"'Bill' and I were very much in love. I know that we never would have come to this terrible break-up if we had been left alone to work out our own future. When we came back from Elkton, 'Bill's' mother spoke to me a little angrily at first. Then the next day she called up and invited me to tea, saying, 'Hello, Blanche, this is mother.' She was kind and I thought she was sincere. She told me that we could have our own house in June; so of course I agreed to live with my father and brothers until then.

"But from February to June many things can happen and they did. At first my husband came to see me regularly. Then he stopped. I was not allowed to see him alone. One day I called on the telephone and his mother told me that he was too sick to see me. I found out later that he had the grippe and was seeing his school friends right along.

"Mrs. Faragher accused me of having roped in her son. That is not one bit true. He begged me to marry him. His father says they want 'Bill' to study medicine and the long years of study and training ahead make it impossible for him to be burdened with a wife and baby. But they ought to know that I would not have interfered in any way with his future career.

"However, it is all over now. I am in a daze. It is all so strange. I can't seem to realize that it's all over."

Blanche's father, George B. Carson, added: "It's a modern tragedy—a child who has to go through life without a father."

But Mrs. Isabella C. Reinert, who felt that Blanche had been the victim of a cruel injustice, decided to do something about it. A Camden County member of the State Assembly, she drew up a bill, sponsored and pushed it and succeeded in having it passed. This bill will help wives in the future and will prevent them from finding themselves in the same plight as Blanche Carson.

Thus, even if Blanche Carson is no longer Mrs. William Faragher, the wife of a gridiron hero, she has been the cause of preventing any other woman in New Jersey from falling into a similar predicament.

Seeing America From Jugoslavia

surface often Adamic found bitter poverty. Villages he visited had no money to buy anything they could not themselves raise. They had no salt even. Sometimes in a village of several hundred people there would be scarcely two dollars in money. Much of this poverty Adamic attributes to the oppressive dictatorship of King Alexander and the clique that dominates Jugoslavia, aided by French and English capital.

KING ALEXANDER, with whom Adamic had an interview, has for his own personal use a civil list of $1,000,000, which makes him the highest paid king in the world. Alexander and his supporters drain the country of money through excessive taxes, and in other more direct ways, for their own benefit, Adamic claims. This process of extortion is so crude that the author does not hesitate to compare it with American gangsterism and racketeering.

The Jugoslav king has 40,000 troops personally loyal to him to support the regime. While he paints the dictatorship in blackest terms, Adamic does credit the king-dictator with a remarkable war record. Alexander, he says, suffered great privation and hardship for his country during the four years that old Serbia was torn by war.

The future in the Balkans is not bright, in the opinion of the author. Terror and hatred rule. Besides poverty and the terrorist threats of the dictatorship there is the constant fear of war. Adamic found actual evidence that the terrorist methods employed in maintaining the dictator are sometimes similar to methods of police torture in this country. He himself was often under suspicion, followed by detectives. His American citizenship protected him from anything more than overt intimidation.

When he at last crossed the border of Jugoslavia, it was with a sense of deep relief. The one objective that he and his wife had was to get on board the boat that was to take them back to America. They had the feeling of leaving behind a doomed world. After the war that is inevitable, in Adamic's opinion, the masses of the people may build a better society.

But meanwhile on board ship the Adamics were faced toward America, "the country of the future."

Pain disappears faster—"Ben-Gay" penetrates deeper—stays in longer

You can kill the ripping pains of neuralgia and headache with "Ben-Gay," the original Baume Analgésique. Rub on a generous quantity—in a few seconds, it penetrates through skin and muscle to the pain spot itself—it stays there until the pain is banished. This remarkable hyposensitizing (pain relieving) action of "Ben-Gay" has caused many imitations to appear. Anyone who once uses "Ben-Gay" never accepts imitations—they simply do not get at the pain the way "Ben-Gay" does. Be sure to get the box with the red "Ben-Gay."

MOVIE DRESSOGRAPHS

GEORGE O'BRIEN

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in his proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

This week's star is George O'Brien. The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by him in these roles in the following movies:

Michael Wyatt in "Frontier Marshal"; Jim in "Life in the Raw," and Tom Daley in "The Last Trail."

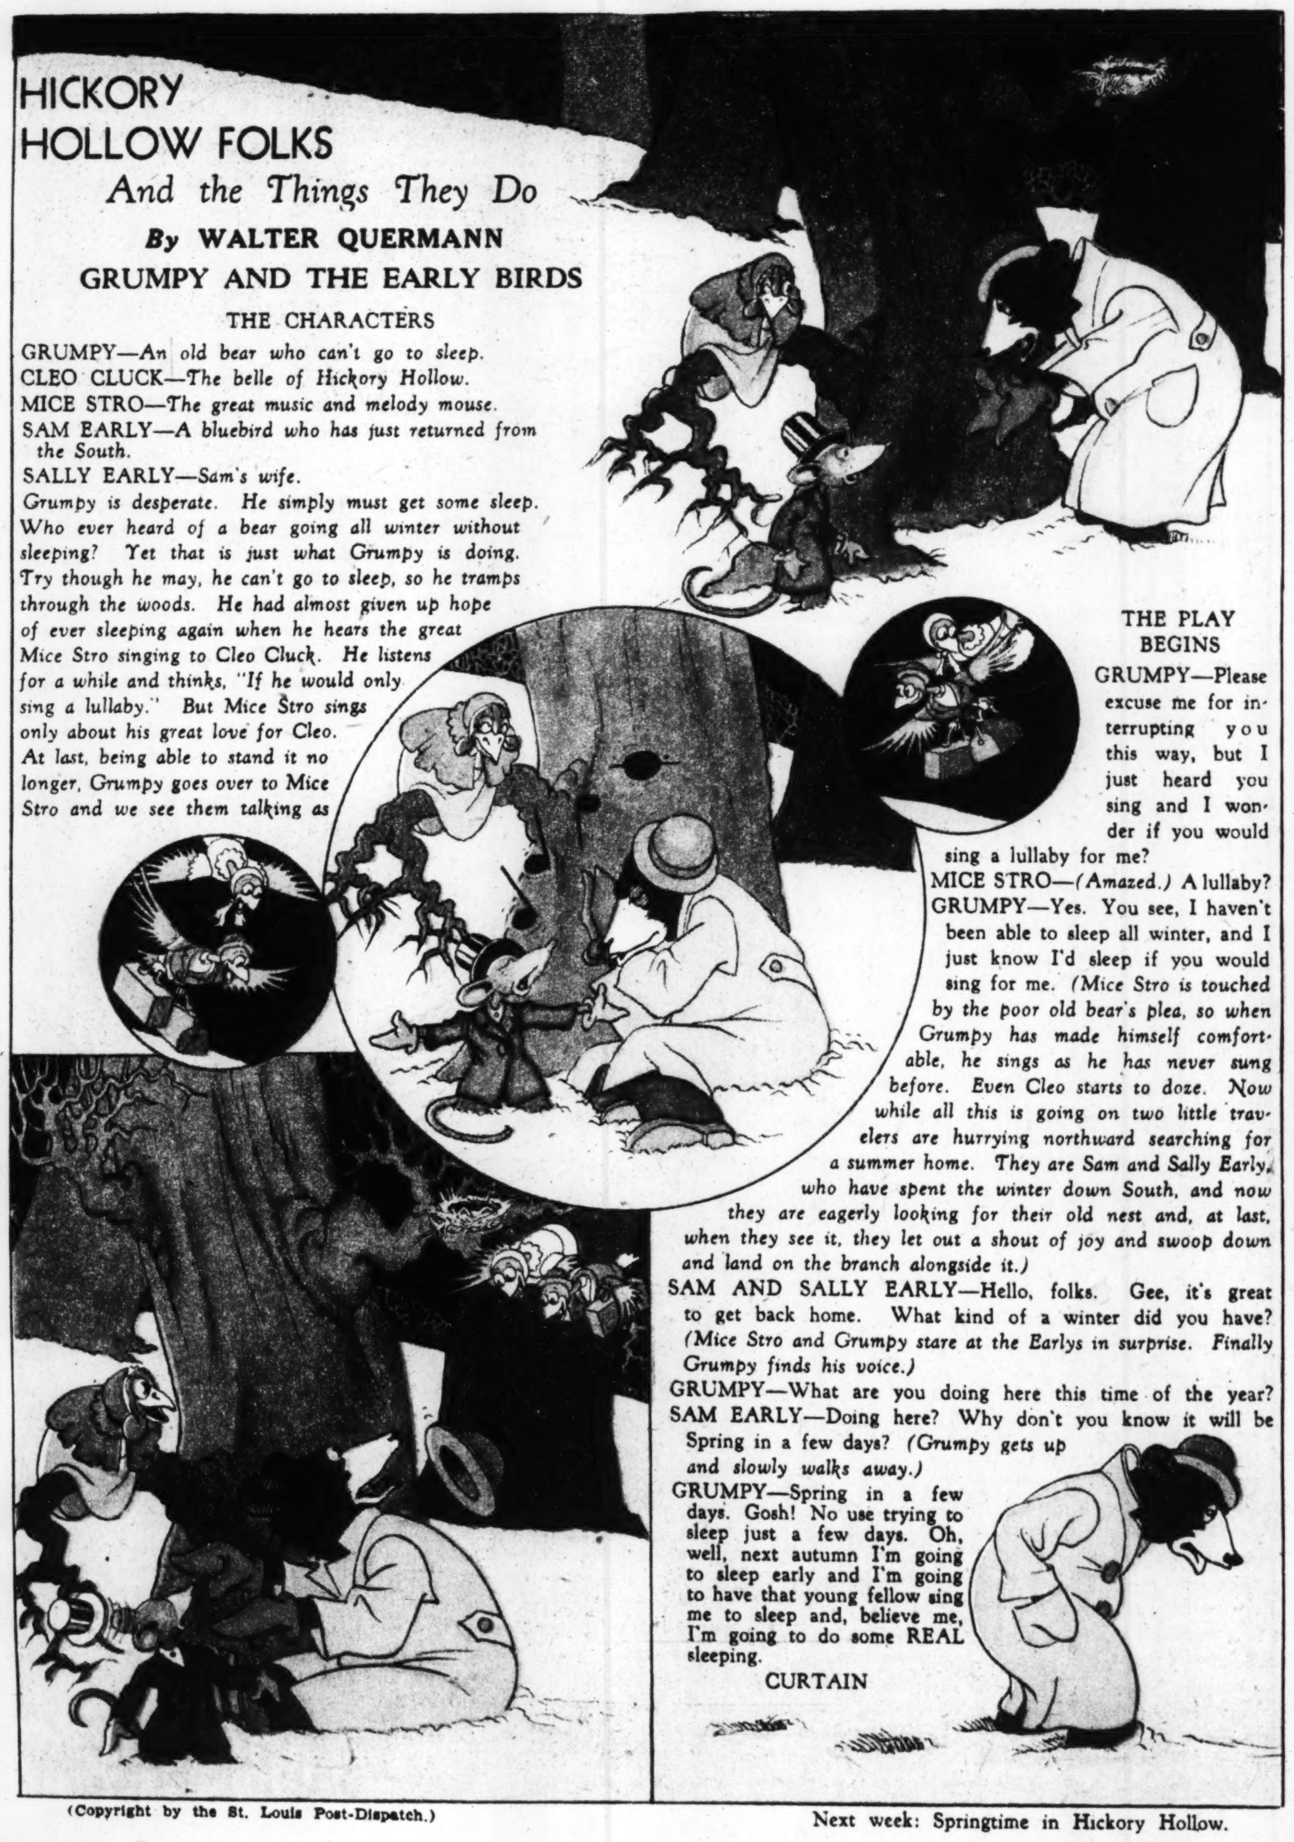
HICKORY HOLLOW FOLKS

And the Things They Do

By WALTER QUERMANN

GRUMPY AND THE EARLY BIRDS



THE CHARACTERS

GRUMPY—An old bear who can't go to sleep.

CLEO CLUCK—The belle of Hickory Hollow.

MICE STRO—The great music and melody mouse.

SAM EARLY—A bluebird who has just returned from the South.

SALLY EARLY—Sam's wife.

Grumpy is desperate. He simply must get some sleep. Who ever heard of a bear going all winter without sleeping? Yet that is just what Grumpy is doing. Try though he may, he can't go to sleep, so he tramps through the woods. He had almost given up hope of ever sleeping again when he hears the great Mice Stro singing to Cleo Cluck. He listens for a while and thinks, "If he would only sing a lullaby." But Mice Stro sings only about his great love for Cleo. At last, being able to stand it no longer, Grumpy goes over to Mice Stro and we see them talking as

THE PLAY BEGINS

GRUMPY—Please excuse me for interrupting you this way, but I just heard you sing and I wonder if you would sing a lullaby for me?

MICE STRO—(Amazed.) A lullaby?

GRUMPY—Yes. You see, I haven't been able to sleep all winter, and I just know I'd sleep if you would sing for me. (Mice Stro is touched by the poor old bear's plea, so when Grumpy has made himself comfortable, he sings as he has never sung before. Even Cleo starts to doze. Now while all this is going on two little travelers are hurrying northward searching for a summer home. They are Sam and Sally Early, who have spent the winter down South, and now they are eagerly looking for their old nest and, at last, when they see it, they let out a shout of joy and swoop down and land on the branch alongside it.)

SAM AND SALLY EARLY—Hello, folks. Gee, it's great to get back home. What kind of a winter did you have? (Mice Stro and Grumpy stare at the Earlys in surprise. Finally Grumpy finds his voice.)

GRUMPY—What are you doing here this time of the year?

SAM EARLY—Doing here? Why don't you know it will be Spring in a few days? (Grumpy gets up and slowly walks away.)

GRUMPY—Spring in a few days. Gosh! No use trying to sleep just a few days. Oh, well, next autumn I'm going to sleep early and I'm going to have that young fellow sing me to sleep and, believe me, I'm going to do some REAL sleeping.

GEORGE DEAR, CAN YOU COME HERE PLEASE?
LISTEN JO, I MERELY TOLD HIM IT WAS VERY PERSONAL STUFF AND.....
WELL YOU DIDN'T HAVE TO ALMOST JUMP DOWN THAT MAN'S THROAT JUST BECAUSE HE STARTED TO TELL THINGS I'VE ALWAYS SUSPECTED ABOUT HER PEOPLE, DID YOU? HE'S AT THE PHONE AGAIN!
HELLO! HELLO! HELLO!
NO ANSWER.
KEEP RINGING THAT PHONE, CENTRAL!
LISTEN DUMMY, DON'T HOLLER SO LOUDLY OR...OH OH! THERE'S OUR DOORBELL. I KNOW IT'S YOUR WIFE.
OH DOMINIC DARLING I'M SORRY! PLEASE COME HOME WITH ME. IT WAS ALL JUST A TERRIBLE MISUNDERSTANDING.
OH YEAH? WHAT ABOUT THE SHOE THAT BELTED ME ON THE SKULL AS I PEACEFULLY SCRAMMED DOWNSTAIRS?
BUT DOMINIC DEAR, I'M SORRY
I'M SORRY TOO BUT THAT SHOE, BABE, WAS THE PAY-OFF. IT SEARED MY SOUL. IN OTHER WORDS, WHY SHOULD I SPEND THE REST OF MY LIFE PROVING I CAN TAKE IT?
LISTEN DUMMY, THERE'S TWO SIDES TO EVERYTHING.
DOMINIC I BESEECH YOU. I BEG OF YOU TO.....
YOU AGREE THERE'LL BE NO MORE OF THAT SHOE STUFF, EH? WELL I GUESS I'M JUST AN OLD SOFTIE TO FORGIVE YOU, BUT...
THEN SHE GRABBED HIS ARM AND THEY WENT UP TO THEIR FLAT.
HA! HOW QUICKLY SHE BOUNCED DOWN HERE WHEN SHE HEARD HIM START TELLING THINGS ABOUT HER "ARISTOCRATIC" PEOPLE. HA! HEAR THEM ARGUING NOW.
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
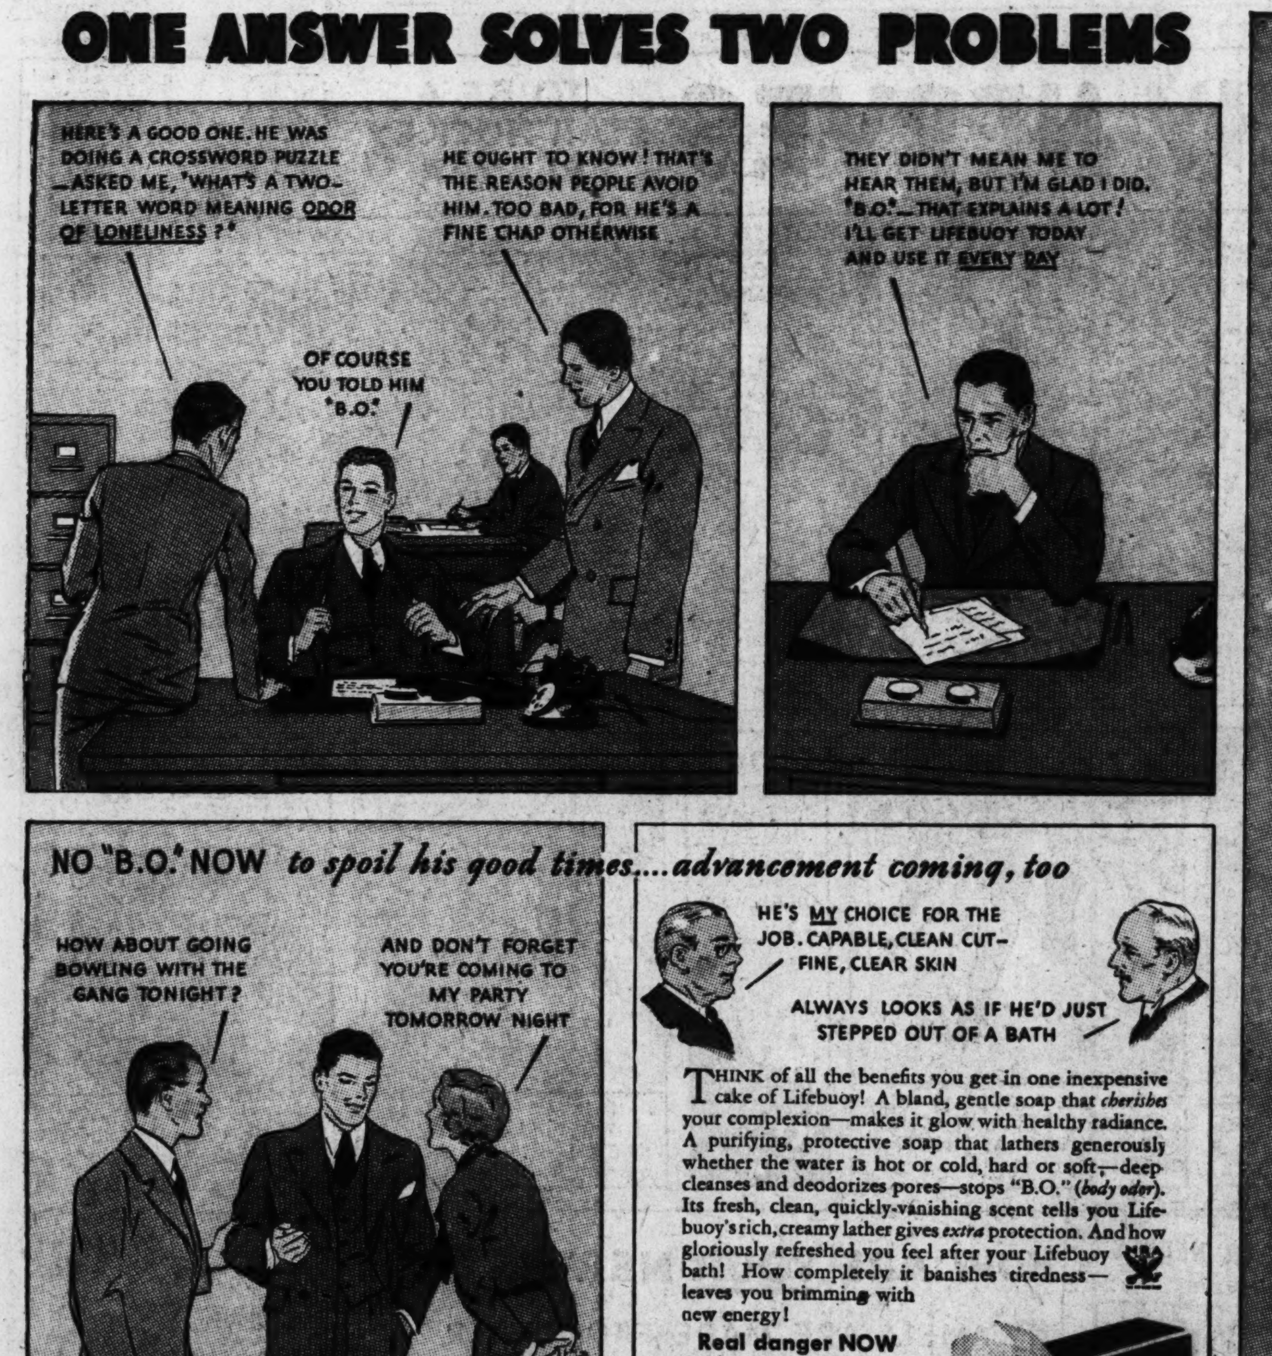
POW! THAT POOR DONKEY! FOR A HALF HOUR HE'S BEEN KNOCKED DOWN AT LEAST ONCE EVERY THREE MINUTES BUT STILL HE GETS UP AND HOLLERS FOR MORE AND....
OH GEORGE BUNGLE, FOR THE LAST TIME I TELL YOU TO HUSH UP SO I CAN HEAR WHAT THOSE PEOPLE ARE SAYING.
GO ON YVETTE, THROW THAT SHOE! I DARE YOU!
SO!
HEY! FANDANGO!
HEY BUNGLE!
POW! HE'S DOWN AGAIN!
OH GEORGE HUSH!
HEY! PIPE DOWN! HEY!
THE IDEA! ASK THEM, McDIRGE, IF THIS IS A CONTEST OF SOME SORT.

ONE ANSWER SOLVES TWO PROBLEMS



HERE'S A GOOD ONE. HE WAS DOING A CROSSWORD PUZZLE —ASKED ME, "WHAT'S A TWO-LETTER WORD MEANING ODOR OF LONELINESS?"
OF COURSE YOU TOLD HIM "B.O."
HE OUGHT TO KNOW! THAT'S THE REASON PEOPLE AVOID HIM. TOO BAD, FOR HE'S A FINE CHAP OTHERWISE
THEY DIDN'T MEAN ME TO HEAR THEM, BUT I'M GLAD I DID. "B.O."—THAT EXPLAINS A LOT! I'LL GET LIFEBUOY TODAY AND USE IT EVERY DAY
HOW ABOUT GOING BOWLING WITH THE GANG TONIGHT?
AND DON'T FORGET YOU'RE COMING TO MY PARTY TOMORROW NIGHT
HE'S MY CHOICE FOR THE JOB. CAPABLE, CLEAN CUT—FINE, CLEAR SKIN

And Royal tastes just as delicious as it smells!

SEVEN FLAVORS: Orange, Lemon, Lime, Pineapple, Strawberry, Raspberry and Cherry. Also Royal Chocolate and Vanilla Puddings, made with arrowroot.

Fruit flavors fade out quickly. That is why Royal is rushed to grocers by fresh-food delivery. When you buy Royal, you get an abundance of fruit flavor!
